4 TURKISH WARSHIPS SUNK BY THE BRITISH

Germans Take Outer Forts of Grodno — Berlin Reports Two British Warships Sunk

British submarines have torpedoed four Turkish transports. Word of this feat came from Paris today.

British Steamer Sunk

The British steamer Savona, 1180 tons, has been sunk in the zone of German submarine operations and three members of her crew are missing.

Russian Success in Galicia

Latest official reports from Petrograd dwell on the Russian success in Galicia and record the capture of more than 7000 prisoners. German reports have indicated that the Teutonic advance has been resumed in this region after a temporary check.

Allied Gains in Dardanelles

Recent claims by the Turkish war office of victories over the Dardanelles expeditionary forces with heavy losses to the latter have been followed by a British official statement reporting the capture of an important tactical point in the Anafarta region and gains along the front occupied by the Australasians.

Two British Warships Sunk

The German admiralty, prompted by the report of a British denial, reiterates its declaration that a small British cruiser and a British torpedo boat were surprised and sunk by a German torpedo boat flotilla off the Jutland coast on Aug. 17. The cruiser is now stated to be of the Aurora class. Vessels of this class displace 3600 tons.

The Russian fortress of Grodno seems to be nearing its fall. Today army headquarters at Berlin announced that the outer forts had been taken.

Only artillery engagments and bomb fighting are reported from the front in France.

France and Egland to Aid Russia

Berlin has reports from Paris that France and England stand ready to assist Russia by detailing expert military strategists to the headquarters of Grand Duke Nicholas.

FRENCH WAR OFFICE REPORTS ON PROGRESS OF HOSTILITIES

PARIS, Sept. 2, 2.35 p. m.—The French war office this afternon gave out a statement on the progress of hostilities which reads as follows:

"Fighting with hand grenades occurred in the course of the night in the vicinity of Souchez. There were several artillery engagements in the sector of Neuville, near Roye.

"In the Vosges fighting with bombs occurred at Schratzmannele."

BRITISH PUBLIC CHEERED BY NEWS OF FIGHTING IN DARDANELLES

LONDON, Sept. 2, 11.50 a. m.—The British public has been greatly cheered by the version of the recently heavy fighting at the Dardanelles contained in the official report received last night from Gen. Ian Hamilton, the British commander-in-chief. This report has been awaited eagerly, in view of the assertions of Constantinople that the allies had been repulsed with heavy losses.

Sir Ian claims that his forces operating on the northern section of the line captured an important tactical point commanding the Buyuk Anafarta valley to the east and north as well as making an appreciable gain along the Australasian front.

"If the British colonists now dominate Anafarta their guns should have a clear field to fire upon one of the main Turkish supply roads leading toward Achi Baba. The Turks, however, have an alternative line of communication with this part of their front. Constantinople has admitted no advance on the part of the allies.

Russian Success Near Vilna

The Russians are developing unexpected strength in the north, where, they state, they are not only holding Field Marshal von Hindenburg but have gained a local success near Vilna. Various changes have been made in the Russian command, the most important being the return of General Russky to the leadership of the northern army.

Von Tirpitz to Take Vacation

Berlin wireless reports, which usually are a day or two in advance of the Petrograd official communications, announce a reversal in the Galician situation as the result of a victorious assault on the Russians north of Zborow.

The English press is keenly interested in the German promise of a change of tactics in suburban warfare and attaches considerable significance to the news that Admiral von Tirpitz is to have a vacation. This is interpreted as indicating that Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg has won a definite victory over his naval colleague in the German cabinet.

WOMAN ASPHYXIATED

HUSBAND IN DANGEROUS CONDITION AT THE BROOKLYN HOSPITAL.

BROCKTON, Sept. 2.—Mrs. Joseph Dufresne, about 75, of Holyoke, was accidentally asphyxiated by illuminating gas last night and her husband, about the same age, is in a dangerous condition at the Brockton hospital, as a result of a leak in the pipe in their sleeping room. The couple was discovered this morning by their daughter, Mrs. Abel Mountagne and the pulmotor was used in a vain effort to save the woman. The couple was visiting the daughter and was stopping with her at 28 West Elm street.

The windows were found tightly closed but the medical examiner found evidence to cause a verdict of accidental death.

Later it was feared Dufresne might not recover. His name is on the danger list at the hospital.

NEW EXPRESS RATES

Increase Arranged to Affect Parcels Weighing Less Than One Hundred Pounds

Beginning yesterday the express companies of this city, and those throughout the state, established a slight increased rate for parcels weighing less than 100 pounds. The increase varies according to the weight and ranges from one to five cents. The new schedule is authorized by the interstate commerce commission as a means of partly offsetting a large deficiency in the revenue of the companies on this class of merchandise due to the establishment of the parcel post system.

The new scale follows: Parcels weighing from one to five pounds, five cents more; six to 29 pounds, four cents more; 70 to 99 pounds, one cent more. The weight on packages weighing 100 pounds or more is not affected.

HIRED BY MRS. MOHR TO KILL HER HUSBAND

Three Men Accuse Wife of Murdered Physician of Employing Them to Put Him Out of the Way—All Four Arraigned and Held Without Bail

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 2.—Accused by her alleged accomplices—three negroes—Elizabeth Tiffany Blair Mohr today was held without bail on the charge of having incited the murder of her husband, Dr. C. Franklin Mohr, a wealthy and well known physician of this city and Newport. The arraignment was at Warren.

The three male prisoners were charged with murder and were also held without bail. All four were locked up at Warren pending a hearing set for Sept. 16. The prisoners pleaded not guilty.

Mrs. Mohr was arrested this morning at the Mohr home in the exclusive Elmwood section of this city following the alleged confessions of the negroes who told the police that they had been hired by Mrs. Mohr to put her husband out of the way. She was brought to the police station where she was turned over to officers from Bristol county within which the killing was done Tuesday night. Accompanied by her counsel, Arthur Cushing, Mrs. Mohr was taken in an automobile to Warren, the county seat, passing on the way the scene of the murder. Another automobile carried her alleged accomplices.

Following her arraignment counsel sought the release of his client on bail, which was refused on the ground that the district court had no authority to accept bail on the charge made. Later it was agreed that the prisoner should be taken before Judge Brown in the superior court at Providence, who would be asked to entertain an application for bail. The party then returned to Providence and early this morning were waiting in the courthouse for the appearance of the judge.

Motives in the Case

The police have entertained two possible motives in the case—jealousy on the part of Mrs. Mohr toward Miss Emily G. Burger, the doctor's secretary, who was his companion on the automobile ride that ended in his

CLOSE OF PLAYGROUNDS

Fine Exhibition at South Common —Varied Program Well Executed—Big Attendance

Public approval of the playground system was clearly manifested this afternoon when over 10,000 people gathered on the South common to witness the closing exercises and exhibition of the children of the system which embraces seven large playgrounds.

The scene presented was a very pretty one and the vast ampitheatre on which the children went through the various events never appeared more beautiful. Credit for the excellent arrangements for the event should be given to John W. Kernan, superintendent of parks and his competent assistants.

All the events with the exception of the girls' baseball game and the tub race were held on the baseball diamond which was wired off for the occasion by employes of the police department. The high verdant banks on either side gave ample room for the parents and friends of the children to witness the various evolutions, and as each group of children went off the natural stage after their exhibition they were showered with applause.

During the morning hours Miss Katherine F. Tobin, head supervisor of the girls of the playground system and a corps of young lady assistants were busily engaged putting the children through a final rehearsal so that everything would go off smoothly, and their work was not in vain, for the children executed all of the difficult evolutions assigned to them in a manner that would have done credit to professionals.

Shortly before 1 o'clock the children started to assemble on the South common and before 1.30 o'clock it is estimated that over 1500 kiddies were present to take part in the closing exercises. The parents and friends of the children also arrived as rapidly and before the time of starting the big playground was crowded.

Owing to the foresight of Supt. Kernan about 30 large benches had been removed from other parks for the day and these were occupied by aged people, members of the city government, park commission and invited guests.

Promptly at 2 o'clock the girls' baseball game was started on a diamond on the top of the hill in the rear of the Edson school, while a contest between boys' teams representing the South and North commons was started on the big diamond. The South common team was captained by "Dick" O'Malley, and Johnny Evers never performed his duties as leader better than the diminutive South common lad. Leo Rosea held sway of the North common aggregation and he also showed remarkable powers of leadership. Both teams came on the diamond like major league teams, and went on with their work as though they had been accustomed to perform before record-breaking crowds every day of their lives. Wonderful fielding was exhibited on both sides and the game was very close. The girls, too, gave an excellent exhibition of the national pastime and their work was roundly applauded on several occasions.

Following the ball game, captain ball was played by little girls from every playground after which various races were held for both boys and girls. Putting the shot, high jumping and quoit matches followed shortly afterward and the winners were accorded generous applause.

At this time one of the prettiest spectacles of the afternoon was presented when the little girls from the various playgrounds attired in their best marched on the grounds accompanied by their instructors preparatory to the folk dancing, each little girl wearing a ribbon on her arm to designate what playground she represented. After all the children had marched to the center of the baseball diamond a halt was called by Miss Tobin, and all but a selected group of little girls repaired to one side. This group went through the difficult evolutions of the "Swedish dance of Greeting," after which another group was led to the center of the grounds and executed a "Highland Schottische." Then came the dances peculiar to the Danish, Norwegian and Irish nations followed by the more popular American folk dances. All were frequently applauded and immensely enjoyed by the large crowd. The music for the dancing was furnished by a piano kindly donated for the occasion by Steinert & Son, and Miss Mary Carolin, one of the instructors on the South common playground made a very competent accompanist.

The park commission provided eight boxes of candy, three searchlights, five knives, two baseball mits, six neckscarfs and eighteen caps, as prizes for the boys while the girls received dolls, dresses, thimbles and a number of other pretty prizes.

The Instructors

Miss Katherine F. Tobin, head supervisor of the girls, and Mr. Patrick J. Reynolds, who was mainly instrumental in mapping out the excellent program provided by the boys, are to be congratulated on the excellent showing at the closing exercises. They were ably assisted by the following very competent assistant supervisors: South common, Misses Marion Carey, Mary Carolin, May Cowell; North common, Misses Mary C. Joyce, Ethel Lombard, Helen Hickey, Margaret F. Flynn and Miss Sullivan; Paige street, Miss Irene B. White; Aiken street, Misses Gladys Mellooh, Gertrude Lannan; Lakeview avenue, Miss Louise Mahoney; Fayette street school, Mrs. Sarah Ivers; Franklin school, Miss Mary J. Reardon. The male instructors on the Aiken and Textile playgrounds and on the North and South commons were Messrs. John Walsh, Jr., Francis Corbett, Patrick J. Reynolds and Eugene C. Donovan.

After the folk dancing the big feature of the afternoon was held under the supervision of Mr. Patrick J. Reynolds, head supervisor of the boys and his assistants. The event was called a tub race and was held in the pond. Each contestant was provided with a large galvanized wash tub and it was his duty to paddle across the pond without upsetting. The contestant who got to the other side of the pond with the least number of duckings was to be declared the victor. Three boys from each playground were entered in this event, which proved decidedly amusing. They were sent off in heats, and it took seven of them before the final was run off. In this, three boys were entered and they certainly furnished the fun of the afternoon, for in their excitement to get to the other side, each of them capsized several times. Finally one youngster dripping wet pulled up at the granite side of the pond where the judges stood and he was given a great hand as were his two less fortunate brethren who came in soon afterward. It was said that the first boy represented the North common but he got away so rapidly that the writer did not have a chance to ascertain his name.

The tub race was the last event and a few minutes afterwards Mayor Murphy awarded the prizes. As each kiddie walked to the cement bandstand to receive his award, the common resounded with applause and cheers, and as the fortunate little boy or girl walked away with his or her prize they were surrounded by their little friends and when it was possible, the lucky little winners shared their prizes with their friends. This was done in several instances where the award was a box of chocolates.

WENT THROUGH BRIDGE

WILSON'S COAL WAGON WENT THROUGH FLOORING OF PAWTUCKET BRIDGE

One of the rear wheels of a coal team owned by E. A. Wilson & Co., went through the flooring of Pawtucket bridge at about 1.30 o'clock this morning. The team was being driven across the bridge with a heavy load of coal when suddenly the driver, Mr. Edward Gendron, experienced a start which nearly threw him from his seat and looking around he found that the left rear wheel of the team had gone completely through a plank about eight feet long. Fearing the wagon would go through the bridge he unhitched the horses and led them to the farther end of the bridge. The break occurred about the middle of the bridge near the car tracks and as a result car service on the Varnum avenue and Pawtucketville lines was tied up for some time. The street railway officials and street department officials were soon notified of the break and a gang of men was son on the scene and the break was repaired. Supt. Farrington, Supt. Blessington of the street department, and Foreman McCann directed the work. This is not the first accident of the kind on this bridge.

AUTOMOBILE WAS STOLEN

That his automobile was stolen from a garage in Cambridge and used for joy riding and then abandoned is claimed by F. W. Sullivan of Cambridge, owner of the machine that crashed into a moving van in Tyngsboro, near the entrance of the Vesper Country club, early yesterday morning. Constable Perry Flint of Tyngsboro learned from the state highway commission that the registration number 73624, belonged to Mr. Sullivan. The latter communicated with Mr. Flint last evening and said that his machine was taken out of a garage and used without his consent. Though the automobile is still beside the road in Tyngsboro, Mr. Sullivan said he would have it taken away today.

THE ARABIC CASE

Papers Say Great Britain Cannot Agree To Settlement As Outlined By Germany

LONDON, Sept. 2, 1.45 p. m.—That Great Britain cannot be a consenting party to a settlement of the submarine question which puts a liner and its passengers into a class apart from a merchantman and its crew is the general attitude taken by the evening newspapers on the note of Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador to the United States to Secretary of State Lansing in Washington.

CONCEALED FROM PEOPLE

German Public Ignorant of Concessions to United States, Says the London Times

LONDON, Sept. 2, 3.53 a. m.—The German public has been kept in ignorance of any concession to the United States concerning submarine warfare, according to the London Times, which asserts that German newspapers of Saturday and Sunday make no mention of a change in policy and refer only briefly to the Arabic case.

The British admiralty's revelation regarding the loss of many submarines also has been concealed from the German people, the Times asserts.

CALLS IT A REVELATION

London Papers Say Concessions by Germany More Than Decisive Triumph For United States

LONDON, Sept. 2, 3.45 a. m.—Commenting today upon the outcome of the negotiations between the United States and Germany over the latter's submarine policy, the Daily News says:

"It is much more than a decisive triumph for the United States; it is a revelation of the internal position of Germany. Faced with the choice between retreat and war, Germany has chosen to retreat. President Wilson may well take satisfaction in having re-established violated laws of humanity without throwing himself into the conflict."

The Daily News considers the reported illness of Admiral Von Tirpitz, the strongest possible confirmation of the belief that the real crisis was not in Washington but in Berlin. "It has been reported that Emperor William supported Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg and today's news gives this report intense significance," the article says.

The Daily Express supposes that Germany was glad to have an excuse for abandoning a method of warfare which cost more than it was worth and which covered the German name with "ignominy."

THE ADRIATIC ARRIVES

THE CAPTAIN REPORTS THAT THE BRITISH HAVE CAPTURED 55 GERMAN SUBMARINES

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—An officer of the White Star liner Adriatic, which arrived from Liverpool today, declared that the German submarine which sunk the Arabic had been caught in a steel net and that the U-boat's double crew were now prisoners in England. He added that within the past 60 days the British have captured no less than 50 German submarines.

FURTHER DEVELOPMENTS CENTER IN STATE BOARD OF CONCILIATION AND ARBITRATION

HOLYOKE—Sept. 2.—Further developments in the strike of 250 trolleymen, which has resulted in the complete suspension of street car traffic since midnight, August 26, centered today in the state board of conciliation and arbitration, which has resumed its efforts to bring about a settlement after the failure of several peace making proposals by outside parties. The three members of the board are in the city and are expected to make a report and possibly a recommendation before tonight.

Officials of the trolleymen's union insist that the time limit of the new contract to be prepared by an arbitration board of three persons, shall be one year and that the question is not one for arbitration. Strike benefits are beginning to be received by the union and nearly $500 was collected yesterday from the trolleymen of Springfield for this purpose.

TWO MORE BODIES FOUND

TAKEN FROM F-4 WRECK—ONE BELIEVED TO BE EITHER ALFRED EDE OR ENSIGN PARKER

HONOLULU, Sept. 2.—Two more bodies were found late yesterday by the men engaged in clearing the hull of submarine F-4, and one of them was believed by Lieut. Kirby B. Crittenden, member of the naval board of inquiry, to be the remains of either Alfred Ede, who was commander of the diver, or of Ensign Timothy A. Parker.

An officer's cap found near one of the bodies in the after part of the battery compartment led to the belief that one of the bodies was that of an officer. The insignia on the cap was gone.

A small notebook, with much of its contents illegible, was found, but there was nothing in it that would clear the mystery of the vessel's sinking. It contained records of the submarine's battery, according to Lieut. Crittenden.

Fresh air has been forced into the forward compartment of the submarine to facilitate work there, but this compartment has not yet been entered in the search for bodies of the 22 men who went down in the vessel March 25 in Honolulu bay.

None of the bodies has been identified except that of George T. Ashcroft of Los Angeles, gunner's mate, found yesterday.

FORCED TO SHOOT BULL

TRAINED ANIMAL ATTACKED T. J. HASKELL, THE OWNER, WHO FINALLY CLIMBED A TREE

NEW SALEM, Sept. 2.—T. J. Haskell of North New Salem was viciously attacked yesterday by his three-year-old 1300-pound Holstein bull and seriously injured.

While Mr. Haskell was leading the bull to water, about 50 feet from the barn, the animal trampled him and threw him roughly about in spite of the fact that he succeeded in catching hold of the ring in the animal's nose. Mr. Haskell finally crawled under bars leading into a lane, but the bull rushed through these, breaking three heavy timbers, and began tossing him around again.

Mr. Haskell was finally thrown behind a pear tree, which he succeeded in climbing. His middle finger was broken and badly crushed, while nearly all his clothing was stripped off.

Mrs. Haskell, powerless to do anything, saw the attack and ran to the home of Charles Rawson, nearby. Mr. Rawson quickly returned with a gun and was compelled to shoot the bull four times before he fell to the ground.

Mr. Haskell collapsed soon afterward and is now in a serious condition.

Mr. Haskell raised the bull, had trained it to do work about the farm and could drive it with reins. Practically all the heavy drawing about the farm was done by the animal, and the Haskell family had become quite attached to it.

Until yesterday the animal had always been gentle.

CAPT. THOMPSON KILLED

EXPRESS STRUCK AUTO ON CROSSING—ONE WOMAN DYING, TWO OTHERS INJURED

THOMASTON, Me., Sept. 2.—Capt. N. Webb Thompson, a wealthy, retired sea captain of Friendship, was killed, Miss Verne Marsh, his housekeeper, was critically injured and two women named Morse were slightly hurt today when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Maine Central express train here.

Capt. Thompson was driving his automobile to Rockland. When he reached a railroad crossing in the outskirts of this town, his engine became stalled, as near as could be learned, while he was attempting to cross in front of the New York express, bound to Rockland.

The car stopped on the crossing and was struck by the train before the four occupants could get out.

Capt. Thompson was killed outright. Miss Marsh, who is about 22 years of age, was thrown beneath the train, and both limbs were amputated, one at the ankle and the other at the knee. She was taken to the Knox hospital in Rockland, where her condition was reported as critical. The other two women were able to walk to a nearby house, where it was found their injuries were not of a serious nature.

Capt. Thompson, who was 69, made many foreign voyages before he retired from the sea a number of years ago, and had since traveled extensively in foreign lands.

Petitions

The Newton Mfg. Co. and R. B. Philip petitioned for licenses to keep and store gunpowder and the petitions were referred. The petition of Francis S. Varley for permit for the removal of a building from Ennell to Carolin street was referred. Rice & Co. filed claims for damage caused by a sewer overflow; Gertrude Watson filed claims for damage to an automobile, and both were referred to the city solicitor.

Chelmsford St. Bridge

A communication was received from the county commissioners stating there will be a hearing before the superior court on the first Monday in October for the purpose of appointing a commission for the rebuilding of the Chelmsford street bridge. The mayor said he believed a Lowell man should be appointed on the commission and it was voted to recommend the said appointment, and to instruct the city solicitor to attend the hearing.

M. W. Libby was appointed a surveyor of lumber.

Commissioner Morse asked permission to file a requisition with the purchasing agent for a car load of No. 1 white clipped oats for the street department and it was so voted.

An order for the laying of a sewer in Farnham street, 271 feet in length at a cost of $1,119 was read. The order was laid over till the next meeting.

The Lowell Waste company petitioned for permission to attach wires to the poles of the Bay State Street Railway company and the Lowell Electric corporation in Gorham street, and the petition was referred to the city solicitor.

The Bay State company petitioned for permission to relocate its tracks at the junction of Rogers and Nesmith streets, and it was so voted.

Memorial Building

The contracts for the repair of the Memorial building were approved as follows: Carpenter work, Alway & Meloy, $18,900; plumbing, Patrick F. Welch, $989.99; plastering and masonry, Mathies F. Connor, $7601, and electrical work, L. A. Derby & Co., $2570.50.

For the oiling and watering of streets, assessments amounting to $25,469 were presented and approved.

An order to authorize the city solicitor to instruct the Boston & Maine railroad to reconstruct the Chelmsford street bridge was read and adopted.

Daniel F. Sullivan and Michael F. Conroy petitioned for permission to construct and maintain a bulkhead in Agawam street. The city solicitor said the petitioners cannot build a bulkhead without permission from the city, because in so doing they will obstruct the sidewalk, and he said he believes the petitioners should be requested to furnish bonds to indemnify the city in case of accidents. Commissioner Morse suggested the petitioners be given a hearing, but Mayor Murphy did not approve of the plan, saying all the council wants is to protect the city.

Mr. Hennessy referred to a case in Belvidere some years ago, where a man was injured through a defective bulkhead, and the city was liable. The mayor did not favor granting the permission, because he said he did not feel the council would be justified in taking such responsibility. It was voted to grant the permission providing a bond of indemnity satisfactory to the city solicitor be filed.

An order appropriating the sum of $400 for the payment of land owned by Charles F. and Joseph B. Varnum, which was seized by right of eminent domain, Solicitor Hennessy said this case is one which dates back to 1911, when Eleventh street was extended and land owned by Messrs. Varnum was seized. He said the award was about $320, but was not paid, and he said it will be cheaper for the council to pay a round sum of $400 rather than $320 and interest for four years. The order was adopted.

Jesse Viles and Elie Delisle were granted garage licenses.

A claim from Harold E. Durger for $29 for the spoiling of a suit of clothes by oil spread on the streets was read and referred. The claim for personal injuries of Etta Powers was also referred.

An invitation from the Trades & Labor council to review the parade and award the prizes on Labor day was read and accepted.

The commissioner of public safety was authorized to purchase a horse weighing not less than 1100 pounds for the health department.

The contract for the piping at the boulevard pumping station between the commissioner of fire and water works and the H. R. Barker Co. for $508, was approved.

The contracts with the Lowell Monument Co. for tablets in Memorial hall, and Arthur P. Knapp for the steel architectural work for the same building were not approved because the necessary bonds have not been filed. The contracts will be approved at the next meeting.

Commissioner Duncan presented an order for a temporary loan of $200,000 for the carrying on of the city's business in anticipation of taxes. Mr. Duncan said this loan is necessary on account of the law enacted in 1913, giving an extension of time for the payment of taxes. The order was adopted.

The mayor informed the council that the playground exercises would be held on the South common at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon and he said all members were invited to attend.

HIRED TO KILL DOCTOR

death and an alleged desire by the wife to obtain possession of her husband's considerable estate before the culmination of a counter suit brought by the physician in answer to a suit for separation instituted by Mrs. Mohr and now pending in the supreme court.

A few hours after her husband expired Mrs. Mohr made application in the municipal court for appointment as custodian for his property. This was granted.

Dr. Mohr maintained homes and offices both in this city and in Newport. His estate here is assessed at $75,000. Mrs. Mohr has said that their property in Newport was worth $75,000, and in addition the doctor had a small racing stable.

Miss Burger is 23 years of age and lives with her father, a saloon keeper, in a tenement above his place of business.

The Mohrs were married 12 years ago and have two children, Charles Franklin, aged 10, and Virginia Blair, seven years old. The doctor had been married before. The Mohrs were prominent in their somewhat limited social circle. Mrs. Mohr has been active in the Elmwood Woman's club and frequently was a patroness at dances. Three weeks ago she visited the doctor's family at McEwansville, Pa., being entertained by his two brothers, John D., and Augustus Mohr, and his sister, Mrs. Ella Hagan. It had then become known that a separation of the Mohrs was probable, but the wife is said to have insisted that she did not wish a divorce because of religious convictions.

Events moved rapidly from the time that George W. Healis, the doctor's chauffeur, drove up to the Rhode Island hospital with the senseless forms of the doctor and Miss Burger in the tonneau of the car Tuesday night. The doctor died the next forenoon and Mrs. Mohr with her two little children came to view the body. Miss Burger, who is recovering from her wounds, said that they had been fired upon from ambush.

ARREST OF MRS. MOHR

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 2.—Mrs. Elizabeth F. Mohr, wife of the physician who was fatally shot while on an automobile trip from this city to Newport on Tuesday night, was arrested today after three negroes had signed a written confession that Mrs. Mohr had hired them to kill the doctor. The negroes are charged with murder. They are George W. Healis, chauffeur, who was driving Dr. Mohr's car at the time of the shooting; Cecil Victor Brown, formerly employed as a hostler by Dr. Mohr, and Henry Spellman, a half-brother of Brown. No specific charge has been preferred against Mrs. Mohr, who vehemently denied the accusations which she characterized as absurd.

Healis had been detained by the police since the shooting as his account of the affair conflicted with that given by Miss Emily G. Burger, the doctor's assistant, who was in the automobile and who was also wounded.

$2000 to Kill Husband

Brown was taken into custody last night after Healis had told the police that he and the hostler had plotted to rob Dr. Mohr on the night of the shooting. The authorities did not believe the stories told by the negroes and Brown was subjected to a searching examination, during which he broke down and admitted that he was concerned in the shooting and that Mrs. Mohr had offered him $2000 to kill her husband.

Healis and Spellman, questioned separately, corroborated Brown's story and the arrest of Mrs. Mohr followed.

Brown at first denied that he had any connection with the affair. He said he passed over the Nayatt road where the shooting occurred, on a motorcycle, explaining that he was on his way to visit a friend at Riverside. Detectives who went to Riverside to investigate his story returned with Spellman in custody. Spellman said that there was a plot against Dr. Mohr and when Brown heard of Spellman's admission he made a detailed confession.

According to Brown's story, Mrs. Mohr proposed several weeks ago that he kill Dr. Mohr, promising to pay him $5000 nine days after the killing was accomplished. He said he asked Spellman to help him out and brought his half-brother up to talk the matter over with Mrs. Mohr. Healis was present at this interview by request of Mrs. Mohr, Brown said. Spellman was to receive $1000 and Brown and Healis $2000 each.

The arrangements for the shooting were carried out in detail, according to the confession. At a designated spot on the Nayatt road, Healis stalled the engine of the automobile and Brown and Spellman, who had approached on their motorcycles, crept through the bushes and fired at the occupants of the car. Brown said he shot Dr. Mohr and Spellman wounded Miss Burger. After the shooting Brown and Spellman went back to the motorcycles. They threw the revolvers into a brook near the Rhode Island Country club.

Told to Kill Both

Brown declared that Mrs. Mohr told him to be sure and kill the doctor and to kill Miss Burger if he could. His instructions, he said, were to shoot anybody in the tonneau whether it was Miss Burger or Florence Ormsby, a maid employed in Dr. Mohr's office.

After Spellman and Healis had corroborated Brown's story two police detectives went to Mrs. Mohr's house and brought her to police headquarters where she later was formally placed under arrest. No specific charge was preferred against her as the murder was committed in Bristol county, which is out of the jurisdiction of the Providence county courts. It was stated that she would be arraigned on a charge of inciting to murder. The charge against Brown will be the murder of Dr. Mohr, that against Healis will be accessory to murder before and after the fact, and Spellman will be charged with assault with intent to murder Miss Burger.

Mrs. Mohr and the three negroes were taken to Warren, the county seat of Bristol county and arraigned before Judge Frank Hammell. The woman was charged with inciting to murder.

Before the party left the police made public the following letter addressed to George Rooke, a brother-in-law of Miss Burger and bearing the signature of Mrs. Mohr. Rooke said he had received the letter a short time ago:

Warned by Mrs. Mohr

"Dear Mr. Rooke:

"Just a line to ask you to tell your sister if she dares to go into my Newport home she will never come out alive. I am giving her fair warning no matter what the outcome may be. I will see it through. I was told about her buying linen at Gladdings, (a Providence department store) for Dr. Mohr. I do hope you will try and straighten this matter out and I know you cannot stop her going out to dinner with him. But she will have a sad ending if she keeps on against me. My home is being watched and if I should leave Newport this summer my home will be watched just the same and should I get word I shall come right on. The world is with me in my sorrow. I am heartbroken.

"Respectfully,
"Elizabeth T. Mohr."

Confession of Brown

The confession of Brown as taken by the police reads:

"I, Cecil Victor Brown, 27 years old, of 39 Hammond street, Boston, Mass., saw Elizabeth T. Mohr Monday night between 8 and 9 p. m., August 30, 1915. She sent for me and told me to prepare to kill Dr. Mohr, because she could not stand this any longer.

"'I do not want to do it,' she said, 'there is something in it for you. I will put you in the garage business. Do not be afraid, as I stand in with all the detectives and chief down in Newport and the judges in Providence.'

"She said if we get in any trouble she will spend her last dollar to get us out of it and be sure and tell George to come over so as she could have a talk with him. After nine days she would have everything settled that is her part of the estate.

"She also said she did not know if his other two children belonging to his first wife would come in for their share and she would pay me $2000, and also pay George $2000, and Henry $1000, and if she had enough left she would give me $500 more."

"There is no need of being scared, everything will blow over. This is something that has to be done.'

"She made me ride to Boston on the train leaving Providence at 7.40 p. m., to purchase a revolver in a pawn shop on Beach street about three months ago, which I paid $6 for, a 35-calibre. Mrs. Mohr said to get a good one. If we did not kill him she was going to do it herself.

"She paid $100 for the motorcycle I own, in May, this year."

Mrs. Mohr Not Disturbed

Mrs. Mohr was brought from her home to the police station at 6.30 o'clock this morning. She met the officers there and her counsel, Arthur Cushing, with smiles and appeared to be not at all disturbed. She is a small, slightly built woman. She wore a blue suit, white gloves and a modish straw hat, the broad brim of which almost hid her face. However, upon seeing a crowd of photographers that had gathered, she sent a messenger for a brown veil and when this was obtained she tied it over her hat in such a way that only the lower part of her face could be seen. She carried a vanity box.

NEW ENGLAND BUSINESS

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD REPORTS TRADE SOMEWHAT BELOW NORMAL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—A digest of business conditions in the 1st Federal reserve district, which includes the New England states, issued in the monthly bulletin of the federal reserve board, was made public yesterday.

"Unsettled condition of labor," the report says, "in the large manufacturing centers is causing much concern to the manufacturers. Attracted by the higher wages paid by certain firms operatives are changing and some manufacturers are finding it difficult to keep up their forces.

"The retail dealers and the department stores report their business below normal, largely due to the cold and rainy weather which prevailed throughout New England during the first half of the month. This is the season of the year when the tourist trade is an important factor with them, and this is much smaller than in previous years. The shore and mountain resorts are also rather quiet for mid-summer.

"The farmers and produce men throughout New England have had their crops damaged to a considerable extent by the elements, especially hay and corn, and potato rot has appeared in many sections. The farmers in Aroostook County, Me., however, where the potato yield is the important crop, report this to be satisfactory.

"The reports of the shoe and leather trade, while showing a spotty condition, on the whole indicate a slight improvement, but outside of war orders business is little better than 60 per cent. of normal. The reports from New Bedford and other fine goods centers continue favorable, and although coarse goods mills are not up to normal, still they are reasonably employed.

"The dye situation and the uncertainty of the new cotton crop are important factors. The reports from the woolen mill centers are quite satisfactory. Even the general line of goods is reported to be in better demand.

"Building operations in New England show contracts for the year up to August 4 of $108,767,000, the largest amount shown at any time during the past 15 years, with the exception of the year 1912.

"Exports and imports for the month of July compare with a year ago as follows: Exports for July, 1915, $9,104,337; imports for July, 1915, $12,891,595. Exports for July, 1914, $5,246,595; imports for July, 1914, $14,886,723."

RUSSIA NEEDS COTTON

INDICATIONS POINT TO IMPORTATION OF "FAIR AMOUNT" OF THIS YEAR'S CROP FROM AMERICA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Indications that Russian spinning mills will demand "a fair amount" of the current American cotton crop were reported to the department of commerce yesterday by Commercial Attache Baker at Petrograd.

He cabled that of the 9,000,000 spindles in Russia, 7,500,000 outside the war zone are working two nine-hour shifts a day, and each is consuming at the rate of 108 pounds of cotton annually, as against 72 pounds before the war.

"It is anticipated in Moscow," the message added, "that about January Russia will import from the United States a fair amount of cotton to arrive during the spring."

AMUSEMENT NOTES

OPERA HOUSE

With an advance sale of seats that exceeds any attraction ever brought to Lowell, "Within the Law," the famous melodramatic sensation which will be the opening offering of the Emerson players at the Lowell Opera house, Labor Day afternoon and night and all next week, with matinees daily, bids fair to smash all records for theatrical hits in Lowell and the Opera house is certain to be filled to the very doors throughout the week. "Within the Law" is positively limited to one week and to avoid any chance of disappointment, theatre-goers of Lowell and the surrounding towns, should secure their seats in advance. The play has an international reputation and has caused more favorable talk than any play that the world has known. Produced in New York over two years ago and with very little advertising, it proved a sensation and for two solid years, with matinees daily, this play ran at the Eltinge theatre with Jane Cowl playing the lead. For one solid year, the play held the boards in Chicago and last season had a wonderful run of 10 months at the Majestic theatre in Boston, playing to capacity audiences and turning away thousands of theatregoers who traveled far to witness the attraction.

Lowell theatregoers have been anxiously awaiting the production of "Within the Law" and last season, unsuccessful efforts were made to bring the attraction here at Broadway prices of $2. The Sites-Emerson company, through its New York office, after completing the deal whereby the Opera house became their property, immediately contracted for "Within the Law" and forty other big attractions and "Within the Law" will be produced along with these others, not at Broadway prices but at popular prices of 10, 20 and 30 cents, thereby giving the theatre patrons of Lowell an opportunity to see all the latest attractions at these wee prices, long before other cities. The sale of seats opened yesterday and all day long, there was a line to the box office and the two telephones have been kept busy receiving phone orders.

"Within the Law" is a great big gripping play of today's life which is certain to score a wonderful hit in Lowell. The play tells an appealing story. It concerns the railroading to jail of a young salesgirl who is charged with thievery committed by another. After three years in prison, she tries to go straight but is hounded by the police until finally, with the advice of her lawyer, she becomes a successful blackmailer by working within the law. With a thirst for revenge, she marries the son of the man who sent her to prison, hoping to bring him shame. How her plans turn out is wonderfully told by the dramatist. There are many splendid situations which arise throughout the play and the characters are true to life, with Mary Turner, Joe Garson, Young Gilder, Inspector Burke, Cassidy, English Eddie and others appearing to great advantage. The introduction of the Maxim silencer gun is another brilliant feature of the play.

Miss Ann O'Day as Mary Turner, which role was originally played by Jane Cowl, is certain to prove a sensational favorite while Homer Barton will play Joe Garson in splendid fashion. Joe Crehan as Young Gilder, Carson Davenport as Mr. Gilder, Hubert Pierce as Inspector Burke, Dora Booth, Clara Sidney, Frank Wright, Darel Goodwin, Gertrude Shirley, Herbert Augustine, Forrest Gordon, Henry Crosson, Walter Spencer, Walter von Boekman and other members of the company comprise a cast of rare excellence. The scenic and electrical equipment will, by far, surpass everything that has previously been seen in this city.

Get your seats early. That is the sure way to see "Within the Law." The play will be a sensational success and hundreds, many hundreds will be obliged to say "I could not get seats." Phone 261 for reservations from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Good vaudeville will find many patrons, and this is being amply demonstrated at the B. F. Keith theatre, this week. The attendance at all performances has been phenomenal. The bill has caught everybody, and applause rings through the theatre during and after every act. Jack Wyatt's picturesque act, "Scotch Lads and Lassies," headlines the combination, and it is winning many plaudits. It is by all odds the best act of its kind ever shown here. And everybody contributes to the round of pleasure. Mr. and Mrs. James Bales, who are very well known locally, sing Scotch melodies, old and new, inimitably, while Mr. Wyatt thumps the big drum in a dexterous manner. The Misses Murphy, Barrie, Crawford and Lawrence are pretty dancers of jigs, reels, flings and sword dances, and Messrs. Wyatt, Ackland and Ross are pipers extraordinary. Rob Donaldson and Tom Campbell are soloists of note. It's one very likeable act, Al and Fannie Steadman, in "Pianocapers," are premier entertainers. They offer good music and introduce some splendid somedy. Harry Holman & Co., in the comedy, "Adam Killjoy," prove themselves up to the very high standard of the rest of the bill. Lowell's bicyclists, the Cycling Brunettis, are just as big drawing cards as ever they were, while Ruth and Kitty Henry, singers and dancers, Walter Walters, ventriloquist, and the Clown seal get many encores. Good seats may be obtained in advance at the box office. Phone 28.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

On the program of the Merrimack Square theatre for the last three days of this week, the first performance given at matinee this afternoon, there appear two big features worthy of the attention of all who enjoy seeing the best in motion pictures. They are the five act Paramount drama "The Heart of Jennifer," starring the charming Hazel Dawn, and "Capital Punishment" in which the versatile Lenore Ulrich appears. The former picture tells the story of a woman's strong love for her husband which prompts her to place upon herself the guilt of the crime committed by another. In this play which grips you from first to last scene, Hazel Dawn is the personification of infinite tenderness and makes an appeal to all. Lenore Ulrich plays the leading role in the latter named drama which is shown in three acts. This photoplay takes up the much mooted question of every age, namely that of capital punishment. Charlie Chaplin's latest comedy stunts are shown in a screaming Chaplin comedy, and many interesting views of foreign lands and customs are revealed in the Paramount travel pictures which conclude the performance for today and for the remainder of the week. George Beban who is coming soon in "An Alien" is one of the sensations of the season.

CANOBIE LAKE PARK

The busiest girl at Canobie lake park this week is undoubtedly Miss Margaret Murray, the Lawrence girl who is appearing this week with her partner in vaudeville at the theatre. All week long scores of friends have visited the little lady and her time while off the stage is much occupied in receptions that range from parties of three and four to some twenty or more.

Paul Petching's musical flower garden with its hosts of new and novel instruments cleverly concealed amid bowers of roses, plants, etc., is another big hit on the present bill. Then there are Murphy and Delmar in their happy-go-lucky comedy skit "The Raw Recruit" who take the audience by storm and leave them in the same condition. Victor, the ventriloquist, is opening the eyes of the many who have always felt that ventriloquist was limited in his power of voice manipulation. Victor seems to have absolute control over his voice and causes it to execute many extraordinary feats.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

"The Princess Romanoff," a photoplay taken from Sardou's original production, "Fedora," is at the Academy the last three days of this week. It is a story of Russian politics and social life, with action transferred to America as the plot develops. The Princess Romanoff is the tragic figure of the play. On the eve of her wedding, the bridegroom is killed. She is led to believe that he has been murdered, and from that time, she devotes herself to the tracing of the murderer. In time, she meets the man who killed her lover, and obtains from him a confession, though the confession states that a duel had been fought and that there was no treachery in the killing. Moreover, the Princess learns that her lover was a villain at heart, and she is thankful that he died. Then comes a second love story with the successful duelist marrying the princess. It is absorbing from start to finish, and with Nance O'Neil in the title role, one finds ample realism. There are other attractions, and the program is well worth a visit to the Academy. Tonight is amateur night, positively the funniest entertainment in theatrical life.

DANCING CARNIVAL AT CASINO

All roads will lead to the Kasino on Friday night when the Allied Printing Trades council will hold its much heralded dancing carnival. A real carnival of music is promised those who attend for the melodious strains of the orchestra accompaniment will be barely finished when the Lowell Cadet band will strike up the music for the next dance. In this manner dancing will be continued throughout the evening excepting the time taken for the excellent concert numbers.

The council is to be congratulated on securing the services of Miss Annette LeVine, soprano soloist of Boston, favorably known at Boston's pop concerts, as the attraction of the evening. Miss LeVine is an exceptionally fine singer and her first appearance in Lowell is sure to attract music lovers from far and wide.

The carnival will open promptly at 8 o'clock with a short musical program in which Miss LeVine will be assisted by the band and Broderick's orchestra. Miss LeVine will sing the latest popular and classical selections.

HAMPTON BEACH CARNIVAL

"Children's Day" at the Hampton beach carnival will be held Tuesday, Sept. 7th on which day large numbers of children will be present. In addition to the baby show sports and games for the little ones have been planned and everything pertaining to their comfort and pleasure is being done by the committee in charge.

The baby show is of course one of the most important parts of the day's program. Miss Cora Miner ably assisted by Miss Blanche Thompson and Miss Priscilla Thayer has divided the show into five classes; 1st, babies under 24 months. 2nd, children between the ages of 2 and 5 years. 3rd, dolls and doll carriages. 4th, decorated baby carriages. 5th, Mother Goose and fairy tale characters. Several prizes for each class are offered which will be closely contested. Each class will have a parade of its own and as a final, a review of the prize winners will be held. Entries for this show can be received up to 12 o'clock of the same day.

During the afternoon aeroplane flights will be made by Aviator Redding at which time he will show how bombs are dropped upon armies in actual warfare. This will be most interesting to the young people and a sight they will never forget.

Confetti battles and grand illuminations during the evening terminating with fireworks will fill to overflowing this day set aside for the children.

LYNN WINS OUT

Three Passes in the 12th Inning Gave Pieper Game by Score of 3-2

(Special to The Sun)

LYNN, Sept. 2.—With defeat staring them in the face and a one run lead to overcome Lynn took advantage of a little etherial trip, on the part of Howard Williams, Paddy Green and Zeke Lohman in the 12th inning yesterday afternoon at Ocean Park and by playing inside baseball pushed two runs over the platter winning the game by the score of 3-2.

The game was easily the most interesting and exciting from a spectator's point of view of any which has been played this season in Lynn and the Ocean Parkers can only blame the extra innings and added hard work to the stickwork of "Cuke" Barrows, the demon slugger of the Lowell team and individual leader in stick work in the league.

With Steve Jewett working like the well oiled mechanism of a Seth Thomas and with one down in the ninth inning Barrows strode to the platter. With the count three and two, he caught one to his liking and knocked the ball a mile high over the right field fence into Nahant for a circuit drive which tied the score. Not satisfied with this Cuke in the 12th chapter sent the Lynn stock tumbling by doubling into the right field bleachers and scored the run which put Lowell one in the lead by a sacrifice and a passed ball.

But Lynn had a sudden punch reserved for this inning also and although Kelchner rushed two rescue pitchers to the mound to save the game, they tossed it away by issuing three certificates of deadhead which forced two runs across the platter and sent the fans home to supper in a happy mood.

Yesterday was Jewett and Ipswich day at Ocean Park, and the 250 baseball enthusiasts who rooted hard and long for Lynn were perfectly satisfied with the results of their journey. Jewett the Lynn twirler and Bill White, Lowell's third sacker are Ipswich lads and they were paid homage by their townspeople. When Jewett walked to the plate for the first time in the game in the third inning, Ex-Senator George A. Schofield in behalf of the Ipswich fandom presented Jewett with a handsome cowhide traveling bag and White with a dress suit case. Both murmured their thanks after the presentation, while the Ipswich rooters in the first base bleachers gave each three long and hearty cheers. As in the case of all presentations Jewett conformed with the old tradition of striking out. Throughout the game both were cheered every time they walked to the platter.

Both Pieper and Kelchner wanted the game yesterday the worst way and both managers used 11 players apiece. Kelchner started the game with Howard Williams on the mound, while Pieper sent Jewett to oppose him. Both failed to last the entire distance and were yanked in the 12th inning. McCabe relieved Jewett with Barrows on third in the final inning and the slugger scored on Haight's passed ball. McCabe fanned the two men who faced him. During Lynn's rally Kelchner derricked Williams and sent in Paddy Green, Green pitched to two Lynn hitters and Zeke Lohman was sent to the mound to keep them away but he passed two. Williams who batted for McCabe and Porter forcing in Holmes and Ordway with the runs which won.

The game abounded with sensational plays which were evenly distributed between both clubs. Wheat Orcutt, however, did the most spectacular work of either team and he hauled down eight solid drives in the outer garden, two of them being long savage clouts by Barrows. In the sixth he nailed Barrows' drive within ten feet of the center field fence after a long run and was given a cap full. Shorty Den played well at short his most sensational play being an assist to first in the ninth after Gleason had caromed a sharp drive off White's shins. Munn made several nice stops of badly thrown balls, while Halstein performed his usual stunt in guarding the initial corner like a major leaguer.

Jewett had all the best of his pitching duel with Howard Williams, although the latter was working fine. Jewett made the batters hit bad balls, while Lynn swatted Williams' curves savagely in the early innings. However as the game progressed Williams grew stronger and allowed not one hit from the third to the 12th innings.

Tom Bannon handled the game in place of "Kitty" Bransfield who was taken sick while dressing for business and Tom was continually in hot water by his decisions. Both Lynn and Lowell questioned several plays and it looked for a time as though he would do a little ejecting but the storm passed. Bannon at that acquitted himself in pretty good style considering the number of close decisions he judged.

Lynn started the first inning after Williams and it seemed as though he wouldn't last the first chapter. Porter hit a high fly in left which Parker who was playing in close could not get under and he secured a double. Gleason sacrificed and Halstein scored him with a single to right. Orcutt on the hit and run lined to Barrows who doubled Halstein at first.

Lowell and Lynn got men on several times for the next six innings, but the necessary hit could not be found in the array of bats owned by each club. Williams held Lynn hitless until the 10th, while Jewett was a might more generous, allowing one long bingle until Barrows poked one over the wall, in the 10th inning with one down. Both clubs were easy in the next chapter but the hair raising finish occurred in the 12th.

Barrows got a fine hand from the fans in the 12th after he had prevailed upon Kelchner and Bannon to play one more inning before calling the game on account of darkness which was settling fast. He doubled into the right field bleachers and Den sacrificed him to third. Here Jewett was taken out and McCabe relieved him. The first ball McCabe threw was not stopped by Haight and Barrows scored while the Lowell players threw hats, gloves and other kit into the air. McCabe made short work of Stimpson and White, fanning both.

After Haight had lied to Barrows in Lynn's half the fans commenced to leave the grounds thinking the game was over.

Holmes then hit to right for a base and Ordway pasted one to left for another single. Barrows here hoisted signals of distress and Kelchner sent in Green. Green failed to locate the plate and passed Lynch, filling the bases. Green also gave Carl Williams hitting for McCabe three consecutive balls when he was called out and Lohman went to the box. He gave Williams a strike and then heaved another ball, forcing in Holmes with the tieing run, while the crowd howled with delight. Porter took two balls and then two strikes. The next was wide and Lohman followed it with another, walking Porter while Ordway tripped across the plate with the winning run. The score:

WITH THE PADDED MITTS

Ted "Kid" Lewis proved to the satisfaction of the Boston ring lovers that he is not a flash in the pan, for he defeated Jack Britton, recognized as one of the cleverest men in the ring today, in a decisive manner before the banner crowd of the season. Lewis worked in his usual manner, in and out, swinging both hands into Britton's head and stomach after which he would tie up the Chicagoan in a clever manner. Lewis also used a left jab to the face with telling effect followed by a right cross which landed with a thud and outside of three or four rounds outpointed Britton by a city block.

Britton had the stiffest wallop and his punches did more damage than the Englishman scrapper's artillery. Lewis went in to win on points and win he did. He had enough points after the bout to win three contests. Some of the local fans thought Britton ought to have had a draw but we fail to see how they formed that idea for Lewis had eight of the twelve rounds by a wide margin.

Jack Britton of Chicago did not gain any friends Tuesday night, when he lost the decision to Ted Lewis, the English fighter. Britton did not weigh in as he was supposed to in the afternoon. Britton found fault with the gloves and then when the bout started he objected to a rubber disc that Lewis used to protect his teeth and went to his corner, refusing to fight until Lewis removed the cause of the trouble. Lewis finally got disgusted and walked over to his manager and took out the rubber and the bout was on. Britton was so mad in the early rounds that he butted the Britisher several times, also used his elbows and mugged which are a direct violation to ring rules.

Mike Crowley, the Malden lightweight who made his professional debut last Tuesday night at the Atlas surprised the fans with his dazzling ring work. He was pitted against Charlie Sheppard, a boy with lots of experience, but Mike jabbed, hooked, and in fact did anything he pleased, with the former local boy. If brought along slowly, Crowley should develop into a top-notch boxer and give any boy his weight a good argument.

Ray Wood and George Alger are to battle before a North Adams club tonight in the feature bout of ten rounds. Alger and Wood clashed at Biddeford, Me. last week and put up a cracker-jack scrap that ended with honors even.

Al Shubert and Willie Mack will clash at the next meeting of the New Bedford fight club, Labor day night. Mack, it will be remembered, took a lacing at the hands of Gardner Brooks not so very long ago in Philadelphia, Mack's home town.

Instead of Larry Burns meeting Young Dyson at New Bedford on the 13th, Jimmy Fasane will appear with Dyson in the main bout. It looks like a case of dodging the rugged Lawrence boy. Burns seems to be in hard luck in regard to getting boys to meet him.

Harry Wills and Sam McVey, two dusky heavys, will furnish the fireworks for the Atlas A. A. members next Tuesday night in a twelve round bout. Will hails from New Orleans and when introduced from the ring the other night, shaped up as a husky demonstrator of the manly art. Wills is a tall rangey fighter and weighs in the neighborhood of 210 pounds. McVey is well known to the Hub sports having beaten Sam Langford, Sandy Ferguson and holding Joe Jeanette to a draw.

Terry Brooks and Charlie Byers meet each other in the semi-final to McVey and Wills, Tuesday night. Both of these boys are terrific hitters and a knockout will not be any surprise.

The Thornton club of Providence will reopen its doors in a short time and the principals will be Freddy Yelle and Tommy Moore. Yelle has not boxed since he was stopped in three rounds by Charlie White at Boston and this bout will be more of a come-back stunt than anything else for Moore is not rated very highly.

KIMBALL TO BELLEVUES

By last night's Sun the Bellevues claim that no engagement was made with the Kimballs for a meeting on Saturday night, Aug. 21.

In reply will say that we had a date as they claim with the Woodbines which they kept, and the manager of the Woodbine team will verify the statement that the Bellevues also had one at the same place and same time.

Now, the statement that they will play the Kimballs at Spalding park on Labor day morning looks all right, but do they take into consideration the fact that at 1 o'clock this team plays on the South common with some picked team selected by the Trades and Labor council? And do they think that any amateur team in town is so daffy to play them under these conditions. "The winner to pay all expenses for grounds, police, tickets, etc." If so, we will have to agree (if this is the only way they can play) we are not sportsmen as they term it, and will have to refuse to play them under these conditions.

These are the challengers and can play us under the same conditions as any other team on any other date.—Manager of Kimball team.

SOCCER FOOTBALL

The first games of the series in the Lowell, Lawrence and District Soccer Football league are scheduled to be played Saturday afternoon. At Bunting park the Buntings will meet the strong Beverly team and a fast game is to be expected as the Buntings have gotten together the strongest aggregation of football players that has ever represented them on the gridiron for many years. A big crowd will accompany the Beverly team to Lowell and will be on the "lines" to encourage their players on to victory. The local men will also have their friends out in force, as it is expected that this game will be one of the best of the season. The lineup of the Bunting team will be as follows:

J. Smith, goal; Smith, right fullback; Marriott, left fullback; Lowe, right halfback; Kelly, centre half; Cameron, left halfback; Kershaw, outside right; Taylor, inside right; Clegg, centre; Mitchell, inside left; Greenhalge, outside left. The reserve players are Costello, Molloy and Waddilove. Kick-off at 3.30 p. m. sharp.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

The manager of the Elms would like to meet the manager of the Crescents tonight in front of this office at 7.30 o'clock. J. Bowers, Manager.

The Colburn A. C. will play the strong Florence club next Saturday. They would like to hear from the C. M. A. C. Cadets for a game for the following Saturday.

FABRE AND KYRONEN

STAR SPEEDSTERS TO CLASH IN 10 MILE RACE AT BUNTING PARK, MONDAY

No race staged in this section ever attracted as much attention as that between Villar Kyronen and Edouard Fabre, which is to be held at Bunting park next Monday afternoon.

Both runners have their admirers hereabouts, and both are considered the star speedsters of America at 10 miles. They seem to be beautifully matched, and that is the big reason why the race is the subject of so many arguments.

In appearance, Fabre towers over Kyronen. Sizing up the men as they appear on the street, one would pick Fabre without the least hesitation. Kyronen is a little fellow, perhaps as big as Al Shrubb, the former champion at the 10 mile distance.

In action, the Finn is the more attractive. That is, he is the "prettiest runner" of the two. He loses a little by his high stepping, but his manner of running appeals to the crowd. He seems to put forth very little effort. Critics have said that if he "kept closer to the ground" he would improve his speed a little, but it's his way, and is not to be changed.

Fabre is nearly six feet tall, and has a good easy method, with a fine stride to carry him along rapidly. He possesses great endurance, as indicated by the fact that his wind was perfect when he finished the 10 mile race here Memorial day.

In sizing up the pair, it may be conceded that Kyronen runs fast from the pistol and finished strong, but whether or not he has the sprint in the last lap that Fabre is known to possess, remains to be decided. If Fabre holds the Finn to the last lap, Fabre's sprint will come in very handy, and if the Finn can't meet that sprint, Fabre will win. Kyronen's friends are of the opinion that Kyronen will be so far ahead of Fabre at the home stretch, Fabre's sprinting will avail him nothing. Fabre's admirers contend that he will hold the Finn until the last lap and will then win by sprinting.

DIAMOND DAZZLES

Double-header at Manchester tomorrow.

Double-header with Lawrence at Spalding park Saturday.

Bill Luyster of the Lawrence team went to Attleboro to play semi-prof. ball last Saturday and the Lawrence papers are sore on him.

All up for Kelchner day, Saturday. We can do it!

Here's hoping Portland remains in the league next year so as to have a pennant day.

KELCHNER DAY

Local Fans Will Honor Lowell's Manager at Saturday's Game

Saturday has been set aside by the Lowell management as Kelchner day, when the local fans will do honor to the gentlemanly manager of the Lowell team who brought the nine out of a bad hole, gave Lowell good baseball and revived a general interest in the team, all in a remarkably short space of time.

One hears on every side the story: "If we had Kelchner all season we'd be strong for the pennant."

Mr. Kelchner will probably leave Lowell Saturday night, as Albright college, in Pennsylvania, in which he is a teacher of French and mathematics, along with being athletic instructor, opens within a few days and he must be back for the opening. Thus Saturday was selected as the day, and the selection was good for a double reason, for on that day we have as our opponents the Lawrence team and it is returning the compliment extended by Lawrence to Lowell when the Lowell team was invited to participate in the Pennant day exercises and profits in that city.

When the project of a Kelchner day was first broached the fans took it up with enthusiasm and hence a big crowd may be looked for on Saturday.

BAKER SOLD TO YANKEES

HOME RUN KING PURCHASED FROM ATHLETICS FOR $15,000, ACCORDING TO REPORTS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2—The sale of J. Franklin Baker, former third baseman of the Athletics, will be announced soon unless Connie Mack refuses to go through with the deal discussed here yesterday.

Ban Johnson, president of the league; President Lannin of Boston, Vice Pres. Huston of the New York Americans and Pres. Shibe of the Athletics were in conference all afternoon and the transfer is expected to be made today. The sale was outright and the price is believed to be $15,000.

The sale of Baker is part of the plan devised by American league magnates to boost the game in New York, where interest in baseball has taken a big fall owing to the poor showing of the giants and the tumbling fortunes of the Yankees. More than one American league club will contribute to the upbuilding of the Yankees, but Baker is the only player known to have been settled upon for transfer so far.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Six of the first ten ranking tennis players remained in the running today at the opening of the third day of play in the national championship tournament. These survivors, with the official ranking they received at the end of last season were: Maurice E. McLoughlin, 1; R. Norris Williams, 2; Karl H. Behr, 3; William Johnston, 6; F. B. Alexander, 8, and Watson M. Washburn, 9.

G. M. Church, the intercollegiate champion, ranked 7, was defeated yesterday by Washburn. R. Lindley Murray, 4; William J. Clothier, 5 and Eliot F. Fottrell, 10, did not compete in the tournament.

The turf courts at the West Side Tennis club, which were groomed to velvet smoothness at the opening of the tournament, are beginning to show signs of wear. The four championship courts have suffered most, on account of the long drawn out matches and lengthy rallies.

McLoughlin will face Leonard Beekman this afternoon while Williams' opponent will be Walter M. Hall, former middle state champion, who yesterday defeated Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia, a substitute on the Davis cup team of 1913, in one of the longest matches of the tournament thus far.

GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 2.—The fight for the national amateur golf championship which is being waged on the Country club course today narrowed to four pairs. The west has four survivors—two from Chicago and two from Detroit. Three of the big brigade from the east are left, two being from New York state and the other from New Jersey. Nelson Whitney of New Orleans is the only hope of the south.

Robert A. Gardner of Chicago was pitted against his fellow townsman, D. F. Sawyer, who represents Wheaton Ill., Golf club. Max Marston of Springfield, N. J., who toppled Jerome Travers, played Howard Lee of Detroit. James D. Standish, Jr., of Detroit, youthful conqueror of Francis Ouimet, the national champion, had Sherrill Sherman of Utica for his opponent. Whitney met John G. Anderson of Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Two rounds of match play, each of 18 holes, was the test. A place in the semi-finals tomorrow was the immediate prize.

MAYOR WILL RUN AGAIN

Complies With Request of Supporters in Meeting at Associate Hall—Reviews Administration

The plan to have Mayor Murphy's announcement of his repudiation of a pledge made two years ago and his intention to run again, come in response to a demand of his supporters that he be a candidate again, was successfully carried out at Associate hall last evening when His Honor, in the presence of an audience of about 300, was presented with a petition alleged to contain 7000 signatures demanding that he be a candidate.

The petitions were placed in circulation one week ago and were started out and the mass-meeting arranged at a meeting of some of the mayor's friends, held at the Yorick club. By a singular coincidence the mayor returned from his vacation on the day of the meeting.

Of the 300 present quite a number were drawn there through curiosity while many were recognized as men not particularly favorable to His Honor's reelection. When a standing vote was called for on the endorsement of the mayor and the request that he run again it was quite noticeable that about one-half of those present stood up.

On the platform were several well known supporters of the mayor but the mill and bankmen who have been active behind the movement were conspicuous by their absence from the stage. Perhaps the most striking feature of the affair was the fact that out of 7000 voters alleged to have been signed to the petition, less than six per cent of them appeared at the mass meeting.

The Meeting

The meeting opened shortly after 8 p. m. with an audience of about 300. Mr. James O'Sullivan was chairman and seated with him on the platform were: Daniel J. Donahue, William D. Regan, Frank B. Dow, Oscar C. Dow, Charles F. Sheridan, Fred H. Rourke, Orrin F. Webster, James P. Ramsay, Alvah H. Weaver, Joseph Wilson and Charles F. Keyes.

Speeches were made by James O'Sullivan, Daniel J. Donahue, William D. Regan and Mayor Murphy.

James O'Sullivan

The opening address was made by James O'Sullivan who spoke in part as follows: "This is a rather unusual meeting. In my experience of 50 years among you it is the first meeting of its character held in the city. Its purpose is to make a request of our chief executive to again be a candidate for mayor of the city of Lowell. The statement that a term of two years is enough for any mayor does not hold good in his case, and the people of Lowell feel that they are entitled to his services for two years more. No citizen would be justified in refusing to serve the people in the face of this petition running into 7000 names.

"Some one may ask the question 'Is there not some one else in the city just as well qualified for the position?' Certainly there are—many of them—but Mayor Murphy has given Lowell the cleanest administration it has had for many a day. It is in recognition of his services we request him to be again a candidate.

"This is not a political gathering of any special party. We meet here with the best interests of the city at heart, and we make a respectful demand on Mayor Murphy that, even at a sacrifice, he will again consent to serve us as mayor of Lowell."

Daniel J. Donahue

Mr O'Sullivan then introduced Daniel D. Donahue who spoke in a very complimentary vein of the present chief executive, saying in part:

The administration of Mr. Murphy has been marked by honesty, efficiency, progress; it has been devoid of scandal and any breath of suspicion; he has given one hundred cents for every dollar paid into the treasury; there has been neither waste nor extravagance in the expenditure of our money; the improvements made and the reforms initiated by him have been useful, necessary, wisely conducted and in full sight of all men; and Lowell has moved forward and become a real city under his care and direction. Every dollar spent by him has counted; the work done and the work laid out have not been mere temporary makeshifts; they are permanent improvements that not only we men of 1915 can enjoy, but the next generation will profit by. We have handsomer, more lasting, better lighted streets; the city is more attractive and beautiful today than when he took office; in spite of physical calamities and industrial hard times the credit and reputation of the city stands high; our public projects were made to combine improvement and employment and both were united with a wide economy devoid of littleness or meanness; and yet with taxes increasing in the cities and town all around us, our tax rate is lower than in 1914.

These are the substantial proofs of wise administration and a constant devotion to our municipal interests; and if no higher and better reasons the taxpayers of Lowell would be wanting in common sense if they discarded the mayor who brought about such results, for some new and untried man.

That is the official, the mayor, what of the man, Dennis J. Murphy? We have known him always; he has grown up with us; he was educated in our schools and trained in our institutions; he has lived and acted in the open in sight of all men. We know him. He is honest, courageous, proud of his native city, public spirited, giving and anxious to give Lowell good service whether in or out of office; he has been tried and tested and found true; and he has done his duty fearlessly and conscientiously. He has had the public interest at heart at all times; every citizen calling on him was sure of patient, courteous, kindly attention, be he rich or poor; he has impressed himself on his fellow citizens at home, and has represented us with credit away from home. A clean-handed, clean-minded, courageous citizen and official, we have never had to explain or apologize for Dennis J. Murphy.

At the conclusion of Mr. Donahue's address, he put the resolution to the audience that the citizens of Lowell, irrespective of party, ask Mayor Murphy to run a second time for mayor. It was seconded by John E. Sullivan. Mr. Donahue then named Messrs. O'Sullivan and Weaver as a committee to wait on Mayor Murphy and escort him to the hall.

William D. Regan

In the interval between the departure of the committee and the arrival of the mayor, William D. Regan made a brief address, in which he said:

"This is a most wonderful thing, a most extraordinary tribute to a public official. This city has had many chief executives, some able, some whose epitaph might fittingly consist of an apology, but none has had more complex problems than he. He has solved them and we are here to acknowledge and to praise. We are grateful for this opportunity to testify to his worth. At a sacrifice, Mayor Murphy has given us a term full of service and we now see that the community honored itself in honoring him. He stands on a platform of official achievement."

Mayor Murphy

At this time, the committee returned with Mayor Murphy who was applauded as he passed through the hall. Mr. Donahue read an introduction explaining the purposes of the meeting, and Mayor Murphy responded in a carefully prepared speech reviewing the two years of his incumbency, as follows:

"Mr. Chairman and Fellow Citizens: To me this reception is one of the most gratifying things that could happen to me in my official capacity.

"I realize and recognize this unusual outpouring of citizens. I respect the confidence in which you hold your mayor and his administration of nearly two years. It was not my intention when I was a candidate for the position, less than two years ago, to be a candidate again. I said so then, and I feel the same at this moment.

"A man in the position of chief executive of a city of this size carries on his shoulders responsibility which is at times more than he thinks he can endure. He is a target for the attacks of those persons who are not in sympathy with what he represents.

"When I assumed office the city was in debt $100,000. The day I took office a note was under protest in the city of Boston for that amount. But the note was met satisfactorily. And we have gone along notwithstanding the obstacles which have been met, and today we have as a government made Lowell one of the best cities in the state of Massachusetts. (Applause.)

Streets Improved

"I do not take the credit for the things which have been accomplished. The men who have associated with me in the government of 1914 and 1915 have done their work well. By cooperation we have accomplished much. The members of this government are honest, they have worked night and day for the city of Lowell. The streets are in better condition than they have been at any other time in 20 years. When the fall closes every main artery into the city of Lowell will be in the best possible condition. And the credit for this work is due to the man at the head of the streets and highways department.

Water and Fire Departments

"The problems which have confronted the commissioner at the head of the department of fire protection and water supply have been many. They have been vexing problems, particularly that relative to our supply of pure water. Yet the commissioner has given unusual thought to his task and within a short time the result of his labors will make itself manifest. And the commissioners of public property and finance are giving all of their time and attention to the work of their various departments, to bring them up to the highest possible standard of efficiency.

Tax Rate Lowered

"Lowell's tax rate this year showed a reduction greater than that of any other city in the state.

"I have raised the wages of the men of the health department. But is that criminal? If it is then the man at the head of the public safety department is at fault. It is not the other members of the government. And I will say that the health department men, with their raise, are not getting as much money as they should. If anybody is to blame for giving the policemen one day off in 15, then it is, again, the head of the public safety department. That is not a thing the government did.

"But, among things which the government undid, was the plan to pay $33,000 for a playground in West Centralville. The government rescinded the order to buy this land for that amount which could be leased for $200 a year, because it did not believe it necessary to expend any such a sum for playgrounds in that district. The government is now leasing land for playgrounds at $200 a year which a past government paid $1100 for.

"We have been criticized for spending $3000 for a Fourth of July celebration. But thousands and thousands of people came here for the celebration and, when it was all over, the city had actually made $322 out of it. (Applause.)

Contagious Hospital

"When we reconsidered the work of a past government relative to the location of a contagious hospital, we felt that Belvidere should not have a hospital in it, because it is a residential district. But the legislature requires the erection of a contagious hospital. We are powerless in the matter. I consider it to be unnecessary. In the next ten days, perhaps in the next day, the government will rescind its action relative to the Seventh avenue site in Pawtucketville, and will vote to purchase by seizure the site on Varnum avenue.

"There are other projects in the minds of the members of the government, probably the new high school. This government asked, and obtained, permission to borrow $700,000 for the erection of a new high school. But when you read that the government has borrowed that money and is paying interest on it, you are reading what is untrue. Not a cent has been borrowed. It will be borrowed in such sums as are necessary, when the actual building is under way. And when you read that we have borrowed $80,000 for the construction of a new bridge to Pawtucketville, that is untrue, also. We have not borrowed one dollar of it. These are things which all citizens should know.

Praise For Police Department

"I am proud to be a member of the administrations of 1914 and 1915. The police department has never been governed so efficiently as during the past year and a half. The superintendent is one of the best men in the entire United States. With him at the head there will be no trouble in the police department. And the department is one of the best this city has ever had. This is shown by the arrests which have been made. And the charity department has been splendidly governed during the past year and a half.

"I am part of the administration. I accept the criticism of honest citizens. I expect it, as every public servant must. But it is the dishonest criticism which must be suffered and which cannot be met because of the methods used in making it.

"I appreciate this splendid endorsement. I recognize that these 7000 names mean something. I recognize that a man who has said that he will not be a candidate a second time owes something to the citizens who so splendidly endorse him and the government. But if I accept this it will be on the old principles of law and order. I will not change them one iota. If a man is breaking the laws, it matters not who he is, he should be amenable to the law. I owe my allegiance to no one, other than those friends here tonight, and to the hundreds of others who have signed these memorials.

Agrees to Run

"I accept this endorsement and I will be a candidate again for the position of chief executive of the city of Lowell."

For Acid Stomachs Use Magnesia

The almost universal use of magnesia by physicians and specialists in the treatment of stomach troubles, is due to the fact that it stops food fermentation and neutralizes the acid—the direct cause of nearly all stomach troubles. Of the many forms of magnesia such as oxides, citrates, carbonates, sulphates, etc., the most suitable and efficient, and the one prescribed by leading specialists is bisurated magnesia, a teaspoonful of which in a little warm water immediately after eating will instantly neutralize the acid, stop fermentation and thus ensure painless normal digestion. Care should be taken to get bisurated magnesia, as its action is infinitely more effective. It is also, by the way, usually stocked by druggists in convenient compressed tablets as well as in the ordinary powder form. Stomach sufferers and dyspeptics who follow this plan and avoid the use of pepsin, charcoal, soda mints, drugs and medicines are invariably astonished to find that the stomach, relieved of the irritating acid and gas, soon regains its normal tone, and can do its work alone without the doubtful aid of artificial digestants. IS SUBMARINE LOST?

The sinking of the Arabic is in some respects a mystery and it is a mystery that may not be cleared up for a long time, if ever. Reports of the attack from the first have been meagre and there were certain contradictions that made the American Press cautious in their comment. Furthermore, the British censorship was unusually strict, though there did not seem any great reason for secrecy if the facts were as alleged by the admiralty. From the first Berlin asked America to suspend judgment until the German side of the story was revealed, but now Berlin professes to be as much at sea as the American government.

Germany assumes the responsibility and is willing to meet the consequences. Evidently the imperial government has been waiting for the report of the submarine commander who shot the torpedo, but to date his report has not been forthcoming. This gives rise to the suspicion that the guilty submarine met her fate at the hands of the British, and Germany hints at a like conclusion. This does not end the case against Germany but if true it will simplify the process of settlement.

It may not be quite fair to question the veracity of the German government, but if England does not report the sinking of the submarine, there will be some doubt as to the credibility of the story in this country. Survivors of the Arabic declared that there was no distinguishing mark on the undersea craft, and it is doubtful if it was seen at all, though Captain Finch and others testified to having seen the torpedo. The story of the loss of the submarine gives Germany a plausible loophole out of a delicate position, and it removes the necessity to disavow the act and punish the commander. Even if practical diplomacy did not suggest the expected announcement of "no report," the loss of the submarine would not be wholly unwelcome, as Germany has shown a decided change in her attitude towards America, and would not care to antagonize American public opinion still further.

The alleged loss of the submarine that sank the Arabic makes one wonder how many have fallen victims since the raids were decided on. England has kept the details of submarine losses secret, fearing to give valuable information to the German government and it may be that the losses among the U-boats have been tremendous. It is significant that for days the underwater craft have been more or less inactive, and there is a growing suspicion that Germany's pet naval policy has turned out a failure. When the war is over and many things now dark are revealed, the Arabic incident may have some sensational and surprising features. Warring governments have many secrets, and they are able to keep them well.

HAS KEPT HIS PROMISE

When President Woodrow Wilson made his inaugural speech in March, 1913, he could not have known the great crisis through which he was called to guide the destinies of his country. He could scarcely have foreseen that in one short year practically every great nation on earth would be engaged in a war, the like of which history had not hitherto known, or that this nation would have to be patient and prudent beyond all precedent if it would keep out of the struggle. Yet he gave utterance to sentiments that when read now take on a deeper significance than they had then. How appropriate the following excerpt is to the present:

> The nation has been deeply stirred, stirred by a solemn passion, stirred by the knowledge of wrong, of ideals lost, of government too often debauched and made an instrument of evil. The feelings with which we face this new age of right and opportunity sweep across our heart-strings like some air out of God's own presence, where justice and mercy are reconciled and the judge and the brother are one. We know our task to be no mere task of politics but a task which shall search us through and through, whether we be able to understand our time and the need of our people, whether we be indeed their spokesmen and interpreters, whether we have the pure heart to comprehend and the rectified will to choose our high course of action.
> This is not a day of triumph; it is a day of dedication. Here muster, not the forces of party, but the forces of humanity. Men's hearts wait upon us; men's lives hang in the balance; men's hopes call upon us to say what we will do. Who shall live up to the great trust? Who dares fail to try? I summon all honest men, all patriotic, all forward-looking men, to my side. God helping me, I will not fail them, if they will but counsel and sustain me!

In his inaugural address he pledged himself to stand for the interests of the American people, and who can say that he has not kept his promise? He has just won a signal triumph, not for himself, nor for his country alone but for humanity. In March, 1913, he summoned "all honest men, all patriotic, all forward-looking men" to his side, and today they are with him. Once again America realizes that at critical times in its history, God has raised up a truly great leader to fight for the ideals of democratic government and to preserve for the future the liberties which this nation won only after a hard struggle against tyranny and injustice. Wilson has preserved by calm diplomacy what Washington won by the sword.

BEARING FRUIT

At least one movement for trade extension abroad has borne fruit in practical plans that will have a great bearing on the future of American business. Contracts for the financing of a Chinese-American trans-Pacific steamship company have been signed by American and Chinese capitalists who are now negotiating for the purchase of ships, according to an announcement of the Chinese minister to Mexico who is at present in San Francisco. He declared that the movement is supported by some of the greatest American bankers and practically all the principal banks of China. Though the new line will be partly American, it will operate under the flag of China—a fact that should be noted by all interested in the restoration of our merchant marine.

This new venture is the first fruit of the recent visit of the Chinese commissioners to this country. At the invitation of the federal department of commerce and with the cooperation of some of the greatest trade organizations in the large cities several prominent Chinese bankers and business men were the guests of the country for several weeks, during which they visited our most important cities and made plans for future trade relationships. Those who are unfamiliar with the tendencies of the day may have seen nothing of a practical nature in the visit, but it was an excellent business move as shown by its splendid results. With the opening of the Panama canal and the growing demand for American products in the Orient, this line promises to be a great factor in the extension of our foreign trade.

Many other factors are working for a greater foreign trade at the present time, many of which are slow in their processes but all of which promise fruitful results. Delegations of our manufacturers and financial leaders have gone to South America from time to time, and recently there was a great conference of representatives of Latin America in Washington for the cultivation of more cordial relationships. The primary need is for transportation lines, followed by a better financial system to facilitate trade, and the formation of a great Chinese-American line will be hailed as a bright omen in business circles.

SIGNS THAT DEFACE

The nation-wide campaign against undesirable billboards has received a great impetus in Rhode Island where a law against roadside billboards went into effect yesterday. This law forbids the placing of signs on trees, poles, fences, stones, etc., and authorizes anybody to "take down, remove or destroy any advertisement in or upon the public highway." Such a sweeping law will certainly prove effective if there is as great objection to the defacing signs in Rhode Island as elsewhere.

Lovers of natural scenery well know the type of sign that Rhode Island has condemned officially. We have many such within a radius of a few miles of this city. The fairest view is ruined by large and ugly posters setting forth the advantages of a certain brand of whiskey or declaring that some one clothing house is away ahead of all others. Every tree in some places is an unwilling agent for commercial propositions, and every rock sets forth in glaring colors that some cigar is the best ever. These signs are dubious as advertising aids and they certainly offend against natural beauty. Bad enough to have to tolerate the hideous billboards in the heart of the city, but when one cannot get away from them in the country, the case becomes desperate.

In France, a movement against inartistic signs began many years ago, and a law was passed forbidding the defacement of natural scenery. Even the names of the railroad stations in some parts of the country are written in flowers. Continental cities as a rule are more particular with regard to their advertisements than American cities, and visitors to this country almost invariably comment sarcastically on the billboards that destroy the finest scenery. Rhode Island has done good pioneer work in passing a law that must sooner or later be passed by all states. It is inconsistent that we should tolerate signs that deface either in the city or in the country while there is such a healthy agitation in favor of civic beauty and order.

THE REMEDY

Those who are not versed in the ways of high finance cannot but see something ludicrous in the remedy proposed by American bankers to England, for the prevention of further depreciation of the value of the English pound sterling. The great reduction, so galling to British pride and so injurious to the British pocketbook has been due to England's lack of a great credit. She has been obliged to meet the demands of American business with prompt cash payments, and the constant drain has taxed her ability to pay promptly. Consequently her money lost value in the markets and the dollar superseded the pound as the unit of exchange. England is growing tired of paying too much for the dollar, and it is expected that many orders to America will be cancelled—England buying only what she actually needs here. American bankers, however, propose that to establish a great basic credit, England should borrow a large sum at a good rate of interest from American banks and pay American business on a more equitable cash basis. England may do this, but if so, it is because she will have to. If the American bankers can squeeze England or any other foreign power they will lose no opportunity to do so, provided the transaction proves profitable.

PLAYGROUND WORK

The fine exhibition of work from the summer playgrounds, just held in the Harrington building, proved beyond question that the playgrounds exercise a splendid influence over the children during the summer months. Only those who have seen the actual work or its results as exhibited realize the patience and perseverance necessary for success. The excellence of the display shown to the Lowell public is a high tribute to the supervisors and their assistants and it testifies to the patience of the children and to their formation of habits of industry. It also proves eloquently that the summer playground achievements in this city are extremely practical, for many of the things were meant for actual use as clothing or in the home. It was a fine thing for the children at the playgrounds that they used their time so well, and the teachers testified that the kiddies enjoyed it fully. The team work was productive of great results and there was a healthy rivalry to keep interest up until the end. The games and folk dances as demonstrated today also showed the value of organized play under proper supervision. Summer playgrounds are a boon to parents as well as children and they are deserving of a hearty public support.

SIGNS OF FALL

The red grows on the apple, the pear is growing mellow, and there is a familiar chill in the air. Predictions of a long summer to atone for the late spring have fallen flat and fall is here to stay for a few months. The intended trip to the beach has lost its attraction and the nature lover looks forward to mountain tramps or the lure of the open road where the invigorating air stirs the blood to activity and compels action. Soon the trees will put out little banners of red and yellow, the pumpkin will be ripe on the stalk and the smell of the grapes will fill the air. The orchards will be strewn with fulfilled promises of springtime, and a lonely note will creep into the evening breeze. It has been a strange year with an unusual spring, a rainy summer and topsy-turvey weather all through. Yet, who would want July weather now? We can easily forget the lost days of sunshine and welcome the rare days of autumn with their clear air and fragrant fruition. New England is always lovely, but it is loveliest in the days of early spring or the fall that leads us so gently into winter that we express little surprise at the first fall of the snow.

Platforms are only for campaign purposes. So are promises.

What have the assessors to say of the prices brought by some fine residences recently sold?

The reason some women haven't any sense of humor is because they used it all up when they selected a husband.

In Balaam's time it was considered a miracle for an ass to speak. But nowadays we hear so many of them speaking that we pay no attention to them.

Joe Hibbard's Catch

To those who now dispute the claim of Hon. Joseph I. Hibbard to the amateur deep-sea fishing championship of Lowell and vicinity, we say have a care, lest they be called upon to prove their claims. Mr. Hibbard strengthened his reputation as a fisherman considerably yesterday by catching one of the largest codfish seen around these parts in a long time, and it will probably be many years before any other local fisherman will have the good fortune to snare a larger member of the finny tribe.

"Joe" made the catch down in the waters near Swampscott, and while the good people of the pretty little seacoast town did not shower their praises on him as the Winthrop folks did on Henry F. Sullivan after he defeated Sam Richards in their recent swim, they nevertheless grouped around him and stared with wondering eyes at the monster cod lying on the sands at "Joe's" feet, and many were overheard to express wonderment as to how the prominent musician landed the catch without capsizing the boat.

Mr. Hibbard and two friends decided to go fishing only yesterday morning after a lengthy discussion in which the two friends wished to postpone the trip until today. But "Joe" was abdurate and set his mind to go in the afternoon, and his friends seeing that he could not be shaken from his purpose decided to go along with him. They entrained at the Middlesex street depot shortly after noon for Boston, whence they immediately set out for Swampscott. There a small fishing smack was hired and "Joe" and his two companions prepared to be on the lookout for all denizens of the sea. Lines were cast by the three and for the first hour they fished without nary a sign of a bite. After waiting a while longer the two companions pulled their lines out of the water in disgust and sat back in the boat to enjoy the sea breezes, when, all of a sudden they felt a sudden start, and looking around they beheld "Joe" half way over the side of the craft holding onto his line for dear life. They immediately went to his side, but "Joe" would have none of their assistance, and in less time than it takes to tell it he pulled in his line with a 65 pound codfish dangling at the end of the hook. Of course, the ex-legislator was elated over his good fortune and his companions were profuse in their congratulations. Fishing was all over for the afternoon for the three and the boat was at once started for Swampscott, where the big cod was viewed by a large number of people. Soon afterward "Joe" had the fish crated and sent to Lowell and it is now on exhibition in a Central street fish store. Mr. Hibbard and his friends arrived in this city late last evening, and today Mr. Hibbard was met by a number of friends and congratulated on his remarkable catch. "Harry Gonzales" will please take notice.

FITZ REPLIES TO FOSS

DECLARES CHARGES UNTRUE—INTENDS TO TAKE MATTER TO COURT

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—"Gov. Foss' statement that I urged the appointment of Dennis D. Driscoll as chairman of the prison commission with the assurance that, if the appointment were made, a strike at each of the three plants would be called off, is not true. The story is a pure invention put out by the ex-governor to attract notice to his campaign."

So begins a statement by ex-Mayor Fitzgerald, which is his contribution to the Foss-Driscoll controversy.

In the strike in question, in the summer of 1913, Mr. Fitzgerald says that all he did was to call the attention of the state board of arbitration to the matter and to ask Mr. Foss to join him in the request for intervention. "I told him," he says, "that he had a splendid chance as governor and employer both to vindicate the principle of arbitration, but he was obdurate."

"I never knew Mr. Driscoll to have any connection with the matter directly or indirectly," Mr. Fitzgerald continues. "Those who represented the Foss workers comprised representatives of the machinists, metal workers, metal polishers, blacksmiths and pattern-makers. These men were the national organizers and came from different parts of the country, and the story is absurd on its face that these men, representing the interests they did, would become a party to an agreement to abandon the strike in order to give Mr. Driscoll a job.

"Gov. Foss underestimates the intelligence of the ordinary citizen if he believes that these men would or could abandon their positions in an important strike like this, which was heralded all over the country, in order to give a job to another labor leader.

"I intend to push this matter to a finish; it is time that Gov. Foss should be shown up in his true light and it is my intention to expose him in the courts of the commonwealth so that the people may get a proper angle on him.

"He made the same charge against James Moriarty, head of the Metal Trades' union, that he has made against Mr. Driscoll in the midst of a campaign, and then after the campaign was over withdrew the charges publicly and settled with Mr. Moriarty's lawyer. This is a matter of court record, which I want the people of Massachusetts to know, so that his recent statement put out for political purposes may have the proper weight attached to it.

"He is using prohibition as he used both the democratic and republican parties—for his own purposes—and would abandon it as quickly as he did both of the other parties if it suited his purpose.

"He had a splendid opportunity as governor of the commonwealth to advance the cause of temperance, but he failed to do it. The liquor interests were as much in evidence in politics in those days as they are now, yet he did not hesitate to take advantage of their support.

"Personally, I would be glad if liquor could be wiped out of existence, but I do not believe that it can be effected by prohibition. While mayor of Boston I was careful in my personal habits to give every encouragement to temperance. I preached it and practiced it; at the same time I was willing that my fellow citizens should enjoy their personal liberties in a manner consistent with the good of the community.

"For this reason I am a believer in local option. Prohibition does not prohibit in Maine, where the enforcement of the law has been a standing joke for 50 years; neither does it seem to develop decent government in Georgia, where prohibition is the law, as the Frank case showed.

"As an evidence of the above I want to relate a little incident that shows the character of the man. One night after a democratic rally in Attleboro at which both Mr. Foss and myself spoke, we were invited to a little lunch given by the democratic town committee. Both ginger ale and beer were served. We were both asked what we would have. I said that I would have a glass of ginger ale. Gov. Foss said that he would take a bottle of beer and to my intense disgust without even waiting for a glass he put the bottle of beer to his head and drank its contents.

"He thinks there is a chance of prohibition sweeping the country and he is playing for the prohibition nomination for president in 1916."

FIFIELD ESTATE IS SOLD

FINE DWELLING ON MIDDLESEX STREET SOLD FOR $4500—OTHER LOTS

The estate of the late George W. Fifield on Middlesex street, corner of Stevens, was sold at public auction yesterday afternoon Mr. E. B. Conant of J. E. Conant & Co. The price for which the residence was sold furnished another instance of the depreciation worked in that district by the power house, a fact noted also in the recent sale of the Lawyer Bent dwelling. The property was sold in lots as advertised without limit or reserve to bona fide bidders as follows:

Lot one on Middlesex street at the corner of Canton street comprising the house, the stable and 22,433 square feet of land to E. Greenberg for $1500; Lot five on Stevens street comprising a two and one-half story building 33 x29 feet, with two story annex 20x20 feet and 10,566 square feet of land to R. C. Bartlett for 20c a square foot or $2172.40; Lot four at the corner of Stevens comprising $750 square feet of land to Oscar Brown for 8c a square foot or $702.40; Lot two on Middlesex street comprising 6500 square feet of land to Herman H. Bachmann for 7c a square foot or $455; Lot three on Middlesex street comprising 6500 square feet of land to R Wood for 7 1-2c a square foot or $487.50; Lot six on Stevens street, Lot seven and Lot eight on Canton street comprising the greenhouse buildings and 22,573 square feet of land to Samuel Scott for 7 1-2c a square foot or $1692.96; Lot nine and Lot ten on Lawton street at the corner of Spring avenue comprising 11,254 square feet of land to Arthur Genest for 2c a square foot or $225.08; Lot eleven on Middlesex street just above Webber street comprising 129,445 square feet of land to Albert Stopherd, North Chelmsford, for 1 1-2c a square foot or $1937.50; Lot twelve on Princeton boulevard at the corner of Baldwin street comprising 98,580 square feet of land to Albert Smith, Belmont New Hampshire, for about 3-5c a square foot or $525; Lot thirteen on Quebec street (Ayer's City) comprising 4578 square feet of land to John Brady for 1-2c a square foot or $23.94; each parcel was sold subject to its pro rata share of the 1914 and 1915 taxes; the total aggregate of the sale including the taxes is $14,143.15. On Wednesday of next week the four properties belonging to the Fifield estate upon the Revere beach reservation at Revere are to be sold. Never was a public sale in Lowell better attended than yesterday at the Fifield residential estate. The sale took place upon the lawn at the west side of the house and there were at least one hundred fifty men and women present, and certainly in connection with the beautiful lawn, the foliage, and the grand shade trees it took on the appearance of a neighborhood family fete brought about, possibly, by a very much talked about public sale. Nevertheless with all this attention, Messrs. J. E. Conant & Co., felt after the sale was completed that the properties were justly and favorably entitled to more considerate bidding and that better prices should have been realized.

SLEEPYTIME TALES

FRED'S "CHICKENS"

Once upon a time Fred went early in the summer to stay with his grandparents. They lived in the country on a very large farm and Fred had been wishing his mother would tell him it was time to go and was delighted when she took him there.

The next day Fred went with his grandfather all over the farm and saw all the cows, pigs and chickens. "I wish I could have some chickens all my own," said Fred. "Well, I guess you can," answered his grandfather, "but you must look out for old Betty, the mother hen, and feed her and care for the chickens when they are hatched."

"I will if I can only have the chickens," said Fred. So his grandfather gave him thirteen fine brown eggs and showed him where to make a nest. Fred said he had heard that thirteen was an unlucky number and asked for one more egg, which his grandfather gave him with a laugh at his superstition, and told him he should expect too see thirteen chickens hatched just the same.

Fred made a fine nest and old Betty hopped on it as though she was very glad to sit down. Each day Fred brought a dish of dainty things for his hen and she seemed to enjoy the extra attention she was getting. At last, one day Fred went to the nest and there were thirteen of the cutest, fluffiest little chicks you ever saw and old Betty was looking as much as to say: "Look, aren't they pretty?"

A few days after that grandfather said it was time to move them to a coop, so they both took some of the chicks and put them in a nice house under the trees. When grandfather took up the first chick he looked at it quite a while and then burst out laughing. Fred asked what he was laughing at. "Ha, ha, I will tell you, Fred," he answered, "your chickens are ducks." "Well, I guess thirteen is an unlucky number after all," said Fred.

DECLINES AT OPENING

DEMORALIZATION OF FOREIGN EXCHANGE MARKET AGAIN REFLECTED

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The demoralization of the foreign exchange market, which threatened serious curtailment of war orders in this country, was again reflected in the heaviness of stocks at today's opening. Union Pacific, selling ex-dividend of 2 per cent, lost 2½ points, declining to 127¾, and one point losses were made by St. Paul, and Canadian Pacific. United States Steel was heaviest of the prominent industrials, yielding a fraction at the outset and soon falling 1¼ to 73¾. Republic Steel, Westinghouse, American Car and Anaconda and Tennessee Copper averaged a point under yesterday's close. These declines were foreshadowed in London, where the international list was lowered by 1 to 1½ points.

Conflicting conditions caused greater irregularity during the early session. There was some recovery from initial losses, Union Pacific and Steel pointing the way, but this was lost when exchange on London recorded an overnight break to 4.60, a decline of 5¼ cents from the previous low record. Later came a more vigorous rally on announcement that Germany had acceded in principle to this country's demands regarding her methods of submarine warfare. Railroad shares and some of the specialties rebounded 1 to 3 points from their low with many substantial gains over yesterday. Further encouragement was afforded by the excellent July earnings submitted by the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads.

Bonds were heavy.

Trading was quieter after mid-day with leading stocks fractionally below their best. Some specialties, however, made notable gains, particularly New York Air Brake, Studebaker and General Motors.

Spectacular gains in motors and allied specialties marked the later trading. The closing was irregular.

BOSTON MARKET

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—Slightly lower quotations were recorded in local mining shares during the first hours today. The selling movement was not extensive, and towards noon there was a rally. Zinc stocks were particularly weak.

BATTALION ANNIHILATED

TURKISH HEADQUARTERS REPORT ALLIED LOSSES IN DARDANELLES OVER 20,000

TURKISH HEADQUARTERS ON THE GALLIPOLI PENINSULA, Aug. 22, via Berlin and wireless to Tuckerton, N. J., Sept. 1.—It has been impossible to ascertain the total losses of the British in the Anafarta region, in the fighting which followed the landing of a fresh expeditionary force on August 6 and 7. The losses in dead on the whole Gallipoli front which the allies sustained as a result of the general offensive movement with the Anafarta landing exceed 20,000 men. Most of the bodies are still unburied. One battalion was annihilated.

Officers at the Turkish headquarters are of the opinion that the British have expended in the actions of the last two weeks nearly all the troops landed on August 6 and 7. The Turkish losses are not light, but they do not approach those of the British. The ground thus far occupied by the British is of little military value if an attack on the Dardanelles forts is their objective.

The Associated Press correspondent saw a score of British prisoners. The faces of the men showed the strain under which they had been. They complained of the quality and quantity of the food which they had received. They said that they had had only meat, preserves and biscuits. The water supply was poor and insufficient and the sanitary service was overtaxed by the numbers of the wounded, so that many sick soldiers were unattended. Some of them, the prisoners said, were abandoned and fell into the hands of the Turks.

From the stories of the prisoners it would appear that the great heat and the lack of sufficient food and good water is having a depressing effect on the British forces on the peninsula.

CARDINAL O'CONNELL

HIS EMINENCE CONGRATULATED ON EIGHTH ANNIVERSARY OF ELEVATION

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—Monday was the eighth anniversary of the accession of His Eminence William Cardinal O'Connell to the archbishopric of the diocese of Boston, succeeding the late Archbishop Williams, under whom for many years he had labored in the archdiocese.

Cardinal O'Connell spent the day quietly at his summer home in Duxbury. He received a few callers and many messages of congratulation from prelates and priests of the church, as well as prominent citizens with whom His Eminence has worked in the best interests of state and church.

Many of the messages extended felicitations with pledges of loyalty and assurances that the prayers of the senders had been offered for his continuance in good health.

Although known as one of the hardest working clergymen in the church, Cardinal O'Connell enjoys perfect health. Since being elevated to the cardinalate on Monday, Aug. 29, 1911, he has continued his former routine of church duties as archbishop.

In memory of the late Most Rev. John J. Williams, first archbishop of Boston diocese, who died eight years ago last night, a solemn high mass of requiem was sung in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross yesterday morning. The celebrant was the Rev. William B. Finigan, the cathedral choir rendering the musical accompaniment.

TO MEET WAR EXPENSES

PETROGRAD, Aug. 31—via London, Sept. 1, 7.55 a. m.—The finance committee of the duma presented a bill today extending the rights of the state bank to issue paper money. The committee report discussed the entire problem of meeting war expenses, stating that the sums needed were so large that all possible sources of revenue must be used—taxation, internal credit operations, an issue of paper money and foreign loans.

"For 1915," the report stated, "the estimated war expenses are 7,242,000,000 roubles, ($3,621,000,000) and other expenses, 2,847,000,000 roubles, making a total of over 10,000,000,000 roubles.

"The revenue from ordinary receipts is estimated at 2,706,000,000 roubles, while credit operations up to the present time have yielded 4,151,000,000 roubles, leaving over 3,000,000,000 roubles yet to be provided."

Minister of Finance Bark, supporting the report of the committee, said that in spite of exploitation of internal credit to a degree hitherto unprecedented, amounting to a total of over 3,000,000,000 roubles, Russia possesses immense reserves of savings of which the government intends soon to make use. The government is increasing the number of savings banks, simplifying and facilitating their use by the people.

Erected at Freeport, Me., to Commemorate Meeting Held to Separate Maine From Massachusetts

FREEPORT, Me., Sept. 1.—A bronze tablet, placed on the Cushing house by the Maine Daughters of the American Revolution, to commemorate the place where the commissioners met in 1820 and signed papers which separated Maine from Massachusetts, was unveiled today. The exercises were attended by members of that organization from all parts of the state.

STUCCO WORKERS STRIKE

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Sept. 1.—Twenty-five stucco workers employed at the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad new station went on strike today because their demands for an increase from $5.50 to $6 a day was refused. They also want a reduction of working hours from 44 to 40 a week, thereby obviating the necessity of working on Saturdays. The strike order came from the headquarters of the union in New York.

ESTABLISHED 1878 — LOWELL MASS. THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 2 1915 — PRICE ONE CENT

THE SPELLBINDER

In another column of The Sun today, an account will be found of last night's mass meeting so-called, held in the interest of a second term for Mayor Murphy.

It all brings to mind the happenings of two years ago when Mayor Murphy was conducting his first campaign for mayor.

In a paid advertisement which appeared November 30, 1913, His Honor over his own signature, had the following statement:

"If I am elected mayor I will make an honest effort to do my duty unhampered by any alliances, agreements or pledges, except those made openly to the public. I will hold the heads of my departments responsible for the duty imposed upon them and the laws will be enforced impartially with the aim of extending equal rights to all and special privileges to none. I WILL NOT BE A CANDIDATE FOR A SECOND TERM, because I realize that the one object of the present charter was to do away with the re-election of mayors and because I believe if unhampered with plans and labor necessary to bring about a continuation of two additional years in office, I can perform my duties to better advantage, and because I purpose not only to go into office free from any ties and personal obligations but I desire to remain so during my entire term. Under such conditions there should be no reason why, if elected, I cannot leave office with as much respect as I enter it, and this is my great ambition."

It will be noted that His Honor said "I will" instead of "I shall," thus emphasizing the promise and the advertisement printed the words: "I will not be a candidate for a second term" in larger type than the remainder of the article so as to bring it most forcibly to the notice of the readers.

On the evening of December 6, 1913, speaking at Broadway, Willie and Green streets, His Honor said: "I stand upon the platform of law and order, decency, equal rights for all and special privileges to none. If I am elected mayor next Tuesday I will serve one term and will not be a candidate for re-election. I believe that the framers of the charter intended that two years should be given to a chief executive to eliminate the expense of a campaign his second year. It did not intend that he should use his office to build up a political machine and perpetuate himself therein, by ties with interests detrimental to the welfare of the community."

About that time and before a meeting of French-Americans Mayor Murphy reiterated his statements about not being a candidate for a second term and it is alleged promised his support to Dr. Mignault as candidate for mayor, this fall.

Heard at City Hall

The story is going the rounds to the effect that the following conversation took place at city hall a few days ago:

"Hello, Tom, what are you doing up here?"

"I was just up to see John Cull to get one of these petitions asking the mayor to run again." And he produced the petition.

The Yorick Club's Position

The fact that a meeting at which the second term petitions of Mayor Murphy were discussed and launched was held at the Yorick club has given some people the false impression that the Yorick club is entering into politics. Such is by no means the case. It was a meeting of friends of Mayor Murphy, some of whom were members of the club and some of whom were not, and the club apartments were used simply as a meeting place. Some of those who attended made a hasty exit upon learning the object of the meeting.

Both Came Back

Dr R. J. Mignault, an avowed candidate for mayor and Mayor Murphy, the candidate by demand, both returned from Maine yesterday, the former from Beechwood and the latter from Kennebunk. Both arrived in time to attend last night's mass meeting, so-called, did they desire so to do. They did not return together. Dr. Mignault states, that to save his friends the expense and inconvenience of circulating petitions in his behalf, he will consider that they want him to run, and will be a candidate.

This Is Real Good

Says the Courier-Citizen:

"The mistake that the members of the first two governments under the new charter made was in considering that they had won a democratic victory. They ran city hall as though the democrats had elected them and were entitled to the plums. In the reaction that followed, they were tipped out of office."

"They thought that democrats were entitled to the plums." What did the new government and the present government with three republicans, a majority of the municipal council, do? The old government which was giving the plums to the democrats, removed Martin Conley, a democrat, and replaced him with Michael J. Dowd, another democrat. Then this incoming government of nominal democrats removed Dowd and put back Conley. Then it removed Superintendent of Streets Putnam, not a democrat but a good republican, and the people put him into a better job to show their disapproval of the action of the government of nominal democrats and republicans, outside of those two cases the same office-holders, democratic and republican alike, who were originally elected by the first government have been retained in office by the 11 to 10 government with its majority of republican members.

The School Board Meeting

For a genteel manner of applying what is popularly known as "strong arm" methods in carrying a political end as to the school board election in the case of Miss Lee at the close of primaries, The Sun does not object to holding an office that was never created, although Dr. Lambert has twice previously voted to re-elect her to that office and Messrs. Simpson and Caisse have each voted once for her re-election.

In 1912 a motion was put and carried to proceed to the election of a supervisor of primaries, and Miss Lee was elected. The following year a similar motion was put and carried and Miss Lee was re-elected, Dr. Lambert voting for her. In 1914 once more the motion was repeated and Miss Lee was elected, Dr. Lambert, Mr. Simpson and Mr. Caisse voting for Miss Lee. And now in 1915 these gentlemen discover that the office she is holding was never created. If that motion to elect a supervisor of primaries didn't create the job why did Dr. Lambert vote for Miss Lee for the position on two occasions and the other two members on one occasion each? Of course it is immaterial to Miss Lee whether she be re-elected if she be given an opportunity to do equally good work at equally good pay.

Kirk Street Primary

It is understood that the High school is to have still another annex this fall, as the Kirk street primary school with its two rooms made up mostly of children from the day nursery, is to be divided up so that the primary school children will occupy the room part of the day and the high school pupils during the other part of the day. Then the janitor between times must tote out the primary school desks which are too small for the high school pupils, at the close of one session, replacing them with larger desks for the high school pupils, and then at the close of the day, shift them around again so as to accommodate the kiddes in the morning. Meanwhile the Worthen street primary school only a few minutes' walk away has three or more empty rooms. Why not shift the Kirk street primary children to the Worthen street school and thus give them a whole day's schooling, while the high school pupils may have the benefit of a whole day's schooling in the Kirk street school?

Wilson vs. Hayden

Through the energy of Mr. Harold D. Wilson, of the Somerville News, who is contesting with County Treasurer Joseph O. Hayden for the republican nomination for county treasurer, this contest has become a matter of interest to the republicans of this end of the district. Mr. Wilson has proven himself to be a live wire. In a well-placarded auto he has scoured the county, particularly the northern end and now he is circulating broadcast numerous attractive posters calling attention to his candidacy. He went through Lowell yesterday morning not long after sunrise and judging from the early hour at which he arrived here one might be pardoned for assuming that he, too, had been trying to get first look at September Morn. He stopped for a few moments to discuss the situation with the writer and he said: "I am spending considerable time in this section of the county for I appreciate the fact that a large part of the voters of Middlesex county live in Lowell and vicinity. I am receiving good assurances of support from the republicans of Lowell and believe that I will get a good vote here."

Mr. Wilson's brief remark brings to mind the fact that for many years Lowell has not been on the county map, except as a place in which to get votes for the fellows from the lower end. The fact that Mr. Wilson is recognizing the upper end of the county may result in a reciprocal feeling on the part of the voters of this end.

Last year, to be sure, the Courier-Citizen did get about $250 worth of county printing, but that came after Mr. Robert F. Marden had been county commissioner for a time. But there are no Lowell people and there have not been employed in the office of the county treasurer, in fact Lowell has never received any recognition in county patronage, republicans or democrats, except that recorded this end of the woods by Sheriff Fairbairn.

Mr. Wilson's campaigning must cause County Treasurer Hayden much surprise and not a little worriment for, in the 20 or 30 years that Mr. Hayden has held the office of county treasurer rarely has he been obliged to contest for the nomination. It had become a sort of life job with him, the nominations being handed to him on a silver platter, as it were, should he considered the office and himself out of politics, for according to many well known republicans he has done nothing in years in the way of lending assistance in the battles of the party and this is one of the reasons why Mr. Wilson is meeting with so many assurances of support.

Mr. Wilson impressed upon the writer that he is not in combination with any other candidate but is looking out for himself, his statement being the result of certain things said by the Spellbinder recently, as the result of the fact that Mr. Wilson, representing Candidate Messer came to Lowell with him recently.

"A little Wilson—that's all," may prove to be a strong a dose for the venerable ex-treasurer. The caucuses will tell.

Political Platforms

The new name for the democrat who is going to vote the republican ticket in the coming caucuses and the republican who is going to vote the democratic ticket is the political pinch-hitter, for each goes to vote for the sole aim of making a hit for some particular candidate. Ward eight will have some 360 of them, while in the ward four-five representative district an effort is being made to get the republicans of that district to line up with the democrats on caucus day, in the interest of the different democratic candidates. There will be no general turn-over of republicans in wards four and five, however, on account of the several important contests on the state ticket. In ward eight the situation is different for the democrats in the language of the baseball coaches, "have nothing to wait for." The four candidates Rep. Fred O. Lewis, Freeman Hersey, Herbert C. Taft and John Lindsay are working an active campaign of the districts of the ward, for each realizes that the man who gets the democratic vote is going to win the nomination, and the nomination means an election, the democrats are not yet of sufficient numbers to win out in a ward contest with a candidate of their own, but they may be next year or two years hence surely, judging by the numbers in which they are settling in the Highlands. There are now some 500 democrats in ward eight. If the democrats had a few more votes undoubtedly they would vote for Ben. I was in the primaries in order to win against him on election day, for the fact that he is a candidate for a third term makes him weak in his own party, while certain matters in his record at the state house, will not get him anything in the vote line. Bill Shore is the democratic candidate and hence it is a good bet that he'll not receive many democratic votes, if any. Among the democrats who are discussing the situation, Mr. Lindsay appears to have the call, and he also stands well in his own party. Mr. Taft is probably the best known of all the four candidates as he has been before the public lately as agent of the Boston & Maine, and a member of the water board. Mr. Hersey is well known as a party worker and has a following of his own.

TWO WERE SENTENCED

VICIOUS ASSAULT UPON MAN WHO REFUSED MONEY TO TWO ASSAILANTS

Because they were refused money which they solicited to buy a drink, Gregg and Thomas Reay, brothers, attacked the man who had turned them away and beat him into unconsciousness in the gutter of Merrimack street, only a short distance from city hall, about 2 o'clock last Tuesday afternoon. There was no police officer around to stop the brutal assault and for several minutes, it is claimed, the two men pounded their human target and then disappeared. The persistence of a witness to the assault who followed the alleged assailants for over an hour in search of an officer, resulted in their appearance in police court this forenoon charged with assault and battery.

The two men were charged with assault and battery on a person "whose name is to the complainant unknown." Hardly had court adjourned, however, when a man claiming to be Michael O'Connell of Tyler street appeared at the station and said he was the victim in the case but feared an even more severe beating if he testified against the brothers. His eyes were blackened and his face was badly cut, showing that he was the recipient of numerous blows.

There was only one witness for the government. He testified that while in a building near the corner of Merrimack and Dutton streets about 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, he saw the two defendants accost a pedestrian and talk for a moment or two. The pedestrian then made gestures which signified he was refusing to do what they requested. The assault began, he said, with no one around to volunteer any assistance. One of the brothers, it is claimed, hit the victim four times, and when the latter started to offer a defense, it is asserted, he was tripped up, his head striking against the curbing when he fell.

With O'Connell lying in the gutter unconscious, said the witness, Thomas kneeled over him and pounded him unmercifully. The government's witness said he rushed from the building and when he reached the street the two men were hurrying away. They walked up Moody street near the Textile school, followed by the witness, but there was no officer around to arrest them. Finally the young man said he lost track of the defendants and returned to Merrimack street.

In the evening, he testified, he was approached by both Gregg and Thomas Reay, and warned that if he continued his interference in the case he would receive the same kind of licking that O'Connell got. An officer was later notified and Tuesday night arrested Gregg Reay, but the police could not locate his brother. Yesterday morning Thomas was seen sauntering towards the police station to learn his brother's fate and an officer was called to make the arrest.

Both men denied the assault today, claiming that the man assaulted should be present to corroborate the identification. Deputy Downey offered records of each of the defendants for various offences. Judge Pickman found them guilty and ordered each sentenced to two months in jail. They appealed.

Unlicensed Dog

Charged with having an unlicensed dog in his possession on August 29, John Barakas was haled into court and pleaded not guilty. Barakas said that when he took out a dog license last January he was informed that it was good for one year but it expired April 1. His case was continued until tomorrow in order that the city clerk's records could be inspected.

Six more drunken offenders were in court today, after a few had been eliminated by Probation Officer Slattery's system. Three were given suspended sentences to jail, a fourth was placed on probation and two men who have been drinking heavily of late were given short sentences in an effort to "sober them off."

LANE PLEADED GUILTY

Daniel Lane, the young man arrested in this city Tuesday night and taken to Lawrence yesterday morning pleaded guilty in the Lawrence district court yesterday to breaking and entering the home of Patrick J. Dorgan at 8 Green street and stealing $19.50 worth of jewelry, etc. He was held in the sum of $1000 for the grand jury. John Perrley, the man in company with Lane at the time of his arrest, was not held on the charge.

Fred C. Church carried the insurance on the building and stock of the Bon Marche store damaged by fire this morning.

A BILIOUS TONGUE

When your tongue is coated evenly, all over, with a whitish-yellow color and your breath is foul the chances are that you are bilious. If you also have indigestion, constipation headache and a general ill feeling, there is scarcely a doubt about it. Your liver needs attention.

Harsh cathartics which purge violently and then produce a reaction only aggravate the trouble. Gentle assistance is what nature needs to establish regular habits of health and Pinklets, the little pink laxative pills, free from harmful or habit-forming drugs meet the requirement most admirably.

If your druggist does not sell Pinklets they will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of 25 cents by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Write for booklet anyway.

CHARGE OF BLACKMAIL

SENSATIONAL TURN IN CAMPAIGN FOR ENFORCEMENT OF THE LIQUOR LAW IN ROCKLAND, ME.

ROCKLAND, Me., Sept. 2.—The campaign for the enforcement of the liquor law, which has been conducted in Camden's public square by Rev. H. S. Baker, a blind preacher from Lincolnville, took a sensational turn yesterday, when C. Fred Miller and George W. Miller, two of the leaders, were arraigned in Knox county municipal court on the charge of blackmail.

The complainants were James E. Maloney and E. E. Rokes, who testified that the Miller brothers offered to discontinue the campaign against the liquor interests if Messrs. Maloney and Rokes would pay them $300.

The alleged negotiations were conducted at Mr. Maloney's home Sunday night, and State Detective William H. Kalloch of Rockland was an unseen witness. The witnesses for the prosecution claim that the Miller brothers first offered to call off their street campaign upon payment of $200, and that the excuse given by the latter for raising the sum to $300 was that the minister might have an equal share.

The Millers offered no defence at yesterday's hearing. They told a reporter that they were asked to Mr. Maloney's house to discuss the liquor situation, but deny absolutely that there was any talk of money or compromise.

They were held in the sum of $500 each for the September term of court, Rev. C. F. Smith being one of their bondsmen. They began immediate injunction proceedings against James E. Maloney to restrain him from the sale of intoxicating liquors in the building which he owns and occupies. It was stated that similar proceedings will be brought against Mr. Rokes.

Hundreds have signed the petitions for enforcement and Camden citizens are greatly wrought up over the situation.

COLORS ARE NUMBERED

SCHEME TO MATCH A SAMPLE WITHOUT THE PRESENCE OF THE SAMPLE

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—American textile manufacturers have devised a scheme of numbering the colors of fabrics by which it will be possible to match a sample without the presence of the sample. This announcement was made at the convention of the New England Retail Milliners' association in session here. Colors are numbered from one to nine the fourth figure indicates the intensity of the tone. Thus 6-1-5-3 translated by a new color card means "turquoise blue," six being blue, one white, five green and three light.

DIVORCE FOR MRS. COWLES

SHE AND DOCTOR TO DIVIDE CUSTODY OF CHILDREN, ALTERNATING EACH SIX MONTHS

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 2.—Alleging that enforced association with persons suffering from nervous diseases had broken down her health, so that she lost 50 pounds in weight, and had also endangered her mental balance, Mrs. Florence Jaquith Cowles of Brookline, Mass., was yesterday granted an absolute divorce from Dr. Edward S. Cowles of this city, by Chief Justice Robert G. Pike of the New Hampshire superior court, sitting in special term in the Rockingham county courthouse in this city.

The agrement regarding the two children is that each shall have their custody six months.

An intimation, however, that the case is not ended was contained in a statement given out last night by Mrs. Cowles who declared that she will not consent that the little girls shall be kept near the "insane patients" of her husband, while they are in his charge.

Only One Allegation

"Conduct injurious to health" was the only allegation put forward by Mrs. Cowles, and the testimony offered to support it took the persons in the court, outside of counsel, somewhat by surprise.

THE EXCHANGE PROBLEM

LONDON PAPERS URGE PUBLIC TO RESTRICT PURCHASE OF IMPORTS—GOV'T. ATTACKED

LONDON, Sept. 2, 3.09 a. m.—Discussing the financial situation as between Great Britain and the United States, the Morning Post urges the public to restrict its purchases of imported goods.

The Times argues for the immediate despatch to New York of a very heavy gold shipment.

"There seems," says this newspaper, "some likelihood that some recent official statements as to announcements regarding remedial measures being premature have been misconstrued in New York. We can only repeat that no doubt about remedial measures need be entertained; but Rome was not built in a day, and while our representatives are getting to work we must have patience and bear the temporary discomfiture as best we may."

The Daily Mail attacks the government for "letting things slide" so long, and adds: "Things need never have come to this pass, but the whole question now will be arranged very soon, since the government has handed over the problem to real business men."

The government is urged by the Chronicle to make some official announcement regarding the steps being taken.

The Express says: "Important influences have been brought to bear to remedy the unsatisfactory state of the exchange problem. An official announcement no doubt, soon will be forthcoming."

Financial newspapers urge prompt action by the government. The Financier says it hears that the deliberations of the bankers' committee will take too much time, while "what is wanted is immediate, if only temporary, measures to arrest the fall. Authorities are agreed that a short-time loan is the best way out of the difficulty. Surely a small loan could be placed at once and increased later if necessary. Such a step would restore confidence."

The Financial Times declares that little relief can be expected from the proposed restriction of imports.

"In actual working," it says, "this method is slow and uncertain, and it must be remembered that the bulk of our ordinary imports from the United States consists of raw material and foodstuffs, the flow of which is undesirable to check."

American Exchange Gains

American exchange moved up 10 cents during the morning. The rapid fluctuations which marked this unusual advance were due principally to the large amount of stock brought out by yesterday's low level. The cable transfer rate was forced up to 4.62 before noon.

The shorts immediately covered and brought down the rate to 4.5560.

One large American exchange dealer said the recovery was due in part to the discounting of probabilities, it being expected that some official arrangement would be announced soon. At the same time a good deal of speculation is going on. The market was very erratic.

SIR HERBERT HOLT ARRIVES

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Sir Herbert Holt, president of the Royal Bank of Canada, a passenger on the Adriatic, arriving here from Liverpool, said that the members of the British financial commission who are coming to New York to effect a readjustment of the foreign exchange situation were to have sailed on the Adriatic, but changed their plans at the last minute. He added that he believed they would reach New York in the near future.

From another source it was learned that the commissioners, after cancelling their passage on the Adriatic, planned to sail for New York by way of Canada.

"I see no occasion for alarm in the United States over the sudden drop in foreign exchange, especially the English pound sterling," said Sir Herbert. "I feel confident that the matter will soon be adjusted."

ALLIED DELEGATES ARRIVING

PARIS, Sept. 2, 11.30 a. m.—The French and British delegates who are to go to New York to confer with American bankers on the abnormal exchange situation probably will propose that the American bankers advance sums sufficient to stabilize measurably the exchange market. It is understood that American securities will be offered as a guarantee and that the proceeds of the loan will be used in settlement of bills for American exports now due.

STERLING CLIMBS UP LADDER

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The English pound sterling climbed up the ladder of ascending values as rapidly and dramatically as it had plunged downward during the week. Within the first two hours of trading it perched on a rung only one below the point where it rested at the close of the market last Saturday.

The swift upward course was interpreted as meaning that Great Britain had awakened to the extreme gravity of the situation and that London bankers had determined that sterling should no longer be the football of finance in relations beween the countries.

A 10 cent advance in rates at the opening of the market today was the result.

The values of other foreign moneys joined the pound sterling on its way to higher levels.

They have seized many documents and the magistrate who is conducting the investigation declares that these papers fully establish the truth of the charges.

PARIS, Sept. 2, 5 a. m.—Despatches from the Portuguese frontier says the Journal's Madrid correspondent, states that persons arrested as the result of the insurrectionary movement at Braga have been taken to Oporto, where they will be court martialled.

At Caxias insurgents tried to storm the barracks, but were repulsed by rifle fire.

Although the government professes to attach no importance to the revolutionary movement, every precaution has been taken, and it has been announced that anyone approaching the barracks or military buildings, night or day, will be shot at sight.

4 TURKISH WARSHIPS SUNK BY THE BRITISH

Germans Take Outer Forts of Grodno — Berlin Reports Two British Warships Sunk

British submarines have torpedoed four Turkish transports. Word of this feat came from Paris today.

British Steamer Sunk

The British steamer Savona, 1180 tons, has been sunk in the zone of German submarine operations and three members of her crew are missing.

Russian Success in Galicia

Latest official reports from Petrograd dwell on the Russian success in Galicia and record the capture of more than 7000 prisoners. German reports have indicated that the Teutonic advance has been resumed in this region after a temporary check.

Allied Gains in Dardanelles

Recent claims by the Turkish war office of victories over the Dardanelles expeditionary forces with heavy losses to the latter have been followed by a British official statement reporting the capture of an important tactical point in the Anafarta region and gains along the front occupied by the Australasians.

Two British Warships Sunk

The German admiralty, prompted by the report of a British denial, reiterates its declaration that a small British cruiser and a British torpedo boat were surprised and sunk by a German torpedo boat flotilla off the Jutland coast on Aug. 17. The cruiser is now stated to be of the Aurora class. Vessels of this class displace 3600 tons.

The Russian fortress of Grodno seems to be nearing its fall. Today army headquarters at Berlin announced that the outer forts had been taken.

Only artillery engagments and bomb fighting are reported from the front in France.

France and Egland to Aid Russia

Berlin has reports from Paris that France and England stand ready to assist Russia by detailing expert military strategists to the headquarters of Grand Duke Nicholas.

BRITISH PUBLIC CHEERED BY NEWS OF FIGHTING IN DARDANELLES

LONDON, Sept. 2, 11.50 a. m.—The British public has been greatly cheered by the version of the recently heavy fighting at the Dardanelles contained in the official report received last night from Gen. Ian Hamilton, the British commander-in-chief. This report has been awaited eagerly, in view of the assertions of Constantinople that the allies had been repulsed with heavy losses.

Sir Ian claims that his forces operating on the northern section of the line captured an important tactical point commanding the Buvuk Anafarta valley to the east and north as well as making an appreciable gain atong the Australasian front.

If the British colonists now dominate Anafarta their guns should have a clear field to fire upon one of the main Turkish supply roads leading toward Achi Baba. The Turks, however, have an alternative line of communication with this part of their front. Constantinople has admitted no advance on the part of the allies.

Russian Success Near Vilna

The Russians are developing unexpected strength in the north, where, they state, they are not only holding Field Marshal von Hindenburg but have gained a local success near Vilna. Various changes have been made in the Russian command, the most important being the return of General Russky to the leadership of the northern army.

Von Tirpitz to Take Vacation

Berlin wireless reports, which usually are a day or two in advance of the Petrograd official communications, announce a reversal in the Galician situation as the result of a victorious assault on the Russians north of Zborow.

The English press is keenly interested in the German promise of a change of tactics in submarine warfare and attaches considerable significance to the news that Admiral von Tirpitz is to have a vacation. This is interpreted as indicating that Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg has won a definite victory over his naval colleague in the German cabinet.

LYNN WON FIRST

Lowell Failed to Reach Third Base in Entire Game—Score 6 to 0

A good sized crowd attended this afternoon's double header at Spalding park with Lynn as the opponents of the home club. A double header being on the program ,the first game was called at 2 o'clock. Owing to the non arrival of Umpire Bransfield the game started with Pitcher Williams of the Lowell team umpiring at the bat and Pitcher McCabe of Lynn officiating at the bases. White, Lowell's third baseman, was out of the lineup on account of an injured knee and Snubber Greenhalge played third.

The lineup was as follows:

Lowell	Lynn
Moulton, 2b	lf, Porter
Parker, lf	2b, Gleason
Munn, 1b	1b, Halstein
Barrows, cf	cf, Orcutt
Dee, ss	c, Haight
Stimpson, rf	rf, Holmes
Greenhalge, 3b	3b, Ordway
Ahearn, c	ss, Lynch
Green, p	p, Williams

First Inning

Porter, Lynn's fast man, opened the game by striking out. Gleason hit to Snubber and was thrown out at first. Halstein hit down the first base line and was put out at first, Green covering the bag.

Lowell's half was equally brief. Moulton sent a grounder to Gleason and went out at first. Parker got a scratch hit in the infield but a moment later was nailed trying to steal second. Munn hit to Williams and died at first.

Score: Lowell 0, Lynn 0.

Second Inning

Only three men came up for Lynn in the second. Orcutt got first on Dee's fumble of his grounder. Haight struck out and Orcutt stole second on the third strike. He thought he had some speed and tried to steal third, but was thrown out. Holmes hit a hot grounder to Moulton and he was out.

Barrows popped a foul fly to Haight. Dee hit to Aubrey and was thrown out at first. Stimpson hit to second base and was thrown out on a pretty play.

Score: Lowell 0, Lynn 0.

Third Inning

In the third it was one, two, three again for Lynn. Ordway sent a grounder to Dee and "Shorty" threw him out. Lynch hit to Moulton and was the second man out. Williams sent a high foul fly which Ahearn caught without moving out his tracks.

Greenhalge hit to Gleason and went out at first. Ahearn was the first man to hit the ball out of the infield but it didn't get him anything for Porter caught it. Green foul flied to Ordway.

Score: Lowell 0, Lynn 0.

Fourth Inning

In the fourth, Green walked Porter and Gleason in succession and then he tightened up and the visitors couldn't score. Porter, after walking, stole second and then Gleason also walked. Halstein was retired on a fly to Stimpson who held Porter on second by a beautiful throw. Orcutt struck out. Porter attempted to steal third and was thrown out.

Lowell's half was quick. Moulton hit a grounder to Lynch and was thrown out. Parker hit across third base for his second single the only man thus far to reach first base safely. A double play then followed, retiring the side. Munn hit to Gleason who tagged Parker and then threw to first for a double play.

Score: Lowell 0, Lynn 0.

Fifth Inning

Lynn scored in the fifth. Haight, the first man up, hit over Parker's head for a three-bagger and he scored on Holmes' fly to Stimpson. Ordway hit a line drive to Greenhalge and was out. Lynch struck out.

Barrows got a base on balls. Dee bunted to Halstein and Barrows was thrown out at second. Stimpson hit to Gleason and Dee was forced at second. Stimpson tried to steal and was thrown out.

Score: Lynn 1, Lowell 0.

Sixth Inning

Williams opened the sixth with a grounder to Dee and went out at first. Porter hit a long grounder to Dee and was out. Parker misjudged Gleason's fly to left field and the latter landed safe at second. The play did no harm for Halstein was out at first on his grounder.

There were only four balls pitched in Lowell's half of the sixth. Lynch took care of Greenhalge's hounder. Ahearn flied out to Orcutt and Green hit to Williams and went out at first.

Score: Lowell 0, Lynn 1.

Seventh Inning

Lynn got two hits in succession off Green in the seventh but didn't score because Green got two strike outs in succession off Lynn. Orcutt opened with agrounder to Dee and went out at first, Haight and Holmes each singled. Then Paddy struck out Ordway and Lynch.

Lowell got as far as escond in the seventh but couldn't score. Moulton hit to short left field for a single. Parker fanned. Munn was hit by a pitched ball, advancing Allie to second. Barrows hit to Williams forcing Moulton at third. Dee hit to Lynch, forcing Barrows at second.

Halstein singled to right and brought Gleason home. Then Orcutt came along with a three bagger and Halstein crossed the plate. Haight went out on a grounder to Dee but Orcutt scored on the play. Holmes died out to Moulton.

In Lowell's half Stimpson hit to Lynch and reached first on Mike's bad throw. Greenhalge hit a fine drive to Ordway who, catching it, threw to first for a double play, Stimpson being off the bag. Ahearn hit to the left field fence for what looked like a two bagger but he had difficulty in reaching first base as he waited to see whether or not the ball went foul. Green struck out.

Score: Lowell 0, Lynn 5.

Ninth Inning

Lynn added another run in the ninth. Ordway reached first on four bad balls and stole second. Lynch scored him with a single to right field but caught off first base on the return of the ball. Williams struck out. Porter beat out a pretty bunt and stole second. Gleason foul flied to Greenhalge.

In the ninth, Moulton hit to Williams and died at first. Parker hit to the centre field fence and only got two bases on the hit on account of Porter's fast fielding. Munn struck out. Barrows flied to Orcutt. Lowell failed to reach third base in the entire game.

ARABIC SURVIVOR HERE HE TELLS OF HIS RESCUE

Seems Still Dazed by His Experience—Jumped Without Life Belt and Was Picked Up by Life Boat

Timothy Harrington, a native of Bantry, Co. Cork, Ireland, who at present is visiting at the home of his friends, Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan, 40 Second street, was on the liner Arabic sunk by a German submarine, Thursday, August 19, and he will never forget the terrible experience, which he cannot refer to yet without a shudder. Mr. Harrington is a naturalized American citizen and was returning from a visit to his home in Ireland when the ill-fated Arabic went down.

When seen this morning by a Sun representative, he was most reluctant to speak of his experience, declaring that instead of recalling it he was trying hard to forget it. Gradually however, he unfolded the story, which is one of the most thrilling heard since the submarine raids went into effect. Owing to the strict censorship surrounding the sinking of the Arabic and the air of mystery relating to all the particulars, Mr. Harington's recital is of great imporance and very unusual interest. Among other things, he testifies that many passengers saw the fatal torpedo approach and that the Arabic was accompanied by a patrol boat which, however, was not near at the time of the attack. He saw nothing of the freighter Dunsley, which was said to have been sunk immediately before and to have been seen by passengers and crew. He declares that the deed was done without the slightest warning, and he knows to his cost that it was done thoroughly and all too well.

Here is his story, in part:

On Thursday morning, Aug. 19, I went on deck after breakfast and joined a group of friends who were enjoying the breeze and the beautiful view. It was a calm, clear day and there was scarcely a ripple on the water. All the previous day there had been talk of submarines and every preparation had been made. Lifeboats had been hung out ready for the worst, lifebelts had been hung by each bunk and the crew had been drilled to meet any emergency. Passengers and crew had talked it over, and though there was some anxiety, nobody really seemed to expect trouble.

I was looking towards the Irish coast when all at once I heard some excited orders being given. Looking over the water, I saw something approaching like a buoy, though it was a few miles away. It did not come very quickly and behind it there was a long line of white foam. The lookout had sighted it also, about six miles away where the submarine must have been—though the submarine itself was not seen.

Some of the passengers near me did not seem to realize what was coming but I knew only too well. All at once it loomed up large and struck amidships, squarely in the engine room. The explosion seemed louder than thunder, and I was deaf for over ten minutes. It suddenly flashed on all aboard that we were torpedoed, and the excitement was something terrible.

You can have no idea of the scenes that took place while the poor old ship remained afloat, and she sank in eight minutes. Many jumped overboard, and there would have been great loss of life only for Captain Finch and the crew who tried to keep order.

Many of the stokers and firemen were killed instantly when the terrible torpedo crashed into the engine room, tearing a great hole in the bottom. A friend of mine from Bantry, a fellow named McCarthy, was killed in the engine room by the explosion.

Crew Was Prepared

It was well that the crew was prepared, and there was fine order. All the seamen had been drilled beforehand and knew just what to do. The boats were cleared in a jiffy, and the 400 passengers were got away, though there were a great many narrow escapes. Not all had got free when the Arabic commenced to sink, and for a while afterwards the water was full of men, women and children. The noise was awful, scores in the boats adding their cries to the wails of those in the water who were calling for aid.

When I felt the vessel go down, I did not bother about a lifeboat. Being a good swimmer I did not put on a life belt but dived from the deck and struck out from the vessel. When a short distance away I looked back and saw the big hulk of the poor Arabic go down smooth and easy. There was no wreckage and she did not last long. All I saved was the suit on my back, but I was glad to have saved my life.

I wish I could forget the scene in the water, after she had disappeared.

I saw no dead bodies, but it seemed as though a great many would be drowned. The excitement was awful as the boats went in and out picking up the survivors. It seemed a long time till I was picked up though it was really only a short time. I don't know just how long. In the dive I hurt my leg and it is still pretty sore. I would surely have been drowned only that I was able to swim.

The lifeboat that picked me up with three others put into Queenstown, where everything possible was done for us by the people and the White Star company. We soon learned that 44 had been lost, two of them American citizens. We were sent to Liverpool at the expense of the company, and as I was most anxious to return to America I took the first chance and returned on a freight ship that arrived last Saturday. There 10 of us, all of whom were survivors of the Arabic."

Asked if the Arabic had changed her course or if she was accompanied by destroyers, Mr. Harrington said: "From the time we left Liverpool until she sank, there was a patrol boat in sight, though I did not see her as the Arabic went down. She was a gunboat with four mounted guns, and was able to make good speed. The passengers were glad to see this guard but it was the opinion of the crew that the Germans could get any vessel they would lay for."

In conclusion, Mr. Harrington said: "I don't want to talk about it; it was too awful, and you cannot imagine what it was like unless you have been through it. Last night I was dreaming that I was on the Arabic. I thought she was sinking and that I was swimming away, and I remember how glad I was that I was getting clear of the vessel as she went down. Everything was as plain as when I saw it on August 19. The sight of the vessel disappearing was one never to be forgotten."

For some time to come Mr. Harrington will make his home in Lowell. He is very anxious to get work and to forget his awful experience.

HIRED BY MRS. MOHR TO KILL HER HUSBAND

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 2.—Accused by her alleged accomplices—three negroes—Elizabeth Tiffany Blair Mohr today was held without bail on the charge of having incited the murder of her husband, Dr. C. Franklin Mohr, a wealthy and well known physician of this city and Newport. The arraignment was at Warren.

The three male prisoners were charged with murder and were also held without bail. All four were locked up at Warren pending a hearing set for Sept. 16. The prisoners pleaded not guilty.

Mrs. Mohr was arrested this morning at the Mohr home in the exclusive Elmwood section of this city following the alleged confessions of the negroes who told the police that they had been hired by Mrs. Mohr to put her husband out of the way. She was brought to the police station where she was turned over to officers from Bristol county within which the killing was done Tuesday night. Accompanied by her counsel, Arthur Cushing, Mrs. Mohr was taken in an automobile to Warren, the county seat, passing on the way the scene of the murder. Another automobile carried her alleged accomplices.

Following her arraignment counsel sought the release of his client on bail, which was refused on the ground that the district court had no authority to accept bail on the charge made. Later it was agreed that the prisoner should be taken before Judge Brown in the superior court at Providence, who would be asked to entertain an application for bail. The party then returned to Providence and early this morning were waiting in the courthouse for the appearance of the judge.

Motives in the Case

The police have entertained two possible motives in the case—jealousy on the part of Mrs. Mohr toward Miss Emily G. Burger, the doctor's secretary, who was his companion on the automobile ride that ended in his

CLOSE OF PLAYGROUNDS

Public approval of the playground system was clearly manifested this afternoon when over 10,000 people gathered on the South common to witness the closing exercises and exhibition of the children of the system which embraces seven large playgrounds.

The scene presented was a very pretty one and the vast amphitheatre on which the children went through the various events never appeared more beautiful. Credit for the excellent arrangements for the event should be given to John W. Kernan, superintendent of parks and his competent assistants.

All the events with the exception of the girls' baseball game and the tub race were held on the baseball diamond which was wired off for the occasion by employes of the police department. The high verdant banks on either side gave ample room for the parents and friends of the children to witness the various

BATTLE OF BUSINESS

Business is an unending battle where the blade of purpose is forever drawn, and, like the army, business has its captains, generals, lieutenants and soldiers, in which efficiency and organization are the main factors. Everybody must be on the job, ready for the day's work, equal to the fullest requirements of assigned duties, full of resolve and ambition to make the day a real success. Help want to be encouraged, want to be enthused and appreciated; for only then can you get the best results. And it is results that count.

TWO MORE BODIES FOUND

HONOLULU, Sept. 2.—Two more bodies were found late yesterday by the men engaged in clearing the hull of submarine F-4, and one of them was believed by Lieut. Kirby B. Crittenden, member of the naval board of inquiry, to be the remains of either Alfred Ede, who was commander of the diver, or of Ensign Timothy A. Parker.

An officer's cap found near one of the bodies in the after part of the battery compartment led to the belief that one of the bodies was that of an officer. The insignia on the cap was gone.

A small notebook, with much of its contents illegible, was found, but there was nothing in it that would clear the mystery of the vessel's sinking. It contained records of the submarine's battery, according to Lieut. Crittenden.

Fresh air has been forced into the forward compartment of the submarine to facilitate work there, but this compartment has not yet been entered in the search for bodies of the 22 men who went down in the vessel March 25 in Honolulu bay.

None of the bodies has been identified except that of George T. Ashcroft of Los Angeles, gunner's mate, found yesterday.

COST OF CATTLE TICK

CHIEF OF FEDERAL BUREAU ESTIMATES COST TO UNITED STATES AS $90,000,000

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—The cattle tick cost the United States approximately $90,000,000 during the past year, according to estimates by Dr. A. D. Melvin, chief of the federal bureau of animal industry today. This includes destruction of the cattle, decreases in value of hides and in production of milk, etc.

A circular issued by Secretary Houston advises all stock interests that the eradication of the tick is essential to the development of a sound agricultural system in the south.

FORCED TO SHOOT BULL

NEW SALEM, Sept. 2.—T. J. Haskell of North New Salem was viciously attacked yesterday by his three-year-old 1500-pound Holstein bull and seriously injured.

While Mr. Haskell was leading the bull to water, about 60 feet from the barn, the animal trampled him and threw him roughly about in spite of the fact that he succeeded in catching hold of the ring in the animal's nose. Mr. Haskell finally crawled under bars leading into a lane, but the bull rushed through these, breaking three heavy timbers, and began tossing him around again.

Mr. Haskell was finally thrown behind a pear tree, which he succeeded in climbing. His middle finger was broken and badly crushed, while nearly all his clothing was stripped off.

Mrs. Haskell, powerless to do anything, saw the attack and ran to the home of Charles Rawson, nearby. Mr. Rawson quickly returned with a gun and was compelled to shoot the bull four times before he fell to the ground.

Mr. Haskell collapsed soon afterward and is now in a serious condition.

Mr. Haskell raised the bull, had trained it to do work about the farm and could drive it with reins. Practically all the heavy drawing about the farm was done by the animal, and the Haskell family had become quite attached to it.

Until yesterday the animal had always been gentle.

CAPT. THOMPSON KILLED

EXPRESS STRUCK AUTO ON CROSSING—ONE WOMAN DYING, TWO OTHERS INJURED

THOMASTON, Me., Sept. 2.—Capt. N. Webb Thompson, a wealthy, retired sea captain of Friendship, was killed, Miss Verne Marsh, his housekeeper, was critically injured and two women named Morse were slightly hurt today when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Maine Central express train here.

Capt. Thompson was driving his automobile to Rockland. When he reached a railroad crossing in the outskirts of this town, his engine became stalled, as near as could be learned, while he was attempting to cross in front of the New York express, bound to Rockland.

The car stopped on the crossing and was struck by the train before the four occupants could get out.

Capt. Thompson was killed outright. Miss Marsh, who is about 22 years of age, was thrown beneath the train, and both limbs were amputated, one at the ankle and the other at the knee. She was taken to the Knox hospital in Rockland, where her condition was reported as critical. The other two women were able to walk to a nearby house, where it was found their injuries were not of a serious nature.

Capt. Thompson, who was 69, made many foreign voyages before he retired from the sea a number of years ago, and had since traveled extensively in foreign lands.

Medical Examiner G. L. Crockett began an investigation of the accident.

the civil session of the superior court to open in this city on the second Monday in September. Commissioner Morse was detailed to draw the jurors and the following names were drawn:

Chester F. Smith, 250 Foster street, traveling man.

John Bissonnette, 17 Mt. Washington street, painter.

William G. McIntire, 101 Norcross street, clerk.

Frank M. Brogan, 88 Mt. Washington street, insurance.

Hospital Site

The council unanimously voted to rescind their vote selecting the Seventh avenue land for a contagious hospital site, and it was also voted to instruct the city solicitor to draw an order to seize a certain position of the so-called Thomas Varnum land in Varnum avenue for an isolation hospital site, and the city engineer was also instructed to survey the said land and to report not later than Sept. 15.

Petitions

The following petitions for garage and gasoline licenses were read and referred and a hearing ordered for September 20: Herbert C. Merrill, 157 Nesmith; Anna L. Viau, 362 Hildreth; Eva T. Parker, 360 Pine; Harry S. Duncan, 23 Putnam avenue; Alexis D. Sargent, 29 Hanks; Clarence A. Bowen, Belmont avenue; Willis E. Morse, 96 Wentworth avenue.

The Newton Mfg. Co. and R. B. Philip petitioned for licenses to keep and store gunpowder and the petitions were referred. The petition of Francis S. Varley for permit for the removal of a building from Fanell to Carolin street was referred. Rice & Co. filed claims for damage caused by a sewer overflow; Gertrude Watson filed claims for damage to an automobile, and both were referred to the city solicitor.

Chelmsford St. Bridge

A communication was received from the county commissioners stating there will be a hearing before the superior court on the first Monday in October for the purpose of appointing a commission for the rebuilding of the Chelmsford street bridge. The mayor said he believed a Lowell man should be appointed on the commission and it was voted to recommend the said appointment, and to instruct the city solicitor to attend the hearing.

M. W. Libby was appointed a surveyor of lumber.

Commissioner Morse asked permission to file a requisition with the purchasing agent for a car load of No. 1 white clipped oats for the street department and it was so voted.

An order for the laying of a sewer in Farnham street, 271 feet in length at a cost of $1,112 was read. The order was laid over till the next meeting.

The Lowell Waste company petitioned for permission to attach wires to the poles of the Bay State Street Railway company and the Lowell Electric corporation in Gorham street, and the petition was referred to the city solicitor.

The Bay State company petitioned for permission to relocate its tracks at the junction of Rogers and Nesmith streets, and it was so voted.

Memorial Building

The contracts for the repair of the Memorial building were approved as follows: Carpenter work, Alway & Meloy, $18,900; plumbing, Patrick F. Welch, $989.99; plastering and masonry, Mathies F. Connor, $1691, and electrical work, L. A. Derby & Co., $2870.50.

For the oiling and watering of streets, assessments amounting to $25,469 were presented and approved.

An order to authorize the city solicitor to instruct the Boston & Maine railroad to reconstruct the Chelmsford street bridge was read and adopted.

Daniel F. Sullivan and Michael F. Conroy petitioned for permission to construct and maintain a bulkhead in Agawam street. The city solicitor said the petitioners cannot build a bulkhead without permission from the city, because in so doing they will obstruct the sidewalk, and he said he believes the petitioners should be requested to furnish bonds to indemnify the city in case of accidents. Commissioner Morse suggested the petitioners be given a hearing, but Mayor Murphy did not approve of the plan, saying all the council wants is to protect the city.

Mr. Hennessy referred to a case in Belvidere some years ago, where a man was injured through a defective bulkhead, and the city was liable. The mayor did not favor granting the permission, because he said he did not feel the council would be justified in taking such responsibility. It was voted to grant the permission providing a bond of indemnity satisfactory to the city solicitor be filed.

An order appropriating the sum of $400 for the payment of land owned by Charles F. and Joseph B. Varnum, which was seized by right of eminent domain. Solicitor Hennessy said this case is one which dates back to 1911, when Eleventh street was extended and land owned by Messrs. Varnum was seized. He said the award was about $320, but was not paid, and he said it will be cheaper for the council to pay a round sum of $400 rather than $320 and interest for four years. The order was adopted.

Jesse Viles and Elie Delisle were granted garage licenses.

A claim from Harold E. Durger for $29 for the spoiling of a suit of clothes by oil spread on the streets was read and referred. The claim for personal injuries of Etta Powers was also referred.

An invitation from the Trades & Labor council to review the parade and award the prizes on Labor day was read and accepted.

The commissioner of public safety was authorized to purchase a horse weighing not less than 1100 pounds for the health department.

The contract for the piping at the boulevard pumping station between the commissioner of fire and water works and the H. R. Barker Co. for $598, was approved.

The contracts with the Lowell Monument Co. for tablets in Memorial hall, and Arthur P. Knapp for the steel architectural work for the same building were not approved because the necessary bonds have not been filed. The contracts will be approved at the next meeting.

Commissioner Duncan presented an order for a temporary loan of $200,000 for the carrying on of the city's business in anticipation of taxes. Mr. Duncan said this loan is necessary on account of the law enacted in 1913, giving an extension of time for the payment of taxes. The order was adopted.

The mayor informed the council that the playground exercises would be held on the South common at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon and he said all members were invited to attend.

HIRED TO KILL DOCTOR

Continued

death and an alleged desire by the wife to obtain possession of her husband's considerable estate before the culmination of a counter suit brought by the physician in answer to a suit for separation instituted by Mrs. Mohr and now pending in the supreme court.

A few hours after her husband expired Mrs. Mohr made application in the municipal court for appointment as custodian for his property. This was granted.

Dr. Mohr maintained homes and offices both in this city and in Newport. His estate here is assessed at $70,000. Mrs. Mohr has said that their property in Newport was worth $75,000, and in addition the doctor had a small racing stable.

Miss Burger is 28 years of age and lives with her father, a saloon keeper, in a tenement above his place of business.

The Mohrs were married 12 years ago and have two children, Charles Franklin, aged 10, and Virginia Blair, seven years old. The doctor had been married before. The Mohrs were prominent in their somewhat limited social circle. Mrs. Mohr has been active in the Elmwood Woman's club and frequently was a patroness at dances. Three weeks ago she visited the doctor's family at McSwansville, Pa., being entertained by his two brothers, John D., and Augustus Mohr, and his sister, Mrs. Ella Hagan. It had then become known that a separation of the Mohrs was probable, but the wife is said to have insisted that she did not wish a divorce because of religious convictions.

Events moved rapidly from the time that George W. Healis, the doctor's chauffeur, drove up to the Rhode Island hospital with the senseless forms of the doctor and Miss Burger in the tonneau of the car Tuesday night. The doctor died the next forenoon and Mrs. Mohr with her two little children came to view the body. Miss Burger, who is recovering from her wounds, said that they had been fired upon from ambush.

ARREST OF MRS. MOHR

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 2.—Mrs. Elizabeth F. Mohr, wife of the physician who was fatally shot while on an automobile trip from this city to Newport on Tuesday night, was arrested today after three negroes had signed a written confession that Mrs. Mohr had hired them to kill the doctor. The negroes are charged with murder. They are George W. Healis, chauffeur, who was driving Dr. Mohr's car at the time of the shooting; Cecil Victor Brown, formerly employed as a hostler by Dr. Mohr, and Henry Spellman, a half-brother of Brown. No specific charge has been preferred against Mrs. Mohr, who vehemently denied the accusations which she characterized as absurd.

Healis had been detained by the police since the shooting as his account of the affair conflicted with that given by Miss Emily G. Burger, the doctor's assistant, who was in the automobile and who was also wounded.

$2000 to Kill Husband

Brown was taken into custody last night after Healis had told the police that he and the hostler had plotted to rob Dr. Mohr on the night of the shooting. The authorities did not believe the stories told by the negroes and Brown was subjected to a searching examination, during which he broke down and admitted that he was concerned in the shooting and that Mrs. Mohr had offered him $2000 to kill her husband.

Healis and Spellman, questioned separately, corroborated Brown's story and the arrest of Mrs. Mohr followed.

Brown at first denied that he had any connection with the affair. He said he passed over the Nayatt road where the shooting occurred, on a motorcycle, explaining that he was on his way to visit a friend at Riverside. Detectives who went to Riverside to investigate his story returned with Spellman in custody. Spellman said that there was a plot against Dr. Mohr and when Brown heard of Spellman's admission he made a detailed confession.

According to Brown's story, Mrs. Mohr proposed several weeks ago that he kill Dr. Mohr, promising to pay him $5000 nine days after the killing was accomplished. He said he asked Spellman to help him out and brought his half-brother up to talk the matter over with Mrs. Mohr. Healis was present at this interview by request of Mrs. Mohr, Brown said. Spellman was to receive $1000 and Brown and Healis $2000 each.

The arrangements for the shooting were carried out in detail, according to the confession. At a designated spot on the Nayatt road, Healis stalled the engine of the automobile and Brown and Spellman, who had approached on their motorcycles, crept through the bushes and fired at the occupants of the car. Brown said he shot Dr. Mohr and Spellman wounded Miss Burger. After the shooting Brown and Spellman went back to the motorcycles. They threw the revolvers into a brook near the Rhode Island Country club.

Told to Kill Both

Brown declared that Mrs. Mohr told him to be sure and kill the doctor and to kill Miss Burger if he could. His instructions, he said, were to shoot anybody in the tonneau whether it was Miss Burger or Florence Ormsby, a maid employed in Dr. Mohr's office.

After Spellman and Healis had corroborated Brown's story two police detectives went to Mrs. Mohr's house and brought her to police headquarters where she later was formally placed under arrest. No specific charge was preferred against her as the murder was committed in Bristol county, which is out of the jurisdiction of the Providence county courts. It was stated that she would be arraigned on a charge of inciting to murder. The charge against Brown will be the murder of Dr. Mohr, that against Healis will be accessory to murder before and after the fact, and Spellman will be charged with assault with intent to murder Miss Burger.

Mrs. Mohr and the three negroes were taken to Warren, the county seat of Bristol county and arraigned before Judge Frank Hammell. The woman was charged with inciting to murder.

Before the party left the police made public the following letter addressed to George Rooke, a brother-in-law of Miss Burger and bearing the signature of Mrs. Mohr. Rooke said he had received the letter a short time ago:

Warned by Mrs. Mohr

"Dear Mr. Rooke:

"Just a line to ask you to tell your sister if she dares to go into my Newport home she will never come out alive. I am giving her fair warning no matter what the outcome may be, I will see it through. I was told about her buying linen at Gladdings, (a Providence department store) for Dr. Mohr. I do hope you will try and straighten this matter out and I know you cannot stop her going out to dinner with him. But she will have a sad ending if she keeps on against me. My home is being watched and if I should leave Newport this summer my home will be watched just the same and should I get word I shall come right on. The world is with me in my sorrow. I am heartbroken.

"Respectfully,
"Elizabeth T. Mohr."

Confession of Brown

The confession of Brown as taken by the police reads:

"I, Cecil Victor Brown, 27 years old of 39 Hammond street, Boston, Mass., saw Elizabeth T. Mohr Monday night between 8 and 9 p. m., August 30, 1915. She sent for me and told me to prepare to kill Dr. Mohr, because she could not stand this any longer.

"'I do not want to do it,' she said, 'there is something in it for you. I will put you in the garage business. Do not be afraid, as I stand in with all the detectives and chief down in Newport and the judges in Providence.'

"She said if we got in any trouble she will spend her last dollar to get us out of it and be sure and tell Healis to come over so as she could have a talk with him. After nine days she would have everything settled that is her part of the estate.

"She also said she did not know if his other two children belonging to his first wife would come in for their share, and she would pay me $2500, and also pay George $2000, and Henry $1000, and if she had enough left she would give me $500 more.'

"'There is no need of Spellman, as everything will blow over. That is something that has to be done.'

"She made me ride to Boston on the train leaving Providence at 7.40 p. m., to purchase a revolver in a pawn shop on Beach street about three months ago, which I paid $5 for, a 38-calibre. Mrs. Mohr said to get a good one. If we did not kill him she was going to do it herself.

"She paid $100 for the motorcycle I own, in May, this year."

Mrs. Mohr Not Disturbed

Mrs. Mohr was brought from her home to the police station at 6.30 o'clock this morning. She met the officers there and her counsel, Arthur Cushing, with smiles and appeared to be not at all disturbed. She is a small, slightly built woman. She wore a blue suit, white gloves and a modish straw hat, the broad brim of which almost hid her face. However, upon seeing a crowd of photographers that had gathered, she sent a messenger for a brown veil and when this was obtained she tied it over her hat in such a way that only the lower part of her face could be seen. She carried a vanity box.

NEW ENGLAND BUSINESS

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD REPORTS TRADE SOMEWHAT BELOW NORMAL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—A digest of business conditions in the 1st Federal reserve district, which includes the New England states, issued in the monthly bulletin of the federal reserve board, was made public yesterday.

"Unsettled condition of labor," the report says, "in the large manufacturing centers is causing much concern to the manufacturers. Attracted by the higher wages paid by certain firms operatives are changing and some manufacturers are finding it difficult to keep up their forces.

"The retail dealers and the department stores report their business below normal, largely due to the cold and rainy weather which prevailed throughout New England during the first half of the month. This is the season of the year when the tourist trade is an important factor with them, and this is much smaller than in previous years. The shore and mountain resorts are also rather quiet for mid-summer.

"The farmers and produce men throughout New England have had their crops damaged to a considerable extent by the elements, especially hay and corn, and potato rot has appeared in many sections. The farmers in Aroostook County, Me., however, where the potato yield is the important crop, report this to be satisfactory.

"The reports of the shoe and leather trade, while showing a spotty condition, on the whole indicate a slight improvement, but outside of war orders business is little better than 60 per cent. of normal. The reports from New Bedford and other fine goods centers continue favorable, and although coarse goods mills are not up to normal, still they are reasonably employed.

"The dye situation and the uncertainty of the new cotton crop are important factors. The reports from the woolen mill centers are quite satisfactory. Even the general line of goods is reported to be in better demand.

"Building operations in New England show contracts for the year up to August 4 of $108,767,000, the largest amount shown at any time during the past 15 years, with the exception of the year 1912.

"Exports and imports for the month of July compare with a year ago as follows: Exports for July, 1915, $9,-104,337; imports for July, 1915, $12,-891,505. Exports for July, 1914, $5,246,-588; imports for July, 1914, $14,556,-723."

RUSSIA NEEDS COTTON

INDICATIONS POINT TO IMPORTATION OF "FAIR AMOUNT" OF THIS YEAR'S CROP FROM AMERICA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Indications that Russian spinning mills will demand "a fair amount" of the current American cotton crop were reported to the department of commerce yesterday by Commercial Attache Baker at Petrograd.

He cabled that of the 9,000,000 spindles in Russia, 7,500,000 outside the war zone are working two nine-hour shifts a day, and each is consuming at the rate of 108 pounds of cotton annually, as against 72 pounds before the war.

"It is anticipated in Moscow," the message added, "that about January Russia will import from the United States a fair amount of cotton to arrive during the spring."

AMUSEMENT NOTES

OPERA HOUSE

With an advance sale of seats that exceeds any attraction ever brought to Lowell, "Within the Law," the famous melodramatic sensation which will be the opening offering of the Emerson players at the Lowell Opera house, Labor Day afternoon and night and all next week, with matinees daily, bids fair to smash all records for theatrical hits in Lowell and the Opera house is certain to be filled to the very doors throughout the week. "Within the Law" is positively limited to one week and to avoid any chance of disappointment, theatre-goers of Lowell and the surrounding towns, should secure their seats in advance. The play has an international reputation and has caused more favorable talk than any play that the world has known. Produced in New York over two years ago and with very little advertising, it proved a sensation and for two solid years, with matinees daily, this play ran at the Eltinge theatre with Jane Cowl playing the lead. For one solid year, the play held the boards in Chicago and last season had a wonderful run of four months at the Majestic theatre in Boston, playing to capacity audiences and turning away thousands of theatregoers who traveled far to witness the attraction.

Lowell theatregoers have been anxiously awaiting the production of "Within the Law" and last season, unsuccessful efforts were made to bring the attraction here at Broadway prices of $2. The Sites-Emerson company, through its New York office, after completing the deal whereby the Opera house became their property, immediately contracted for "Within the Law" and forty other big attractions and "Within the Law" will be produced along with these others, not at Broadway prices but at popular prices of 10, 20 and 30 cents, thereby giving the theatre patrons of Lowell an opportunity to see all the latest attractions at these wee prices, long before other cities. The sale of seats opened yesterday and all day long, there was a line to the box office and the two telephones have been kept busy receiving phone orders.

"Within the Law" is a great big gripping play of today's life which is certain to score a wonderful hit in Lowell. The play tells an appealing story. It concerns the railroading to jail of a young salesgirl who is charged with thievery committed by another. After three years in prison, she tries to go straight but is hounded by the police until finally, with the advice of her lawyer, she becomes a successful blackmailer by working within the law. With a thirst for revenge, she marries the son of the man who sent her to prison, hoping to bring him shame. How her plans turn out is wonderfully told by the dramatist. There are many splendid situations which arise throughout the play and the characters are true to life, with Mary Turner, Joe Garson, Young Gilder, Inspector Burke, Cassidy, English Eddie and others appearing to great advantage. The introduction of the Maxim silencer gun is another brilliant feature of the play.

Miss Ann O'Day as Mary Turner, which role was originally played by Jane Cowl, is certain to prove a sensational favorite while Homer Barton will play Joe Garson in splendid fashion. Joe Crehan as Young Gilder, Carson Davenport as Mr. Gilder, Hubert Pierce as Inspector Burke, Dora Booth, Clara Sidney, Frank Wright, Darel Goodwin, Gertrude Shirley, Herbert Augustine, Forrest Gordon, Henry Crosson, Walter Spencer, Walter von Boekman and other members of the company comprise a cast of rare excellence. The scenic and electrical equipment will, by far, surpass everything that has previously been seen in this city.

Get your seats early. That is the sure way to see "Within the Law." The play will be a sensational success and hundreds, many hundreds will be obliged to say "I could not get seats." Phone 261 for reservations from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Good vaudeville will find many patrons, and this is being amply demonstrated at the B. F. Keith theatre, this week. The attendance at all performances has been phenomenal. The bill has caught everybody, and applause rings through the theatre during and after every act. Jack Wyatt's picturesque act, 'Scotch Lads and Lassies,' headlines the combination, and it is winning many plaudits. It is by all odds the best act of its kind ever shown here. And everybody contributes to the round of pleasure. Mr. and Mrs. James Bales, who are very well known locally, sing Scotch melodies, old and new, inimitably, while Mr. Wyatt thumps the big drum in a dexterous manner. The Misses Murphy, Barrie, Crawford and Lawrence are pretty dancers of jigs, reels, flings and sword dances, and Messrs. Wyatt, Ackland and Ross are pipers extraordinary. Rob Donaldson and Tom Campbell are soloists of note. It's one very likeable act. Al and Fannie Steadman, in "Pianocapers," are premier entertainers. They offer good music and introduce some splendid comedy. Harry Holman & Co., in the comedy, "Adam Killjoy," prove themselves up to the very high standard of the rest of the bill. Lowell's bicyclists, the Cycling Brunetts, are just as big drawing cards as ever they were, while Ruth and Kitty Henry, singers and dancers, Walter Walters, ventrioquist, and the Clown seal get many encores. Good seats may be obtained in advance at the box office. Phone 28.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

On the program of the Merrimack Square theatre for the last three days of this week, the first performance given at matinee this afternoon, there appear two big features worthy of the attention of all who enjoy seeing the best in motion pictures. They are the five act Paramount drama "The Heart of Jennifer," starring the charming Hazel Dawn, and "Capital Punishment" in which the versatile Lenore Ulrich appears. The former picture tells the story of a woman's strong love for her husband which prompts her to place upon herself the guilt of the crime committed by another. In this play which grips you from first to last scene, Hazel Dawn is the personification of infinite tenderness and makes an appeal to all. Lenore Ulrich plays the leading role in the latter named drama which is shown in three acts. This photoplay takes up the much mooted question of every age, namely that of capital punishment. Charlie Chaplin's latest comedy stunts are shown in a screaming Chaplin comedy, and many interesting views of foreign lands and customs are revealed in the Paramount travel pictures which conclude the performance for today and for the remainder of the week. George Beban who is coming soon in "An Allen" is one of the sensations of the season.

CANOBIE LAKE PARK

The busiest girl at Canobie lake park this week is undoubtedly Miss Margaret Murray, the Lawrence girl who is appearing this week with her partner in vaudeville at the theatre. All week long scores of friends have visited the little lady and her time while off the stage is much occupied in receptions that range from parties of three and four to some twenty or more.

Paul Petching's musical flower garden with its hosts of new and novel instruments cleverly concealed amid bowers of roses, plants, etc., is another big hit on the present bill. Then there are Murphy and Delmar in their happy-go-lucky comedy skit "The Raw Recruit" who take the audience by storm and leave them in the same condition. Victor, the ventriloquist, is opening the eyes of the many who have always felt that ventriloquist was limited in his power of voice manipulation. Victor seems to have absolute control over his voice and causes it to execute many extraordinary feats.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

"The Princess Romanoff," a photoplay taken from Sardou's original production, "Fedora," is at the Academy the last three days of this week. It is a story of Russian politics and social life, with action transferred to America as the plot develops. The Princess Romanoff is the tragic figure of the play. On the eve of her wedding, the bridegroom is killed. She is led to believe that he has been murdered, and from that time, she devotes herself to the tracing of the murderer. In time, she meets the man who killed her lover, and obtains from him a confession, though the confession states that a duel had been fought, and that there was no treachery in the killing. Moreover, the Princess learns that her lover was a villain at heart, and she is thankful that he died. Then comes a second love story with the successful duellist marrying the princess. It is absorbing from start to finish, and with Nance O'Neil in the title role, one finds ample realism. There are other attractions, and the program is well worth a visit to the Academy. Tonight is amateur night, positively the funniest entertainment in theatrical life.

DANCING CARNIVAL AT CASINO

All roads will lead to the Kasino on Friday night when the Allied Printing Trades council will hold its much heralded dancing carnival. A real carnival of music is promised those who attend for the melodious strains of the orchestra accompaniment will be barely finished when the Lowell Cadet band will strike up the music for the next dance. In this manner dancing will be continued throughout the evening excepting the time taken for the excellent concert numbers.

The council is to be congratulated on securing the services of Miss Annette LeVine, soprano soloist of Boston, favorably known at Boston's pop concerts, as the attraction of the evening. Miss LeVine is an exceptionally fine singer and her first appearance in Lowell is sure to attract music lovers from far and wide.

The carnival will open promptly at 8 o'clock with a short musical program in which Miss LeVine will be assisted by the band and Broderick's orchestra. Miss LeVine will sing the latest popular and classical selections.

HAMPTON BEACH CARNIVAL

"Children's Day" at the Hampton beach carnival will be held Tuesday, Sept. 7th on which day large numbers of children will be present. In addition to the baby show sports and games for the little ones have been planned and everything pertaining to their comfort and pleasure is being done by the committee in charge.

The baby show is of course one of the most important parts of the day's program. Miss Cora Miner ably assisted by Miss Blanche Thompson and Miss Priscilla Thayer has divided the show into five classes; 1st, babies under 24 months. 2nd, children between the ages of 2 and 4 years. 3rd, dolls and doll carriages. 4th, decorated baby carriages. 5th, Mother Goose and fairy tale characters. Several prizes for each class are offered which will be closely contested. Each class will have a parade of its own and as a final, a review of the prize winners will be held. Entries for this show can be received up to 12 o'clock of the same day.

During the afternoon aeroplane flights will be made by Aviator Redding at which time he will show how bombs are dropped upon armies in actual warfare. This will be most interesting to the young people and a sight they will never forget.

Confetti battles and grand illuminations during the evening terminating with fireworks will fill to overflowing this day set aside for the children.

LYNN WINS OUT

Three Passes in the 12th Inning Gave Pieper Game by Score of 3-2

(Special to The Sun)

LYNN, Sept. 2.—With defeat staring them in the face and a one run lead to overcome Lynn took advantage of a little etherial trip, on the part of Howard Williams, Paddy Green and Zeke Lohman in the 12th inning yesterday afternoon at Ocean Park and by playing inside baseball pushed two runs over the platter winning the game by the score of 3-2.

The game was easily the most interesting and exciting from a spectator's point of view of any which has been played this season in Lynn and the Ocean Parkers can only blame the extra innings and added hard work to the stickwork of "Cuke" Barrows, the demon slugger of the Lowell team and individual leader in stick work in the league.

With Steve Jewett working like the well oiled mechanism of a Seth Thomas and with one down in the ninth inning Barrows strode to the platter. With the count three and two, he caught one to his liking and knocked the ball a mile high over the right field fence into Nahant for a circuit drive which tied the score. Not satisfied with this Cuke in the 12th chapter sent the Lynn stock tumbling by doubling into the right field bleachers and scored the run which put Lowell one in the lead by a sacrifice and a passed ball.

But Lynn had a sudden punch reserved for this inning also and although Kelchner rushed two rescue pitchers to the mound to save the game, they tossed it away by issuing three certificates of deadhead which forced two runs across the platter and sent the fans home to supper in a happy mood.

Yesterday was Jewett and Ipswich day at Ocean Park, and the 250 baseball enthusiasts who rooted hard and long for Lynn were perfectly satisfied with the results of their journey. Jewett the Lynn twirler and Bill White, Lowell's third sacker are Ipswich lads and they were paid homage by their townspeople. When Jewett walked to the plate for the first time in the game in the third inning, Ex-Senator George A. Schofield in behalf of the Ipswich fandom presented Jewett with a handsome cowhide traveling bag and White with a dress suit case. Both murmured their thanks after the presentation, while the Ipswich rooters in the first base bleachers gave each three long and hearty cheers. As in the case of all presentations Jewett conformed with the old tradition of striking out. Throughout the game both were cheered every time they walked to the platter.

Both Pieper and Kelchner wanted the game yesterday the worst way and both managers used 11 players apiece. Kelchner started the game with Howard Williams on the mound, while Pieper sent Jewett to oppose him. Both failed to last the entire distance and were yanked in the 12th inning. McCabe relieved Jewett with Barrows on third in the final inning and the slugger scored on Haight's passed ball. McCabe fanned the two men who faced him. During Lynn's rally Kelchner derricked Williams and sent in Paddy Green, Green pitched to two Lynn hitters and Zeke Lohman was sent to the mound to keep them away but he passed two. Williams who batted for McCabe and Porter forcing in Holmes and Ordway with the runs which won.

The game abounded with sensational plays which were evenly distributed between both clubs. Wheat Orcutt, however, did the most spectacular work of either team and he hauled down eight solid drives in the outer garden, two of them being long savage clouts by Barrows. In the sixth he nailed Barrows' drive within ten feet of the center field fence after a long run and was given a cap call. Shorty Dee played well at short his most sensational play being an assist to first in the ninth after Gleason had caromed a sharp drive off White's shins. Munn made several nice stops of badly thrown balls, while Halstein performed his usual stunt in guarding the initial corner like a major leaguer.

Jewett had all the best of his pitching duel with Howard Williams, although the latter was working fine. Jewett made the batters hit bad balls while Lynn swatted Williams' curves savagely in the early innings. However as the game progressed Williams grew stronger and allowed not one hit from the third to the 10th inning.

Tom Bannon handled the game in place of "Kitty" Bransfield who was taken sick while dressing for business and Tom was continually in hot water by his decisions. Both Lynn and Lowell questioned several plays and it looked for a time as though he would do a little ejecting but the storm passed. Bannon at that acquitted himself in pretty good style considering the number of close decisions he judged.

Lynn started the first inning after Williams and it seemed as though he wouldn't last the first chapter. Porter hit a high fly in left which Parker who was playing in close could not get under and he secured a double. Gleason sacrificed and Halstein scored him with a single to right. Orcutt on the hit and run lined to Barrows who doubled Halstein at first.

Lowell and Lynn got men on several times for the next six innings, but the necessary hit could not be found in the array of bats owned by each club. Williams held Lynn hitless until the 10th, while Jewett was a mighty more generous, allowing one base hingle until Barrows poked one over the wall, in the 10th inning with one down. Both clubs were easy in the next chapter but the hair raising finish occurred in the 12th.

Barrows got a fine hand from the fans in the 12th after he had prevailed upon Kelchner and Pieper to play one more inning before a rain the game on account of darkness which was settling fast. He knocked into the right field bleachers and Dee sacrificed him to third. Here Jewett was taken out and McCabe sent in for him. The first ball McCabe threw was not stopped by Haight and Barrows scored while the Lowell players threw hats, gloves and other kit into the air. McCabe made short work of Stimpson and White, fanning both.

After Haight had tied to Barrows in Lynn's half the fans commenced to leave the grounds thinking the game was over.

Holmes then hit to right for a base and Ordway pasted one to left for another single. Barrows here hoisted signals of distress and Kelchner sent in Green. Green failed to locate the plate and passed Lynch, filling the bases. Green also gave Carl Williams filling for McCabe three consecutive balls when he was called out and Lohman went to the box. He gave Williams a strike and then heaved another ball, forcing in Holmes with the tieing run, while the crowd howled with delight. Porter took two balls and then two strikes. The next was wide and Lohman followed it with another, walking Porter while Ordway tripped across the plate with the winning run. The score:

WITH THE PADDED MITTS

Ted "Kid" Lewis proved to the satisfaction of the Boston ring lovers that he is not a flash in the pan, for he defeated Jack Britton, recognized as one of the cleverest men in the ring today, in a decisive manner before the banner crowd of the season. Lewis worked in his usual manner, in and out, swinging both hands into Britton's head and stomach after which he would tie up the Chicagoan in a clever manner. Lewis also used a left jab to the face with telling effect followed by a right cross which landed with a thud and outside of three or four rounds outpointed Britton by a city block.

Britton had the stiffest wallop and his punches did more damage than the English scrapper's artillery. Lewis went in to win on points and win he did. He had enough points after the bout to win three contests. Some of the local fans thought Britton ought to have had a draw but we fail to see how they formed that idea for Lewis had eight of the twelve rounds by a wide margin.

Jack Britton of Chicago did not gain any friends Tuesday night, when he lost the decision to Ted Lewis, the English fighter. Britton did not weigh in as he was supposed to in the afternoon. Britton found fault with the gloves and then when the bout started he objected to a rubber disc that Lewis used to protect his teeth and went to his corner, refusing to fight until Lewis removed the cause of the trouble. Lewis finally got disgusted and walked over to his manager and took out the rubber and the bout was on. Britton was so mad in the early rounds that he battled the Britisher several times, also used his elbows and mugged which are a direct violation to ring rules.

Mike Crowley, the Malden lightweight who made his professional debut last Tuesday night at the Atlas surprised the fans with his dazzling ring work. He was pitted against Charlie Sheppard, a boy with lots of experience, but Mike jabbed, hooked, and in fact did anything he pleased, with the former local boy. If brought along slowly, Crowley should develop into a top-notch boxer and give any boy his weight a good argument.

Bay Wood and George Alger are to battle before a North Adams club tonight in the feature bout of ten rounds. Alger and Wood clashed at Biddeford, Me. last week and put up a cracker-jack scrap that ended with honors even.

Al Shubert and Willie Mack will clash at the next meeting of the New Bedford fight club, Labor day night. Mack, it will be remembered, took a lacing at the hands of Gardner Brooks not so very long ago in Philadelphia, Mack's home town.

Instead of Larry Burns meeting Young Dyson at New Bedford on the 13th, Jimmy Fasano will appear with Dyson in the main bout. It looks like a case of dodging the rugged Lawrence boy. Burns seems to be in hard luck in regard to getting boys to meet him.

Harry Wills and Sam McVey, two dusky heavys, will furnish the fireworks for the Atlas A. A. members next Tuesday night in a twelve round bout. Will hails from New Orleans and when introduced from the ring the other night, shaped up as a husky demonstrator of the manly art. Wills is a tall rangey fighter and weighs in the neighborhood of 210 pounds. McVey is well known to the Hub sports having beaten Sam Langford, Sandy Ferguson and holding Joe Jeanette to a draw.

Terry Brooks and Charlie Byers meet each other in the semi-final to McVey and Wills, Tuesday night. Both of these boys are terrific hitters and a knockout will not be any surprise.

The Thornton club of Providence will reopen its doors in a short time and the principals will be Freddy Yelle and Tommy Moore. Yelle has not boxed since he was stopped in three rounds by Charlie White at Boston and this bout will be more of a come-back stunt than anything else for Moore is not rated very highly.

KIMBALL TO BELLEVUES

By last night's Sun the Bellevues claim that no engagement was made with the Kimballs for a meeting on Saturday night, Aug. 21.

In reply will say that we had a date as they claim with the Woodbines which they kept, and the manager of the Woodbine team will verify the statement that the Bellevues also had one at the same place and same time.

Now, the statement that they will play the Kimballs at Spalding park on Labor day morning looks all right, but do they take into consideration the fact that at 1 o'clock this team plays on the South common with some picked team selected by the Trades and Labor council? And do they think that any amateur team in town is so daffy to play them under these conditions. "The winner to pay all expenses for grounds, police, tickets, etc." If so, we will have to agree (if this is the only way they can play) we are not sportsmen as they term it, and will have to refuse to play them under these conditions.

They are the challengers and can play us under the same conditions as any other team on any other date.—Manager of Kimball team.

SOCCER FOOTBALL

The first games of the series in the Lowell, Lawrence and District Soccer Football league are scheduled to be played Saturday afternoon. At Buntine park the Buntings will meet the strong Beverly team and a fast game is to be expected as the Buntings have gotten together the strongest aggregation of football players that has ever represented them on the gridiron for many years. A big crowd will accompany the Beverly team to Lowell and will be on the "lines" to encourage their players on to victory. The local men will also have their friends out in force, as it is expected that this game will be one of the best of the season. The lineup of the Bunting team will be as follows:

J. Smith, goal; Smith, right fullback; Marriott, left fullback; Lowe, right halfback; Kelly, centre half; Cameron, left halfback; Kershaw, outside right; Taylor, inside right; Clegg, centre; Mitchell, inside left; Greenhalge, outside left. The reserve players are Costello, Molloy and Waddilove. Kick-off at 5.30 p. m. sharp.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

The manager of the Elms would like to meet the manager of the Crescents tonight in front of this office at 7.30 o'clock. J. Bowers, Manager.

The Colburn A. C. will play the strong Florence club next Saturday. They would like to hear from the C. M. A. C. Cadets for a game for the following Saturday.

FABRE AND KYRONEN

No race staged in this section ever attracted as much attention as that between Villar Kyronen and Edouard Fabre, which is to be held at Bunting park next Monday afternoon.

Both runners have their admirers hereabouts, and both are considered the star speedsters of America at 10 miles. They seem to be beautifully matched, and that is the big reason why the race is the subject of so many arguments.

In appearance, Fabre towers over Kyronen. Sizing up the men as they appear on the street, one would pick Fabre without the least hesitation. Kyronen is a little fellow, perhaps as big as Al Shrubb, the former champion at the 10 mile distance.

In action, the Finn is the more attractive. That is, he is the "prettiest runner" of the two. He loses a little by his high stepping, but his manner of running appeals to the crowd. He seems to put forth very little effort. Critics have said that if he "kept closer to the ground" he would improve his speed a little, but it's his way, and is not to be changed.

Fabre is nearly six feet tall, and has a good easy method, with a fine stride to carry him along rapidly. He possesses great endurance, as indicated by the fact that his wind was perfect when he finished the 10 mile race here Memorial day.

In sizing up the pair, it may be conceded that Kyronen runs fast from the pistol and finished strong, but whether or not he has the sprint in the last lap that Fabre is known to possess, remains to be decided. If Fabre holds the Finn to the last lap, Fabre's sprint will come in very handy, and if the Finn can't meet that sprint, Fabre will win. Kyronen's friends are of the opinion that Kyronen will be so far ahead of Fabre at the home stretch, Fabre's sprinting will avail him nothing. Fabre's admirers contend that he will hold the Finn until the last lap and will then win by sprinting.

KELCHNER DAY

Local Fans Will Honor Lowell's Manager at Saturday's Game

Saturday has been set aside by the Lowell management as Kelchner day, when the local fans will do honor to the gentlemanly manager of the Lowell team who brought the nine out of a bad hole, gave Lowell good baseball and revived a general interest in the team, all in a remarkably short space of time.

One hears on every side the story: "If we had Kelchner all season we'd be strong for the pennant."

Mr. Kelchner will probably leave Lowell Saturday night, as Albright college, in Pennsylvania, in which he is a teacher of French and mathematics, along with being athletic instructor, opens within a few days and he must be back for the opening. Thus Saturday was selected as the day, and the selection was good for a double reason, for on that day we have as our opponents the Lawrence team and it is returning the compliment extended by Lawrence to Lowell when the Lowell team was invited to participate in the Pennant day exercises and profits in that city.

When the project of a Kelchner day was first broached the fans took it up with enthusiasm and hence a big crowd may be looked for on Saturday.

BAKER SOLD TO YANKEES

HOME RUN KING PURCHASED FROM ATHLETICS FOR $15,000, ACCORDING TO REPORTS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2—The sale of J. Franklin Baker, former third baseman of the Athletics, will be announced soon unless Connie Mack refuses to go through with the deal discussed here yesterday.

Ban Johnson, president of the league; President Lannin of Boston, Vice Pres. Huston of the New York Americans and Pres. Shibe of the Athletics were in conference all afternoon and the transfer is expected to be made today. The sale was outright and the price is believed to be $15,000.

The sale of Baker is part of the plan devised by American league magnates to boost the game in New York, where interest in baseball has taken a big fall owing to the poor showing of the giants and the tumbling fortunes of the Yankees. More than one American league club will contribute to the upbuilding of the Yankees, but Baker is the only player known to have been settled upon for transfer so far.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Six of the first ten ranking tennis players remained in the running today at the opening of the third day of play in the national championship tournament. These survivors, with the official ranking they received at the end of last season were: Maurice E. McLoughlin, 1; R. Norris Williams, 2d, 2; Karl H. Behr, 3; William Johnston, 6; F. B. Alexander, 8, and Watson M. Washburn, 9.

G. M. Church, the intercollegiate champion, ranked 5, was defeated yesterday by Washburn. R. Lindley Murray, 4; William J. Clothier, 5 and Eliot F. Fottrell, 10, did not compete in the tournament.

The turf courts at the West Side Tennis club, which were groomed to velvet smoothness at the opening of the tournament, are beginning to show signs of wear. The four championship courts have suffered most, on account of the long drawn out matches and lengthy rallies.

McLoughlin will face Leonard Beekman this afternoon while Williams' opponent will be Walter M. Hall, former middle state champion, who yesterday defeated Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia, a substitute on the Davis cup team of 1913, in one of the longest matches of the tournament thus far.

GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 2.—The fight for the national amateur golf championship which is being waged on the Country club course today narrowed to four pairs. The west has four survivors—two from Chicago and two from Detroit. Three of the big brigade from the east are left, two being from New York state and the other from New Jersey. Nelson Whitney of New Orleans is the only hope of the south.

Robert A. Gardner of Chicago was pitted against his fellow townsman, D. F. Sawyer, who represents Wheaton, Ill., Golf club. Max Marston of Springfield, N. J., who toppled Jerome Travers, played Howard Lee of Detroit. James D. Standish, Jr., of Detroit, youthful conqueror of Francis Ouimet, the national champion, had Sheriff Sherman of Utica for his opponent. Whitney met John G. Anderson of Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Two rounds of match play, each of 18 holes, was the test. A place in the semi-finals tomorrow was the immediate prize.

MAYOR WILL RUN AGAIN

The plan to have Mayor Murphy's announcement of his repudiation of a pledge made two years ago and his intention to run again, come in response to a demand of his supporters that he be a candidate again was successfully carried out at Associate hall last evening when His Honor, in the presence of an audience of about 300, was presented with a petition alleged to contain 7000 signatures demanding that he be a candidate.

The petitions were placed in circulation one week ago and were started out and the mass-meeting arranged at a meeting of some of the mayor's friends, held at the Yorick club. By a singular coincidence the mayor returned from his vacation on the day of the meeting.

Of the 300 present quite a number were drawn there through curiosity while many were recognized as men not particularly favorable to His Honor's reelection. When a standing vote was called for on the endorsement of the mayor and the request that he run again it was quite noticeable that about one-half of those present stood up.

On the platform were several well known supporters of the mayor but the mill and hankmen who have been active behind the movement were conspicuous by their absence from the stage. Perhaps the most striking feature of the affair was the fact that out of 7000 voters alleged to have been signed to the petition, less than six per cent of them appeared at the mass meeting.

The Meeting

The meeting opened shortly after 8 p. m. with an audience of about 300. Mr. James O'Sullivan was chairman and seated with him on the platform were: Daniel J. Donahue, William D. Regan, Frank H. Dow, Oscar C. Dow, Charles F. Sheridan, Fred H. Rourke, Orrin F. Webster, James P. Ramsay, Alvah H. Weaver, Joseph Wilson and Charles F. Keyes.

Speeches were made by James O'Sullivan, Daniel J. Donahue, William D. Regan and Mayor Murphy.

James O'Sullivan

The opening address was made by James O'Sullivan who spoke in part as follows: "This is a rather unusual meeting. In my experience of 50 years among you it is the first meeting of its character held in the city. Its purpose is to make a request of our chief executive to again be a candidate for mayor of the city of Lowell. The statement that a term of two years is enough for any mayor does not hold good in his case, and the people of Lowell feel that they are entitled to his services for two years more. No citizen would be justified in refusing to serve the people in the face of this petition running into 7000 names.

"Some one may ask the question 'Is there not some one else in the city just as well qualified for the position?' Certainly there are—many of them—but Mayor Murphy has given Lowell the cleanest administration it has had for many a day. It is in recognition of his services we request him to be again a candidate.

"This is not a political gathering of any special party. We meet here with the best interests of the city at heart, and we make a respectful demand on Mayor Murphy that, even at a sacrifice, he will again consent to serve us as mayor of Lowell."

Daniel J. Donahue

Mr O'Sullivan then introduced Daniel D. Donahue who spoke in a very complimentary vein of the present chief executive, saying in part:

The administration of Mr. Murphy has been marked by honesty, efficiency, progress; it has been devoid of scandal and any breath of suspicion; he has given one hundred cents for every dollar paid into the treasury; there has been neither waste nor extravagance in the expenditure of our money; the improvements made and the reforms initiated by him have been useful, necessary, wisely conducted and in full sight of all men; and Lowell has moved forward and become a real city under his care and direction. Every dollar spent by him has counted; the work done and the work laid out have not been mere temporary makeshifts; they are permanent improvements, that not only we men of 1915 can enjoy, but the next generation will profit by. We have handsomer, more lasting, better lighted streets; the city is more attractive and beautiful today than when he took office; in spite of physical calamities and industrial hard times the credit and reputation of the city stands high; our public projects were made to combine improvement and employment and both were united with a wise economy devoid of littleness or meanness; and yet with taxes increasing in the cities and town all around us, our tax rate is lower than in 1914.

These are the substantial proofs of wise administration and a constant devotion to our municipal interests; and if no higher and better reasons the taxpayers of Lowell would be wanting in common sense if they discarded the mayor who brought about such results, for some new and untried man.

That is the official, the mayor, what of the man, Dennis J. Murphy? We have known him always: he has grown up with us; he was educated in our schools and trained in our institutions; he has lived and acted in the open in sight of all men. We know him. He is honest, courageous, proud of his native city, public spirited, giving and anxious to give Lowell good service whether in or out of office; he has been tried and tested and found true; and he has done his duty fearlessly and conscientiously. He has had the public interest at heart at all times; every citizen calling on him was sure of patient, courteous, kindly attention, be he rich or poor; he has impressed himself on his fellow citizens at home, and has represented us with credit away from home. A clean-handed, clean-minded, courageous citizen and official, we have never had to explain or apologize for Dennis J. Murphy.

At the conclusion of Mr. Donahue's address, he put the resolution to the audience that the citizens of Lowell, irrespective of party, ask Mayor Murphy to run a second time for mayor. It was seconded by John E. Sullivan. Mr. Donahue then named Messrs. O'Sullivan and Weaver as a committee to wait on Mayor Murphy and escort him to the hall.

William D. Regan

In the interval between the departure of the committee and the arrival of the mayor, William D. Regan made a brief address, in which he said:

"This is a most wonderful thing, a most extraordinary tribute to a public official. This city has had many chief executives, some able, some whose epitaph might fittingly consist of an apology, but none has had more complex problems than he. He has solved them and we are here to acknowledge and to praise. We are grateful for this opportunity to testify to his worth. At a sacrifice, Mayor Murphy has given us a term full of service and we now see that the community honored itself in honoring him. He stands on a platform of official achievement."

Mayor Murphy

At this time, the committee returned with Mayor Murphy who was applauded as he passed through the hall. Mr. Donahue read an introduction explaining the purposes of the meeting, and Mayor Murphy responded in a carefully prepared speech reviewing the two years of his incumbency, as follows:

"Mr. Chairman and Fellow Citizens: To me this reception is one of the most gratifying things that could happen to me in my official capacity.

"I realize and recognize this unusual outpouring of citizens. I respect the confidence in which you hold your mayor and his administration of nearly two years. It was not my intention when I was a candidate for the position, less than two years ago, to be a candidate again. I said so then, and I feel the same at this moment.

"A man in the position of chief executive of a city of this size carries on his shoulders responsibility which is at times more than he thinks he can endure. He is a target for the attacks of those persons who are not in sympathy with what he represents.

"When I assumed office the city was in debt $100,000. The day I took office a note was under protest in the city of Boston for that amount. But the note was met satisfactorily. And we have gone along notwithstanding the obstacles which have been met, and today we have as a government made Lowell one of the best cities in the state of Massachusetts. (Applause.)

Streets Improved

"I do not take the credit for the things which have been accomplished. The men who have associated with me in the government of 1914 and 1915 have done their work well. By co-operation we have accomplished much. The members of this government are honest, they have worked night and day for the city of Lowell. The streets are in better condition than they have been at any other time in 20 years. When the fall closes every main artery into the city of Lowell will be in the best possible condition. And the credit for this work is due to the man at the head of the streets and highways department.

Water and Fire Departments

"The problems which have confronted the commissioner at the head of the department of fire protection and water supply have been many. They have been vexing problems, particularly that relative to our supply of pure water. Yet the commissioner has given unusual thought to his task and within a short time the result of his labors will make itself manifest. And the commissioners of public property and finance are giving all of their time and attention to the work of their various departments, to bring them up to the highest possible standard of efficiency.

Tax Rate Lowered

"Lowell's tax rate this year showed a reduction greater than that of any other city in the state.

"I have raised the wages of the men of the health department. But is that criminal? If it is then the man at the head of the public safety department is at fault. It is not the other members of the government. And I will say that the health department men, with their raise, are not getting as much money as they should. If anybody is to blame for giving the policemen one day off in 15, then it is, again, the head of the public safety department. That is not a thing the government did.

"But, among things which the government undid, was the plan to pay $33,000 for a playground in West Centralville. The government rescinded the order to buy this land for that amount which could be leased for $200 a year, because it did not believe it necessary to expend any such a sum for playgrounds in that district. The government is now leasing land for playgrounds at $200 a year which a past government paid $1100 for.

"We have been criticized for spending $3000 for a Fourth of July celebration. But thousands and thousands of people came here for the celebration and, when it was all over, the city had actually made $322 out of it. (Applause.)

Contagious Hospital

"When we reconsidered the work of a past government relative to the location of a contagious hospital, we felt that Belvidere should not have a hospital in it, because it is a residential district. But the legislature requires the erection of a contagious hospital. We are powerless in the matter. I consider it to be unnecessary. In the next ten days, perhaps in the next day, the government will rescind its action relative to the Seventh avenue site in Pawtucketville, and will vote to purchase by seizure the site on Varnum avenue.

"There are other projects in the minds of the members of the government, probably the new high school. This government asked, and obtained, permission to borrow $700,000 for the erection of a new high school. But when you read that the government has borrowed that money and is paying interest on it, you are reading what is untrue. Not a cent has been borrowed. It will be borrowed in such sums as are necessary, when the actual building is under way. And when you read that we have borrowed $50,000 for the construction of a new bridge to Pawtucketville, that is untrue, also. We have not borrowed one dollar of it. These are things which all citizens should know.

Praise For Police Department

"I am proud to be a member of the administrations of 1914 and 1915. The police department has never been governed so efficiently as during the past year and a half. The superintendent is one of the best men in the entire United States. With him at the head there will be no trouble in the police department. And the department is one of the best this city has ever had. This is shown by the arrests which have been made. And the charity department has been splendidly governed during the past year and a half.

"I am part of the administration. I accept the criticism of honest citizens. I expect it, as every public servant must. But it is the dishonest criticism which must be suffered and which cannot be met because of the methods used in making it.

"I appreciate this splendid endorsement. I recognize that these 7000 names mean something. I recognize that a man who has said that he will not be a candidate a second time owes something to the citizens who so splendidly endorse him and the government. But if I accept this it will be on the old principles of law and order. I will not change them one iota. If a man is breaking the laws, it matters not who he is, he should be amenable to the law. I owe my allegiance to no one, other than those friends here tonight, and to the hundreds of others who have signed these memorials.

Agrees to Run

"I accept this endorsement and I will be a candidate again for the position of chief executive of the city of Lowell."

KAISER HONORS HINDENBURG

"All German Hearts Beat Higher When You Are Thought Of"—Names Regiment for Him

BERLIN, by Wireless Telegraphy to Sayville, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Emperor William, says the Overseas News Agency, addressed a telegram to Field Marshal von Hindenburg in commemoration of the anniversary of the battle of Tannenburg, in East Prussia, which the emperor alluded to as "A deed of arms unparalleled in history, and the basis of other powerful blows administered since then—the winter battles of the Mazurian Lakes, the battles of Lodz and Lowicz, and the wonderful campaign leading up to the most recent events."

"All German hearts," continued the telegram, "beat higher when you are thought of. I feel that I should again thank you on this day from the bottom of my heart. You have engraved your name in iron letters on the tablets of history.

"I order that the regiment of which you were recently appointed honorary colonel shall forever bear your name and be known as Infantry Regiment Gen. Field Marshal von Hindenburg, 2d Mazurian Regiment, No. 147."

For Acid Stomachs Use Magnesia

The almost universal use of magnesia by physicians and specialists in the treatment of stomach troubles, is due to the fact that it stops food fermentation and neutralizes the acid—the direct cause of nearly all stomach troubles. Of the many forms of magnesia such as oxides, citrates, carbonates, sulphates, etc., the most suitable and efficient, and the one prescribed by leading specialists is Bisurated magnesia, a teaspoonful of which in a little warm water may be taken after eating; will instantly neutralize the acid, stop fermentation, and thus insure painless normal digestion. It should be taken to get Bisurated magnesia, as its action is invisible and effective. It is also, by the way, easily stocked by druggists in convenient compressed tablets as well as in the ordinary powder form. Sufferers and dyspeptics who follow this plan and avoid the use of pepsin, charcoal, soda mints, drugs and pills are invariably astonished to find that the stomach, relieved of the annoying acid and gas, soon regains its natural tone, and can do its work also without the doubtful aid of artificial digestants. 16 SUBMARINE LOST?

The sinking of the Arabic is in some respects a mystery and it is a mystery that may not be cleared up for a long time, if ever. Reports of the attack from the first have been meagre and there were certain contradictions that made the American Press cautious in their comment. Furthermore, the British censorship was unusually strict, though there did not seem any great reason for secrecy if the facts were as alleged by the admiralty. From the first Berlin asked America to suspend judgment until the German side of the story was revealed, but now Berlin professes to be as much at sea as the American government.

Germany assumes the responsibility and is willing to meet the consequences. Evidently the imperial government has been waiting for the report of the submarine commander who shot the torpedo, but to date his report has not been forthcoming. This gives rise to the suspicion that the guilty submarine met her fate at the hands of the British, and Germany hints at a like conclusion. This does not end the case against Germany but if true it will simplify the process of settlement.

It may not be quite fair to question the veracity of the German government, but if England does not report the sinking of the submarine, there will be some doubt as to the credibility of the story in this country. Survivors of the Arabic declared that there was no distinguishing mark on the undersea craft, and it is doubtful if it was seen at all, though Captain Finch and others testified to having seen the torpedo. The story of the loss of the submarine gives Germany a plausible loophole out of a delicate position, and it removes the necessity to disavow the act and punish the commander. Even if practical diplomacy did not suggest the expected announcement of "no report," the loss of the submarine would not be wholly unwelcome, as Germany has shown a decided change in her attitude towards America, and would not care to antagonize American public opinion still further.

The alleged loss of the submarine that sank the Arabic makes one wonder how many have fallen victims since the raids were decided on. England has kept the details of submarine losses secret, fearing to give valuable information to the German government and it may be that the losses among the U-boats have been tremendous. It is significant that for days the underwater craft have been more or less inactive, and there is a growing suspicion that Germany's pet naval policy has turned out a failure. When the war is over and many things now dark are revealed, the Arabic incident may have some sensational and surprising features. Warring governments have many secrets, and they are able to keep them well.

HAS KEPT HIS PROMISE

When President Woodrow Wilson made his inaugural speech in March, 1913, he could not have known the great crisis through which he was called to guide the destinies of his country. He could scarcely have foreseen that in one short year practically every great nation on earth would be engaged in a war, the like of which history had not hitherto known, or that this nation would have to be patient and prudent beyond all precedent if it would keep out of the struggle. Yet he gave utterance to sentiments that when read now take on a deeper significance than they had then. How appropriate the following excerpt is to the present:

> The nation has been deeply stirred, stirred by a solemn passion, stirred by the knowledge of wrong, of ideals lost, of government too often debauched and made an instrument of evil. The feelings with which we face this new age of right and opportunity sweep across our heart-strings like some air out of God's own presence, where justice and mercy are reconciled and the judge and the brother are one. We know our task to be no mere task of politics but a task which shall search us through and through, whether we be able to understand our time and the need of our people, whether we be indeed their spokesmen and interpreters, whether we have the pure heart to comprehend and the resolution to choose our high course of action.
> This is not a day of triumph; it is a day of dedication. Here muster, not the forces of party, but the forces of humanity. Men's hearts wait upon us; men's lives hang in the balance; men's hopes call upon us to say what we will do. Who shall live up to the great trust? Who dares fail to try? I summon all honest men, all patriotic, all forward-looking men, to my side. God helping me, I will not fail them, if they will but counsel and sustain me!

In his inaugural address he pledged himself to stand for the interests of the American people, and who can say that he has not kept his promise? He has just won a signal triumph, not for himself, nor for his country alone but for humanity. In March, 1913, he summoned "all honest men, all patriotic, all forward-looking men" to his side, and today they are with him. Once again America realizes that at critical times in its history, God has raised up a truly great leader to fight for the ideals of democratic government and to preserve for the future the liberties which this nation won only after a hard struggle against tyranny and injustice. Wilson has preserved by calm diplomacy what Washington won by the sword.

BEARING FRUIT

At least one movement for trade extension abroad has borne fruit in practical plans that will have a great bearing on the future of American business. Contracts for the financing of a Chinese-American trans-Pacific steamship company have been signed by American and Chinese capitalists who are now negotiating for the purchase of ships, according to an announcement of the Chinese minister to Mexico who is at present in San Francisco. He declared that the movement is supported by some of the greatest American bankers and practically all the principal banks of China. Though the new line will be partly American, it will operate under the flag of China—a fact that should be noted by all interested in the restoration of our merchant marine.

This new venture is the first fruit of the recent visit of the Chinese commissioners to this country. At the invitation of the federal department of commerce and with the cooperation of some of the greatest trade organizations in the large cities several prominent Chinese bankers and business men were the guests of the country for several weeks, during which they visited our most important cities and made plans for future trade relationships. Those who are unfamiliar with the tendencies of the day may have seen nothing of a practical nature in the visit, but it was an excellent business move as shown by its splendid results. With the opening of the Panama canal and the growing demand for American products in the Orient, this line promises to be a great factor in the extension of our foreign trade.

Many other factors are working for a greater foreign trade at the present time, many of which are slow in their processes but all of which promise fruitful results. Delegations of our manufacturers and financial leaders have gone to South America from time to time, and recently there was a great conference of representatives of Latin America in Washington for the cultivation of more cordial relationships. The primary need is for transportation lines, followed by a better financial system to facilitate trade, and the formation of a great Chinese-American line will be hailed as a bright omen in business circles.

SIGNS THAT DEFACE

The nation-wide campaign against undesirable billboards has received a great impetus in Rhode Island where a law against roadside billboards went into effect yesterday. This law forbids the placing of signs on trees, poles, fences, stones, etc., and authorizes anybody to "take down, remove or destroy any advertisement in or upon the public highway." Such a sweeping law will certainly prove effective if there is as great objection to the defacing signs in Rhode Island as elsewhere.

Lovers of natural scenery well know the type of sign that Rhode Island has condemned officially. We have many such within a radius of a few miles of this city. The fairest view is ruined by large and ugly posters setting forth the advantages of a certain brand of whiskey or declaring that some one clothing house is away ahead of all others. Every tree in some places is an unwilling agent for commercial propositions, and every rock sets forth in glaring colors that some cigar is the best ever. These signs are dubious as advertising aids and they certainly offend against natural beauty. Bad enough to have to tolerate the hideous billboards in the heart of the city, but, when one cannot get away from them in the country, the case becomes desperate.

In France, a movement against inartistic signs began many years ago, and a law was passed forbidding the defacement of natural scenery. Even the names of the railroad stations in some parts of the country are written in flowers. Continental cities as a rule are more particular with regard to their advertisements than American cities, and visitors to this country almost invariably comment sarcastically on the billboards that destroy the finest scenery. Rhode Island has done good pioneer work in passing a law that must sooner or later be passed by all states. It is inconsistent that we should tolerate signs that deface either in the city or in the country while there is such a healthy agitation in favor of civic beauty and order.

THE REMEDY

Those who are not versed in the ways of high finance cannot but see something ludicrous in the remedy proposed by American bankers to England, for the prevention of further depreciation of the value of the English pound sterling. The great reduction, so galling to British pride and so injurious to the British pocketbook has been due to England's lack of a great credit. She has been obliged to meet the demands of American business with prompt cash payments, and the constant drain has taxed her ability to pay promptly. Consequently her money lost value in the markets and the dollar superseded the pound as the unit of exchange. England is growing tired of paying too much for the dollar, and it is expected that many orders to America will be cancelled--England buying only what she actually needs here. American bankers, however, propose that to establish a great basic credit, England should borrow a large sum at a good rate of interest from American banks and pay American business on a more equitable cash basis. England may do this, but if so, it is because she will have to. If the American bankers can squeeze England or any other foreign power they will lose no opportunity to do so, provided the transaction proves profitable.

PLAYGROUND WORK

The fine exhibition of work from the summer playgrounds, just held in the Harrington building, proved beyond question that the playgrounds exercise a splendid influence over the children during the summer months. Only those who have seen the actual work or its results as exhibited realize the patience and perseverance necessary for success. The excellence of the display shown to the Lowell public is a high tribute to the supervisors and their assistants and it testifies to the patience of the children and to their formation of habits of industry. It also proves eloquently that the summer playground achievements in this city are extremely practical, for many of the things were meant for actual use as clothing or in the home. It was a fine thing for the children at the playgrounds that they used their time so well, and the teachers testified that the kiddies enjoyed it fully. The team work was productive of great results and there was a healthy rivalry to keep interest up until the end. The games and folk dances as demonstrated today also showed the value of organized play under proper supervision. Summer playgrounds are a boon to parents as well as children and they are deserving of a hearty public support.

SIGNS OF FALL

The red grows on the apple, the pear is growing mellow, and there is a familiar chill in the air. Predictions of a long summer to atone for the late spring have fallen flat and fall is here to stay for a few months. The intended trip to the beach has lost its attraction and the nature lover looks forward to mountain tramps or the lure of the open road where the invigorating air stirs the blood to activity and compels action. Soon the trees will put out little banners of red and yellow, the pumpkin will be ripe on the stalk and the smell of the grapes will fill the air. The orchards will be strewn with fulfilled promises of springtime, and a lonely note will creep into the evening breeze. It has been a strange year with an unusual spring, a rainy summer and topsy-turvey weather all through. Yet, who would want July weather now? We can easily forget the lost days of sunshine and welcome the rare days of autumn with their clear air and fragrant fruition. New England is always lovely, but it is loveliest in the days of early spring or the fall that leads us so gently into winter that we express little surprise at the first fall of the snow.

SEEN AND HEARD

Platforms are only for campaign purposes. So are promises.

What have the assessors to say of the prices brought by some fine residences recently sold?

The reason some women haven't any sense of humor is because they used it all up when they selected a husband.

When a girl knows that she has pretty dimples, a funeral on a rainy day can't keep her from smiling if there is a fellow around.

The war in Europe may worry you a whole lot. But a man with an eight-cylinder toothache hasn't time to bother with piking affairs.

A blonde hair doesn't attract as much attention in the butter as a black hair. But that is no reason why you should marry a blonde.

In Balaam's time it was considered a miracle for an ass to speak. But nowadays we hear so many of them speaking that we pay no attention to them.

To the average married woman a chorus girl is a painted female who spends all her time chasing other women's husbands when they are down town.

Ever notice that the man who is round-shouldered from carrying life insurance when he is 35 years old is usually the same man who lives to be 95 years old?

People always pretend that they do not care anything for appearances. But you may have noticed that the front yard is always cleaner than the back yard.

Just about the time you have made up your mind to quit telling lies some dame with a Senegambian nightmare on her head will come along and ask you if you do not think her new hat is pretty.

Father can remember where every team in both big leagues finished in the last seven seasons, and he can remember who was lightweight champion in 1893, and he can remember the breeding of all the stake horses in training, but mother has to make him get up and empty the drip-pan under the ice box after he gets into bed every night.

Joe Hibbard's Catch

To those who now dispute the claim of Hon. Joseph I. Hibbard to the amateur deep-sea fishing championship of Lowell and vicinity, we say have a care, lest they be called upon to prove their claims. Mr. Hibbard strengthened his reputation as a fisherman considerably yesterday by catching one of the largest codfish seen around these parts in a long time, and it will probably be many years before any other local fisherman will have the good fortune to snare a larger member of the finny tribe.

"Joe" made the catch down in the waters near Swampscott, and while the good people of the pretty little seacoast town did not shower their praises on him as the Winthrop folks did on Henry F. Sullivan after he defeated Sam Richards in their recent swim, they nevertheless grouped around him and stared with wondering eyes at the monster cod lying on the sands at "Joe's" feet, and many were overheard to express wonderment as to how the prominent musician landed the catch without capsizing the boat.

Mr. Hibbard and two friends decided to go fishing only yesterday morning after a lengthy discussion in which the two friends wished to postpone the trip until today. But "Joe" was abdurate and set his mind to go in the afternoon, and his friends seeing that he could not be shaken from his purpose decided to go along with him. They entrained at the Middlesex street depot shortly after noon for Boston, whence they immediately set out for Swampscott. There a small fishing smack was hired and "Joe" and his two companions prepared to be on the lookout for all denizens of the sea. Lines were cast by the three and for the first hour they fished without nary a sign of a bite. After waiting a while longer the two companions pulled their lines out of the water in disgust and sat back in the boat to enjoy the sea breezes, when, all of a sudden they felt a sudden start, and looking around they beheld "Joe" half way over the side of the craft holding onto his line for dear life. They immediately went to his side, but "Joe" would have none of their assistance, and in less time than it takes to tell it he pulled in his line with a 65 pound codfish dangling at the end of the hook. Of course, the ex-legislator was elated over his good fortune and his companions were profuse in their congratulations. Fishing was all over for the afternoon for the three and the boat was at once started for Swampscott, where the big cod was viewed by a large number of people. Soon afterward "Joe" had the fish crated and sent to Lowell and it is now on exhibition in a Central street fish store. Mr. Hibbard and his friends arrived in this city late last evening, and today Mr. Hibbard was met by a number of friends and congratulated on his remarkable catch. "Harry Gonzales" will please take notice.

FIFIELD ESTATE IS SOLD

The estate of the late George W. Fifield on Middlesex street, corner of Stevens, was sold at public auction yesterday afternoon Mr. E. B. Conant of J. E. Conant & Co. The price for which the residence was sold furnished another instance of the depreciation worked in that district by the power house, a fact noted also in the recent sale of the Lawyer Bent dwelling. The property was sold in lots as advertised without limit or reserve to bona fide bidders as follows:

Lot one on Middlesex street at the corner of Canton street comprising the house, the stable and 22,433 square feet of land to E. Greenberg for $4500; Lot five on Stevens street comprising a two and one-half story building 33 x29 feet, with two story annex 20x20 feet and 10,866 square feet of land to R. C. Bartlett for 20c a square foot or $2172.40; Lot four at the corner of Stevens comprising 8780 square feet of land to Oscar Brown for 8c a square foot or $702.40; Lot two on Middlesex street comprising 8500 square feet of land to Herman H. Bachmann for 7c a square foot or $455; Lot three on Middlesex street comprising 8500 square feet of land to R Wood for 7 1-2c a square foot or $487.50; Lot six on Stevens street, Lot seven and Lot eight on Canton street comprising the greenhouse buildings and 22,573 square feet of land to Samuel Scott for 7 1-2c a square foot or $1692.95; Lot nine and Lot ten on Lawton street at the corner of Spring avenue comprising 11,251 square feet of land to Arthur Genest for 2c a square foot or $225.08; Lot eleven on Middlesex street just above Webber street comprising 129,415 square feet of land to Albert Stopherd, North Chelmsford, for 1 1-2c a square foot or $1937.50; Lot twelve on Princeton boulevard at the corner of Baldwin street comprising 98,509 square feet of land to Albert Smith, Belmont New Hampshire, for about 3-5c a square foot or $525; Lot thirteen on Quebec street (Ayer's City) comprising 4873 square feet of land to John Brady for 1-2c a square foot or $23.21; each parcel was sold subject to its pro rata share of the 1914 and 1915 taxes the total aggregate of the sale including the taxes is $14,143.19. On Wednesday of next week the four properties belonging to the Fifield estate upon the Revere beach reservation at Revere are to be sold. Never was a public sale in Lowell better attended than yesterday at the Fifield residential estate. The sale took place upon the lawn at the west side of the house and there were at least one hundred life men and women present, and certainly in connection with the beautiful lawn, the foliage, and the grand shade trees it took on the appearance of a neighborhood family fete brought about, possibly, by a very much talked about public sale. Nevertheless with all this attention, Messrs. J. B. Conant & Co. felt after the sale was completed that the properties were justly and favorably entitled to more considerate bidding and that better prices should have been realized.

FITZ REPLIES TO FOSS

DECLARES CHARGES UNTRUE—INTENDS TO TAKE MATTER TO COURT

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—"Gov. Foss' statement that I urged the appointment of Dennis D. Driscoll as chairman of the prison commission with the assurance that, if the appointment were made, a strike at each of the three plants would be called off, is not true. The story is a pure invention put out by the ex-governor to attract notice to his campaign."

So begins a statement by ex-Mayor Fitzgerald, which is his contribution to the Foss-Driscoll controversy.

In the strike in question, in the summer of 1913, Mr. Fitzgerald says that all he did was to call the attention of the state board of arbitration to the matter and to ask Mr. Foss to join him in the request for intervention. "I told him," he says, "that he had a splendid chance as governor and employer both to vindicate the principle of arbitration, but he was obdurate."

"I never knew Mr. Driscoll to have any connection with the matter directly or indirectly," Mr. Fitzgerald continues. "Those who represented the Foss workers comprised representatives of the machinists, metal workers, metal polishers, blacksmiths and pattern-makers. These men were the national organizers and came from different parts of the country, and the story is absurd on its face that these men, representing the interests they did, would become a party to an agreement to abandon the strike in order to give Mr. Driscoll a job.

"Gov. Foss underestimates the intelligence of the ordinary citizen if he believes that these men would or could abandon their positions in an important strike like this, which was heralded all over the country, in order to give a job to another labor leader.

"I intend to push this matter to a finish; it is time that Gov. Foss should be shown up in his true light and it is my intention to expose him in the courts of the commonwealth so that the people may get a proper angle on him.

"He made the same charge against James Moriarty, head of the Metal Trades' union, that he has made against Mr. Driscoll in the midst of a campaign, and then after the campaign was over withdrew the charges publicly and settled with Mr. Moriarty's lawyer. This is a matter of court record, which I want the people of Massachusetts to know, so that his recent statement put out for political purposes may have the proper weight attached to it.

"He is using prohibition as he used both the democratic and republican parties—for his own purposes—and would abandon it as quickly as he did both of the other parties if it suited his purpose.

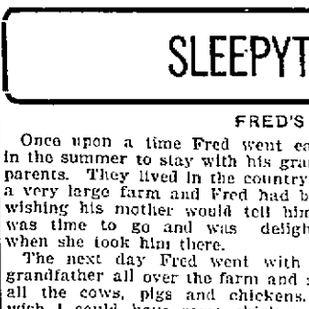

"He had a splendid opportunity as governor of the commonwealth to advance the cause of temperance, but he failed to do it. The liquor interests were as much in evidence in politics in those days as they are now, yet he did not hesitate to take advantage of their support.

"Personally, I would be glad if liquor could be wiped out of existence, but I do not believe that it can be effected by prohibition. While mayor of Boston I was careful in my personal habits to give every encouragement to temperance. I preached it and practiced it; at the same time I was willing that my fellow citizens should enjoy their personal liberties in a manner consistent with the good of the community.

"For this reason I am a believer in local option. Prohibition does not prohibit in Maine, where the enforcement of the law has been a standing joke for 50 years; neither does it seem to develop decent government in Georgia, where prohibition is the law, as the Frank case showed.

"As an evidence of the above I want to relate a little incident that shows the character of the man. One night after a democratic rally in Attleboro at which both Mr. Foss and myself spoke, we were invited to a little lunch given by the democratic town committee. Both ginger ale and beer were served. We were both asked what we would have. I said that I would have a glass of ginger ale. Gov. Foss said that he would take a bottle of beer and to my intense disgust without even waiting for a glass he put the bottle of beer to his head and drank its contents.

"He thinks there is a chance of prohibition sweeping the country and he is playing for the prohibition nomination for president in 1916."

SLEEPYTIME TALES

FRED'S "CHICKENS"

Once upon a time Fred went early in the summer to stay with his grandparents. They lived in the country on a very large farm and Fred had been wishing his mother would tell him it was time to go and was delighted when she took him there.

The next day Fred went with his grandfather all over the farm and saw all the cows, pigs and chickens. "I wish I could have some chickens all my own," said Fred. "Well, I guess you can," answered his grandfather, "but you must look out for old Betty, the mother hen, and feed her and care for the chickens when they are hatched."

"I will if I can only have the chickens," said Fred. So his grandfather gave him thirteen fine brown eggs and showed him where to make a nest. Fred said he had heard that thirteen was an unlucky number and asked for one more egg, which his grandfather gave him with a laugh at his superstition, and told him he should expect too see thirteen chickens hatched just the same.

Fred made a fine nest and old Betty hopped on it as though she was very glad to sit down. Each day Fred brought a dish of dainty things for his hen and she seemed to enjoy the extra attention she was getting. At last, one day Fred went to the nest and there were thirteen of the cutest, fluffiest little chicks you ever saw and old Betty was looking as much as to say: "Look, aren't they pretty?"

A few days after that grandfather said it was time to move them to a coop, so they both took some of the chicks and put them in a nice house under the trees. When grandfather took up the first chick he looked at it quite a while and then burst out laughing. Fred asked what he was laughing at. "Ha, ha, I will tell you, Fred," he answered, "your chickens are ducks." "Well, I guess thirteen is an unlucky number after all," said Fred.

WAR SHARES ACTIVE

GENERAL MOTORS FEATURE AT OPENING—DEMAND FOR LOCAL TRACTIONS AT NOON

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—War shares and similar specialties were again the object of active speculation at the opening of today's market, with gains two to over five points. General Motors was the conspicuous feature, adding 7 1-2 points to yesterday's gain of 21, with a new high record of 248. Crucible Steel advanced materially, likewise other industrials and equipments. United States Steel, on a sale of 2500 shares opened at a maximum of 76 1-4, 5-8 over the close. New York Central was the most active railway issue, its initial quotation of 93 1-4 representing a gain of a point, but it soon receded to below 92 on heavy offerings. Reactions of one to six points followed the early rise.

Prices made irregular recoveries before the end of the first hour, re-adjustment of the foreign exchange conditions being an influential factor. Trading in that period was on a very extensive scale, but specialties again supplied more than a proportionate share. Prominent railways were distinctively heavy, every advance being met by selling orders which were believed to be for foreign account. Steel also moved feverishly, yielding from time to time as offerings increased. Trading slackened perceptibly before noon. Bonds were heavy with a marked increase of foreign liquidation.

Renewal of activity in Crucible Steel and other war stocks at higher prices, together with a demand for local tractions, were the features of the mid-session. Standard shares continued to show variable tendencies.

Specialties, notably Crucible Steel and New York Air Brake, extended their gains in the last hour, but they all broke badly at the end. Representative shares were quite reactionary. The closing was heavy.

FOR PEACE IN EUROPE

CARDINAL GIBBONS PRESENTS MESSAGE FROM POPE TO PRES. WILSON

WASHINGTON Sept. 2.—Cardinal Gibbons today presented to President Wilson a message from Pope Benedict regarding peace in Europe. Later he saw Secretary Lansing on the same subject.

After a conference at the White House the cardinal announced that he had discussed the possibilities of peace with the president. He said that he had conveyed a message from the pope on the question but could not reveal its exact contents at this time.

THE ARABIC CASE

Papers Say Great Britain Cannot Agree To Settlement As Outlined By Germany

LONDON, Sept. 2, 1.45 p. m.—That Great Britain cannot be a consenting party to a settlement of the submarine question which puts a liner and its passengers into a class apart from a merchantman and its crew is the general attitude taken by the evening newspapers on the note of Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador to the United States to Secretary of State Lansing in Washington.

CONCEALED FROM PEOPLE

German Public Ignorant of Concessions to United States, Says the London Times

LONDON, Sept. 2, 3.58 a. m.—The German public has been kept in ignorance of any concession to the United States concerning submarine warfare, according to the London Times, which asserts that German newspapers of Saturday and Sunday make no mention of a change in policy and refer only briefly to the Arabic case.

The British admiralty's revelation regarding the loss of many submarines also has been concealed from the German people, the Times asserts.

CALLS IT A REVELATION

London Papers Say Concessions by Germany More Than Decisive Triumph For United States

LONDON, Sept. 2, 3.45 a. m.—Commenting today upon the outcome of the negotiations between the United States and Germany over the latter's submarine policy, the Daily News says:

"It is much more than a decisive triumph for the United States; it is a revelation of the internal position of Germany. Faced with the choice between retreat and war, Germany has chosen to retreat. President Wilson may well take satisfaction in having re-established violated laws of humanity without throwing himself into the conflict."

The Daily News considers the reported illness of Admiral Von Tirpitz the strongest possible confirmation of the belief that the real crisis was not in Washington but in Berlin. "It has been reported that Emperor William supported Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg and today's news gives this report intense significance," the article says.

The Daily Express supposes that Germany was glad to have an excuse for abandoning a method of warfare which cost more than it was worth and which covered the German name with "ignominy."

BILLERICA

Brief talks on woman's suffrage were given yesterday at the regular meeting of Asa Pollard lodge, Ladies of the G. A. R., held in Gardner Parker hall, Billerica, with President Mrs. Anna Holden presiding. The speakers were Miss Madison of this city and Dr. Hosmer of Billerica. Plans were made by the circle for a fair to be held next month. The sick committee reported that Mrs. Hattie Whitney, treasurer, who was injured Saturday night, is resting comfortably. The sewing circle of the lodge will meet Sept. 15 at the home of Mrs. Lenora Brewster.

HUSBAND IN DANGEROUS CONDITION AT THE BROCKTON HOSPITAL.

BROCKTON, Sept. 2.—Mrs. Joseph Dufresne, about 75, of Holyoke, was accidentally asphyxiated by illuminating gas last night and her husband, about the same age, is in a dangerous condition at the Brockton hospital, as a result of a leak in the pipe in their sleeping room. The couple was discovered this morning by their daughter, Mrs. Abel Mountague and the pulmotor was used in a vain effort to save the woman. The couple was visiting the daughter and was stopping with her at 28 West Elm street.

The windows were found tightly closed but the medical examiner found evidence to cause a verdict of accidental death.

THE ADRIATIC ARRIVES

THE CAPTAIN REPORTS THAT THE BRITISH HAVE CAPTURED 50 GERMAN SUBMARINES

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—An officer of the White Star liner Adriatic, which arrived from Liverpool today, declared that the German submarine which sunk the Arabic had been caught in a steel net and that the U-boat's double crew were now prisoners in England. He added that within the past 60 days the British have captured no less than 50 German submarines.

AUTOMOBILE WAS STOLEN

That his automobile was stolen from a garage in Cambridge and used for joy riding and then abandoned is claimed by F. W. Sullivan of Cambridge, owner of the machine that crashed into a moving van in Tyngsboro, near the entrance of the Vesper Country club, early yesterday morning. Constable Perry Flint of Tyngsboro learned from the state highway commission that the registration number 73624, belonged to Mr. Sullivan. The latter communicated with Mr. Flint last evening and said that his machine was taken out of a garage and used without his consent. Though the automobile is still beside the road in Tyngsboro, Mr. Sullivan said he would have it taken away today.

WENT THROUGH BRIDGE

WILSON'S COAL WAGON WENT THROUGH FLOORING OF PAWTUCKET BRIDGE

One of the rear wheels of a coal team owned by E. A. Wilson & Co. went through the flooring of Pawtucket bridge at about 11.30 o'clock this morning. The team was being driven across the bridge with a heavy load of coal when suddenly the driver, Mr. Edward Gendron, experienced a start which nearly threw him from his seat and looking around he found that the left rear wheel of the team had gone completely through a plank about eight feet long. Fearing the wagon would go through the bridge he unhitched the horses and led them to the farther end of the bridge. The break occurred about the middle of the bridge near the car tracks and as a result car service on the Varnum avenue and Pawtucketville lines was tied up for some time. The street railway officials and street department officials were soon notified of the break and a gang of men were soon on the scene and the break was repaired. Supt. Farrington, Supt. Flessington of the street department, and Foreman McCann directed the work. This is not the first accident of the kind on this bridge.

PLAYGROUNDS EXHIBIT

evolutions, and as each group of children went off the natural stage after their exhibition they were showered with applause.

During the morning hours Miss Katherine F. Tobin, head supervisor of the girls of the playground system and a corps of young lady assistants were busily engaged putting the children through a final rehearsal so that everything would go off smoothly, and their work was not in vain, for the children executed all of the difficult evolutions assigned to them in a manner that would have done credit to professionals.

Shortly before 1 o'clock the children started to assemble on the South common and before 1.30 o'clock it is estimated that over 1500 kiddies were present to take part in the closing exercises. The parents and friends of the children also arrived as rapidly and before the time of starting the big playground was crowded.

Owing to the foresight of Supt. Keenan about 30 large benches had been removed from other parks for the day and these were occupied by aged people, members of the city government, park commission and invited guests.

Promptly at 2 o'clock the girls' baseball game was started on a diamond on the top of the hill in the rear of the Edson school, while a contest between boys' teams representing the South and North commons was started on the big diamond. The South common team was captained by "Dick" O'Malley, and Johnny Evers never performed his duties as leader better than the diminutive South common lad. Les Bosca held sway of the North common aggregation and he also showed remarkable powers of leadership. Both teams came on the diamond like major league teams, and went on with their work as though they had been accustomed to perform before record-breaking crowds every day of their lives. Wonderful fielding was exhibited on both sides and the game was very close. The girls, too, gave an excellent exhibition of the national pastime and their work was roundly applauded on several occasions.

Following the ball game, captain ball was played by little girls from every playground after which various races were held for both boys and girls. Putting the shot, high jumping and quoit matches followed shortly afterward and the winners were accorded generous applause.

At this time one of the prettiest spectacles of the afternoon was presented when the little girls from the various playgrounds attired in their best marched on the grounds accompanied by their instructors preparatory to the folk dancing, each little girl wearing a ribbon on her arm to designate what playground she represented. After all the children had marched to the center of the baseball diamond a halt was called by Miss Tobin, and all but a selected group of little girls repaired to one side. This group went through the difficult evolutions of the "Swedish dance of Greeting," after which another group was led to the center of the grounds and executed a "Highland Schottische." Then came the dances peculiar to the Danish, Norwegian and Irish nations followed by the more popular American folk dances. All were frequently applauded and immensely enjoyed by the large crowd. The music for the dancing was furnished by a piano kindly donated for the occasion by Steinert & Son, and Miss Mary Carolin, one of the instructors on the South common playground made a very competent accompanist.

The park commission provided eight boxes of candy, three searchlights, five knives, two baseball mits, six neckscarfs and eighteen caps, as prizes for the boys while the girls received dolls, dresses, thimbles and a number of other pretty prizes.

After the folk dancing the big feature of the afternoon was held under the supervision of Mr. Patrick J. Reynolds, head supervisor of the boys and his assistants. The event was called a tub race and was held in the pond. Each contestant was provided with a large galvanized wash tub and it was his duty to paddle across the pond without upsetting. The contestant who got to the other side of the pond with the least number of duckings was to be declared the victor. Three boys from each playground were entered in this event, which proved decidedly amusing. They were sent off in heats, and it took seven of them before the final was run off. In this, three boys were entered and they certainly furnished the fun of the afternoon, for in their excitement to get to the other side, each of them capsized several times. Finally one youngster dripping wet pulled up at the granite side of the pond where the judges stood and he was given a great hand as were his two less fortunate brethren who came in soon afterward. It was said that the first boy represented the North common but he got away so rapidly that the writer did not have a chance to ascertain his name.

The tub race was the last event and a few minutes afterwards Mayor Murphy awarded the prizes. As each kiddie walked to the cement handstand to receive his award, the common resounded with applause and cheers, and as the fortunate little boy or girl walked away with his or her prize they were surrounded by their little friends and when it was possible, the lucky little winners shared their prizes with their friends. This was done in several instances where the award was a box of chocolates.

The Instructors

Miss Katherine F. Tobin, head supervisor of the girls, and Mr. Patrick J. Reynolds, who was mainly instrumental in mapping out the excellent program provided by the boys, are to be congratulated on the excellent showing at the closing exercises. They were ably assisted by the following very competent assistant supervisors: South common, Misses Marion Carey, Mary Carolin, May Cowell; North common, Misses Mary C. Joyce, Ethel Lombard, Helen Hickey, Margaret F. Flynn and Miss Sullivan; Pulaski street, Miss Irene B. White; Aiken street, Misses Gladys Melloon, Gertrude Lannan; Lakeview avenue, Miss Louise Mahoney; Fayette street school, Mrs. Sarah Ivers; Franklin school, Miss Mary J. Reardon. The male instructors on the Aiken and Textile playgrounds and on the North and South commons were Messrs. John Walsh, Jr., Francis Corbett, Patrick J. Reynolds and Eugene C. Donovan.

THE HOLYOKE STRIKE

HOLYOKE—Sept. 2.—Further developments in the strike of 250 trolleymen, which has resulted in the complete suspension of street car traffic since midnight, August 26, centered today in the state board of conciliation and arbitration, which has resumed its efforts to bring about a settlement after the failure of several peace making proposals by outside parties. The three members of the board are in the city and are expected to make a report and possibly a recommendation before tonight.

Officials of the trolleymen's union insist that the time limit of the new contract to be prepared by an arbitration board of three persons, shall be one year and that the question is not one for arbitration. Strike benefits are beginning to be received by the union and nearly $500 was collected yesterday from the trolleymen of Springfield for this purpose.

NEW EXPRESS RATES

Beginning yesterday the express companies of this city, and those throughout the state, established a slight increased rate for parcels weighing less than 100 pounds. The increase varies according to the weight and ranges from one to five cents. The new schedule is authorized by the interstate commerce commission as a means of partly offsetting a large deficiency in the revenue of the companies on this class of merchandise due to the establishment of the parcel post system.

The new scale follows: Parcels weighing from one to five pounds, five cents more; six to 20 pounds, four cents more; 70 to 99 pounds, one cent more. The weight on packages weighing 100 pounds or more is not affected.

ESTABLISHED 1878 LOWELL MASS. THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 2 1915 PRICE ONE CENT

THE SPELLBINDER

In another column of The Sun today, an account will be found of last night's mass meeting so-called, held in the interest of a second term for Mayor Murphy.

It all brings to mind the happenings of two years ago when Mayor Murphy was conducting his first campaign for mayor.

In a paid advertisement which appeared November 30, 1913, His Honor over his own signature, had the following statement:

"If I am elected mayor I will make an honest effort to do my duty unhampered by any alliances, agreements or pledges, except those made openly to the public. I will hold the heads of my departments responsible for the duty imposed upon them and the laws will be enforced impartially with the aim of extending equal rights to all and special privileges to none. I WILL NOT BE A CANDIDATE FOR A SECOND TERM, because I realize that the one object of the present charter was to do away with the re-election of mayors and because I believe if unhampered with plans and labor necessary to bring about a continuation of two additional years in office, I can perform my duties to better advantage, and because I purpose not only to go into office free from any ties and personal obligations but I desire to remain so during my entire term. Under such conditions there should be no reason why, if elected, I cannot leave office with as much respect as I enter it, and this is my great ambition."

It will be noted that His Honor said "I will" instead of "I shall," thus emphasizing the promise and the advertisement printed the words: "I will not be a candidate for a second term" in larger type than the remainder of the article so as to bring it most forcibly to the notice of the readers.

On the evening of December 6, 1913, speaking at Broadway, Willie and Green streets, His Honor said: "I stand upon the platform of law and order, decency, equal rights for all and special privileges to none. If I am elected mayor next Tuesday I will serve one term and will not be a candidate for re-election. I believe that the framers of the charter intended that two years should be given to a chief executive to eliminate the expense of a campaign his second year. It did not intend that he should use his office to build up a political machine and perpetuate himself therein, by ties with interests detrimental to the welfare of the community."

About that time and before a meeting of French-Americans Mayor Murphy reiterated his statements about not being a candidate for a second term and it is alleged promised his support to Dr. Mignault as candidate for mayor, this fall.

Heard at City Hall

The story is going the rounds to the effect that the following conversation took place at city hall a few days ago:

"Hello, Tom, what are you doing up here?"

"I was just up to see John Cull to get one of these petitions asking the mayor to run again." And he produced the petition.

The Yorick Club's Position

The fact that a meeting at which the second term petitions of Mayor Murphy were discussed and launched was held at the Yorick club, has given some people the false impression that the Yorick club is entering into politics. Such is by no means the case. It was a meeting of friends of Mayor Murphy, some of whom were members of the club and some of whom were not, and the club apartments were used simply as a meeting place. Some of those who attended made a hasty exit upon learning the object of the meeting.

Both Came Back

Dr R. J. Mignault, an avowed candidate for mayor and Mayor Murphy, the candidate by demand, both returned from Maine yesterday, the former from Beechwood and the latter from Kennebunk. Both arrived in time to attend last night's mass meeting, so-called, did they desire so to do. They did not return together. Dr. Mignault states, that to save his friends the expense and inconvenience of circulating petitions in his behalf, he will consider that they want him to run, and will be a candidate.

This is Real Good

Says the Courier-Citizen:

"The mistake that the members of the first two governments under the new charter made was in considering that they had won a democratic victory. They ran city hall as though the democrats had elected them and were entitled to the plums. In the reaction that followed, they were tipped out of office."

"They thought that democrats were entitled to the plums." What did the new government and the present government with three republicans, a majority of the municipal council, do? The old government which was giving the plums to the democrats, removed Martin Conley, a democrat, and replaced him with Michael J. Dowd, another democrat. Then this incoming government of nominal democrats removed Dowd and put back Conley. Then it removed Superintendent of Streets Putnam, not a democrat but a good republican, and the people put him into a better job to show their disapproval of the action of the government of nominal democrats and republicans. Outside of those two cases the same office-holders, democratic and republican alike, who were originally elected by the first government have been retained in office by the present government with its majority of republican members.

The School Board Meeting

For a genteel manner of applying what is popularly known as "strong-arm" methods in carrying a point commend us to the school board's action in the case of Miss Lee as supervisor of primaries. They find that she is holding an office that was never created, although Dr. Lambert has twice previously voted to re-elect her to that office and Messrs. Simpson and Caisse have each voted once for her re-election.

In 1913 a motion was put and carried to proceed to the election of a supervisor of primaries, and Miss Lee was elected. The following year a similar motion was put and carried and Miss Lee was re-elected, Dr. Lambert voting for her. In 1914 once more the motion was repeated and Miss Lee was elected, Dr. Lambert, Mr. Simpson and Mr. Caisse voting for Miss Lee. And now in 1915 these gentlemen discover that the office she is holding was never created. If that motion to elect a supervisor of primaries didn't create the job why did Dr. Lambert vote for Miss Lee for the position on two occasions and the other two members on one occasion each? Of course it is immaterial to Miss Lee whether she be re-elected if she be given an opportunity to do equally good work at equally good pay.

Kirk Street Primary

It is understood that the High school is to have still another annex this fall, as the Kirk street primary school with its two rooms made up mostly of children from the day nursery, is to be divided up so that the primary school children will occupy the room part of the day and the high school pupils during the other part of the day. Then the janitor between times must toto out the primary school desks which are too small for the high school pupils, at the close of one session, replacing them with larger desks for the high school pupils, and then at the close of the day, shift them around again so as to accommodate the kiddos in the morning. Meanwhile the Worthen street primary school only a few minutes' walk away has three or more empty rooms. Why not shift the Kirk street primary children to the Worthen street school and thus give them a whole day's schooling, while the high school pupils may have the benefit of a whole day's schooling in the Kirk street school?

Wilson vs. Hayden

Through the energy of Mr. Harold D. Wilson, of the Somerville News, who is contesting with County Treasurer Joseph O. Hayden for the republican nomination for county treasurer, this contest has become a matter of interest to the republicans of this end of the district. Mr. Wilson has proven himself to be a live wire. In a well-placarded auto he has scoured the county, particularly the northern end and now he is circulating broadcast numerous attractive posters calling attention to his candidacy. He went through Lowell yesterday morning not long after sunrise and judging from the early hour at which he arrived here one might be pardoned for assuming that he, too, had been trying to get first look at September Morn. He stopped for a few moments to discuss the situation with the writer and he said: "I am spending considerable time in this section of the county for I appreciate the fact that a large part of the voters of Middlesex county live in Lowell and vicinity. I am receiving good assurances of support from the republicans of Lowell and believe that I will get a good vote here."

Mr. Wilson's brief remark brings to mind the fact that for many years Lowell has not been on the county map, except as a place in which to get votes for the fellows from the lower end. The fact that Mr. Wilson is recognizing the upper end of the county may result in a reciprocal feeling on the part of the voters of this end.

Last year, to be sure, the Courier-Citizen did get about $250 worth of county printing, but that came after Mr. Robert F. Marden had been county commissioner for a time. But there are no Lowell people and there have not been, employed in the office of the county treasurer, in fact Lowell has never received any recognition in county patronage, republicans or democrats, except that accorded this end of the woods by Sheriff Fairbairn.

Mr. Wilson's campaigning must cause County Treasurer Hayden much surprise and not a little worriment for, in the 29 or 30 years that Mr. Hayden has held the office of county treasurer rarely has he been obliged to contest for the nomination. It had become a sort of life job with him, the nominations being handed to him on a silver platter, as it were. Probably he considered the office and himself out of politics, for according to many well known republicans he has done nothing in years in the way of lending assistance in the battles of the party and this is one of the reasons why Mr. Wilson is meeting with so many assurances of support.

Mr. Wilson impressed upon the writer that he is not in combination with any other candidate but is looking out for himself, his statement being the result of certain things said by the Spellbinder recently, as the result of the fact that Mr. Witham, representing Candidate Messer came to Lowell with him recently.

"A little Wilson—that's all," may prove to be too strong a dose for the venerable county treasurer. The caucuses will tell.

Political Pinch-Hitters

The new name for the democrat who is going to vote the republican ticket in the coming caucuses and the republican who is going to vote the democratic ticket is the political pinch-hitter, for each goes to vote for the sole aim of making a hit for some particular candidate. Ward eight will have some 300 of them, while in the ward four-five representative district an effort is being made to get the republicans of that district to line up with the demmies on caucus day, in the interest of the different democratic candidates. There will be no general turn-over of republicans in wards four and five, however, on account of the several important contests on the state ticket. In ward eight the situation is different for the democrats in the language of the baseball coacher, "have nothing to wait for." The four candidates, Rep. Fred O. Lewis, Freeman Hersey, Herbert C. Taft and John Lindsay are making an active canvass of the demmies of the ward, for each realizes that the man who gets the democratic votes is going to win the nomination, and the nomination means an election. The democrats are not yet of sufficient numbers to win out in a ward contest with a candidate of their own, but they may be next year or two years hence surely, judging by the numbers in which they are settling in the Highlands. There are now some 500 democrats in ward eight. If the demmies had a few more votes undoubtedly they would vote for Rep. Lewis in the primaries in order to win against him on election day, for the fact that he is a candidate for a third term makes him weak in his own party, while certain matters in his record at the state house, will not get him anything in the vote line. But there is no democratic candidate and hence it is a good bet that he'll not receive many democratic votes, if any. Among the democrats who are discussing the situation, Mr. Lindsay appears to have the call, and he also stands well in his own party. Mr. Taft is probably the best known of all the four candidates as he has been before the public long as he has been agent of the Boston & Maine, and a member of the water board. Mr. Hersey is well known as a party worker and has a following of his own.

TWO WERE SENTENCED

VICIOUS ASSAULT UPON MAN WHO REFUSED MONEY TO TWO ASSAILANTS

Because they were refused money which they solicited to buy a drink, Gregg and Thomas Reay, brothers, attacked the man who had turned them away and beat him into unconsciousness in the gutter of Merrimack street, only a short distance from city hall, about 2 o'clock last Tuesday afternoon. There was no police officer around to stop the brutal assault and for several minutes, it is claimed, the two men pounded their human target and then disappeared. The persistence of a witness to the assault who followed the alleged assailants for over an hour in search of an officer, resulted in their appearance in police court this forenoon charged with assault and battery.

The two men were charged with assault and battery on a person "whose name is to the complainant unknown." Hardly had court adjourned, however, when a man claiming to be Michael O'Connell of Tyler street appeared at the station and said he was the victim in the case but feared an even more severe beating if he testified against the brothers. His eyes were blackened and his face was badly cut, showing that he was the recipient of numerous blows.

There was only one witness for the government. He testified that while in a building near the corner of Merrimack and Dutton streets about 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, he saw the two defendants accost a pedestrian and talk for a moment or two. The pedestrian then made gestures which signified he was refusing to do what they requested. The assault began, he said, with no one around to volunteer any assistance. One of the brothers, it is claimed, hit the victim four times, and when the latter started to offer a defense, it is asserted, he was tripped up, his head striking against the curbing when he fell.

With O'Connell lying in the gutter unconscious, said the witness, Thomas kneeled over him and pounded him unmercifully. The government's witness said he rushed from the building and when he reached the street the two men were hurrying away. They walked up Moody street near the Textile school, followed by the witness, but there was no officer around to arrest them. Finally the young man said he lost track of the defendants and returned to Merrimack street.

In the evening, he testified, he was approached by both Gregg and Thomas Reay, and warned that if he continued his interference in the case he would receive the same kind of licking that O'Connell got. An officer was later notified and Tuesday night arrested Gregg Reay, but the police could not locate his brother. Yesterday morning Thomas was seen sauntering towards the police station to learn his brother's fate and an officer was called to make the arrest.

Both men denied the assault today, claiming that the man assaulted should be present to corroborate the identification. Deputy Downey offered records of each of the defendants for various offences. Judge Pickman found them guilty and ordered each sentenced to two months in jail. They appealed.

Unlicensed Dog

Charged with having an unlicensed dog in his possession on August 29, John Barakas was haled into court and pleaded not guilty. A BILIOUS TONGUE

When your tongue is coated evenly all over, with a whitish-yellow color and your breath is bad the chances are that you are bilious. If you also have indigestion, constipation, headache and a general ill feeling, there is scarcely a doubt about it. Your liver needs attention.

Harsh cathartics which purge violently and then produce a reaction only aggravate the trouble. Gentle assistance is what nature needs to establish regular habits of health and Pinklets, the little pink laxative pills, free from harmful or habit-forming drugs meet the requirement most admirably.

If your druggist does not sell Pinklets they will be sent by mail postpaid, on receipt of 25 cents by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Write for booklet anyway.

CHARGE OF BLACKMAIL

SENSATIONAL TURN IN CAMPAIGN FOR ENFORCEMENT OF THE LIQUOR LAW IN ROCKLAND, ME.

ROCKLAND, Me., Sept. 2.—The campaign for the enforcement of the liquor law, which has been conducted in Camden's public square by Rev. H. S. Baker, a blind preacher from Lincolnville, took a sensational turn yesterday, when C. Fred Miller and George W. Miller, two of the leaders, were arraigned in Knox county municipal court on the charge of blackmail.

The complainants were James E. Maloney and E. E. Rokes, who testified that the Miller brothers offered to discontinue the campaign against the liquor interests if Messrs. Maloney and Rokes would pay them $300.

The alleged negotiations were conducted at Mr. Maloney's home Sunday night, and State Detective William H. Kalloch of Rockland was an unseen witness. The witnesses for the prosecution claim that the Miller brothers first offered to call off their street campaign upon payment of $200, and that the excuse given by the latter for raising the sum to $300 was that the minister might have an equal share.

The Millers offered no defence at yesterday's hearing. They told a reporter that they were asked to Mr. Maloney's house to discuss the liquor situation, but deny absolutely that there was any talk of money or compromise.

They were held in the sum of $500 each for the September term of court, Rev. C. F. Smith being one of their bondsmen. They began immediate injunction proceedings against James E. Maloney to restrain him from the sale of intoxicating liquors in the building which he owns and occupies. It was stated that similar proceedings will be brought against Mr. Rokes.

Hundreds have signed the petitions for enforcement and Camden citizens are greatly wrought up over the situation.

COLORS ARE NUMBERED

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—American textile manufacturers have devised a scheme of numbering the colors of fabrics by which it will be possible to match a sample without the presence of the sample. This announcement was made at the convention of the New England Retail Milliners' association in session here. Colors are numbered from one to nine the fourth figure indicates the intensity of the tone. Thus 6-1-5-3 translated by a new colorcard means "turquoise blue," six being blue, one white, five green and three light.

DIVORCE FOR MRS. COWLES

SHE AND DOCTOR TO DIVIDE CUSTODY OF CHILDREN, ALTERNATING EACH SIX MONTHS

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 2.—Alleging that enforced association with persons suffering from nervous diseases had broken down her health, so that she lost 50 pounds in weight, and had also endangered her mental balance, Mrs. Florence Jaquith Cowles of Brookline, Mass., was yesterday granted an absolute divorce from Dr. Edward S. Cowles of this city, by Chief Justice Robert G. Pike of the New Hampshire superior court, sitting in special term in the Rockingham county courthouse in this city.

The agrement regarding the two children is that each shall have their custody six months.

An intimation, however, that the case is not ended was contained in a statement given out last night by Mrs. Cowles who declared that she will not consent that the little girls shall be kept near the "insane patients" of her husband, while they are in his charge.

Only One Allegation

"Conduct injurious to health" was the only allegation put forward by Mrs. Cowles, and the testimony offered to support it took the persons in the court, outside of counsel, somewhat by surprise.

THE EXCHANGE PROBLEM

LONDON PAPERS URGE PUBLIC TO RESTRICT PURCHASE OF IMPORTS—GOVT. ATTACKED

LONDON, Sept. 2, 3.09 a. m.—Discussing the financial situation as between Great Britain and the United States, the Morning Post urges the public to restrict its purchases of imported goods.

The Times argues for the immediate despatch to New York of a very heavy gold shipment.

"There seems," says this newspaper, "some likelihood that some recent official statements as to announcements regarding remedial measures being premature have been misconstrued in New York. We can only repeat that no doubt about remedial measures need be entertained; but Rome was not built in a day, and while our representatives are getting to work we must have patience and bear the temporary discomfiture as best we may."

The Daily Mail attacks the government for "letting things slide" so long, and adds: "Things need never have come to this pass, but the whole question now will be arranged very soon, since the government has handed over the problem to real business men."

The government is urged by the Chronicle to make some official announcement regarding the steps being taken.

The Express says: "Important influences have been brought to bear to remedy the unsatisfactory state of the exchange problem. An official announcement no doubt, soon will be forthcoming."

Financial newspapers urge prompt action by the government. The Financier says it hears that the deliberations of the bankers' committee will take too much time, while "what is wanted is immediate, if only temporary, measures to arrest the fall. Authorities are agreed that a short-time loan is the best way out of the difficulty. Surely a small loan could be placed at once and increased later if necessary. Such a step would restore confidence."

The Financial Times declares that little relief can be expected from the proposed restriction of imports.

"In actual working," it says, "this method is slow and uncertain, and it must be remembered that the bulk of our ordinary imports from the United States consists of raw material and foodstuffs, the flow of which is undesirable to check."

American Exchange Gains

American exchange moved up 10 cents during the morning. The rapid fluctuations which marked this unusual advance were due principally to the large amount of stock brought out by yesterday's low level. The cable transfer rate was forced up to 4.62 before noon.

The shorts immediately covered and brought down the rate to 4.5960.

One large American exchange dealer said the recovery was due in part to the discounting of probabilities, it being expected that some official arrangement would be announced soon. At the same time a good deal of speculation is going on. The market was very erratic.

SIR HERBERT HOLT ARRIVES

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Sir Herbert Holt, president of the Royal Bank of Canada, a passenger on the Adriatic, arriving here from Liverpool, said that the members of the British financial commission who are coming to New York to effect a readjustment of the foreign exchange situation were to have sailed on the Adriatic, but changed their plans at the last minute. He added that he believed they would reach New York in the near future.

From another source it was learned that the commissioners, after cancelling their passage on the Adriatic, planned to sail for New York by way of Canada.

"I see no occasion for alarm in the United States over the sudden drop in foreign exchange, especially the English pound sterling," said Sir Herbert. "I feel confident that the matter will soon be adjusted."

ALLIED DELEGATES ARRIVING

PARIS, Sept. 2, 11.30 a. m.—The French and British delegates who are to go to New York to confer with American bankers on the abnormal exchange situation probably will propose that the American bankers advance sums sufficient to stabilize measurably the exchange market. It is understood that American securities will be offered as a guarantee and that the proceeds of the loan will be used in settlement of bills for American exports now due.

STERLING CLIMBS UP LADDER

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The English pound sterling climbed up the ladder of ascending values as rapidly and dramatically as it had plunged downward during the week. Within the first two hours of trading it perched on a rung only one below the point where it rested at the close of the market last Saturday.

The swift upward course was interpreted as meaning that Great Britain had awakened to the extreme gravity of the situation and that London bankers had determined that sterling should no longer be the football of finance in relations beween the countries.

At Caxlas insurgents tried to storm the barracks, but were repulsed by rifle fire.
